BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

If Mrs. Keen had doubled Mr. Abel's three spade bid, perfect defense would have given that contract a very satisfactory lacing. However, she elected to raise her partner's clubs. To Miss Brash there is no such thing as a final contract of four in a minor. At last she has never been known to stop there. She went on to five clubs automatically and, as usual, she was in a cotnract that appeared to be one trick too high.

Her line of play for eleven tricks is worth studying. It involves a principle which can be applied successfully to a surprisingly large number of hands.

Here is the typical situation: You, as declarer, have a loser in each of two side suits. Dummy is short in both of these suits and has plenty of trumps. However, your right hand opponent is also short, but only in one of the suits, and he has a trump higher than dummy's trumps.

Miss Brash

Somehow you must arange to ruff your side suit loser which cannot be overruffed on your right.

Miss Brash won the opening spade lead with dummy's ace, led the deuce of clubs and finessed her queen. Mr. Champion started an echo with the eight of spades on the first trick and followed suit with the four of clubs at trick two.

Now Miss Brash led the queen of diamonds, hoping for a cover. When a low diamond appeared on her left she let the queen ride and it won. Next she led a spade to dummy's nine, Mr. Abel won and Mr. Champion completed his echo by playing the deuce.

Mr. Abel led another high spade, believing his partner could overruff the dummy. His partner could, but he didn't get the chance. Miss Brash saw what was coming and she simply gave up the idea of ruffing a spade loser. She discarded a heart from dummy and planned to ruff a heart later. Mr. Champion dropped a diamond.

Mr. Abel came on with another high spade and this time Miss Brash ruffed with dummy's eight of clubs. It could do Mr. Champion no good to overruff here and he discarded his last diamond. Miss Brash played a small heart on this trick. She led the ace of diamonds from the board. Mr. Champion ruffed and she overruffed. She cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed a diamond, laid down the ace of clubs to pick the lone king and spread the hand.

East German whisky no threat

BERLIN (Reuters)—East German whisky is no rival to Scotch, according to an article in Democratic German Report, a pro-Communist newsletter edited by Britons in East Berlin.

The article said:

"I should like to be able to tell you that socialist whisky beats the old capitalist sort all along the line, but I regret to have to tell you that the distillers of Scotland have nothing to worry about. It was undoubtedly the worst whisky I have ever drunk in my life," the writer said.

HEALTH HORIZONS

Ear Wax May Be A Problem

With each seasonal change thousands of individuals of all ages flock to their physicians to complain of earache, impairment of hearing, fullness of the ear and dizziness. Since few experiences are more heartily disliked than pain in the ear, an excruciating earache usually commands prompt attention. A sharp, piercing ear pain or even a dull, steady earache brings action more rapidly than trouble in almost any other part of the body.

Earache arises from many causes. During the winter the common cold is the most prominent offender, extending infection from the nasal passages to the middle ear cavity. During hot humid weather, the external ear may be infected by a variety of bacteria and fungi.

The external ear canal, which is about 1¼ inches long, serves to conduct the sound waves, is lined by skin similar in most respects to that of the body. It has oil and sweat glands. The oil deposited in the canal thickens to form a protective substance called cerumen or ear wax. When formed in large quantities wax may completely block the ear canal, often increase the pain resulting from a middle ear infection.

Wax formation in the ear is not a disease. Some individuals produce an excessive amount, just as some perspire more profusely. Trouble arises when it is allowed to accumulate, harden, and block the passageway. The hearing may be blunted and a siege of temporary deafness ensues accompanied by ear itching, uncomfortable fullness and dizziness.

Happily this type of hearing defect can be cured quickly—by removal of the ear wax. Attempts, however, at self-cleansing with the careless use of hairpins, toothpicks and fingernails often result in infection, injury to the canal, or further impaction of the ear wax against the eardrums.

The ear is prey to a number of ills and disorders, some of which are likely to rise from summertime activities.

In such circumstances it is best to consult a physician who may use a newly developed medicament named Cerumenex, specifically adapted to cope with this common problem.

The drug is easy to apply, is painless, safe and quick-acting, softens and loosens the impacted ear wax facilitating its removal by simple syringing with lukewarm water.

Physicians using Cerumenex on a series of 106 patients reported obtaining more than adequate success in 86% of the cases treated.

Francois Lake News

By AGNES H. NEAVE
Daily News Correspondent

The Palling people will soon be having power in their homes, and they surely deserve it. Early in June less than twenty men started slashing the right of way, and cutting poles, peeling them and hauling them out of the woods. Besides these they erected 70 cedar poles which the B.C. Power Commission provided alongside the highway. The holes were dug by hand, and in some cases the ground was so hard that blasting was necessary. Some of the men put in 250 hours of work. In all they erected 220 poles along 17 miles of roadway. The workers were protected by the Workmens' Compensation Board and were registered under the Recreation Commission. Rather strenuous recreation it would seem. Hearing of this reminds us of how the folk between here and Burns Lake did the same work to get the power to our homes nearly three years ago. The effort was surely worth it.
