Bright Sets New Mark

REGINA (CP)—Fullback Johnny Bright of Edmonton Eskimos has netted 1,501 yards along the ground to surpass by 61 yards the western football conference individual rushing record for one season set a year ago by teammate Normie Kwong.

Statistics released Thursday by Bill Hawreylak of Regina, chief WIFU statistician, show Gerry James of Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the runner-up position with a net gain of 1,045 while Kwong is third with 931.

Statistics cover all games to date with each club having played 14 times.

Parker has the best average carry among the top 10 ground-gainers. The Eskimo ace has carried the ball 92 times for an average carry of 7.5 yards. Lewis is averaging 6.8 yards on 107 carries, Bright 6.3 on 236 and James six even on 174.

Edmonton's Don Getty owns the best passing mark, completing 61.7 per cent of 102 aerials.

Tripucka has thrown the most touchdown passes, 12, and has had the most intercepted, 25, a league record.

B.C.'s Paul Cameron is the leading pass receiver, catching 30 of 31 aerials for a completion average of 96.7 per cent. Saskatchewan's Larry Isbell has caught 27 of 29 and teammate Stan Williams 25 of 27.

Winnipeg's Ernie Pitts leads in total yards, latching onto 31 of 39 for 626 yards. Calgary's Dean Renfro has caught 23 of 41 for 556 yards and the best average pass, 24.1 yards. Renfro and B.C.'s Jerry Janes are tops in touchdown passes with five apiece.

B.C.'s Ted Hunt has the best convert average, making good 19 times on 23 tries for 82.6 per cent. Edmonton's Joe Mobra has kicked the most converts, 45 in 56 attempts.

LESTER PEARSON

my leader without whom I would have been a spokesman without the right script.

Most of all, I think of the men of the Canadian defence forces who have been called on to serve the United Nations—on practically every occasion where a resolution of the United Nations asked for international action—and for men to take action in Korea, in Kashmir; in Indo-China and in the Middle East. That is the hard, dangerous and practical work for peace.

What can we do to make this work more effective: the end of a column gives little scope to answer that question. Above all, however, we must remember that peace is more than a prayer; it must be a policy. And that is where we get into difficulty. Everyone, men and governments, wants peace—or claims to. But everyone, men and governments, is not willing to do the things or support the things that make for peace. Policy is too often formulated for short term national reasons, rather than in the long term international interest of peace and security.

But when your idea of international policy for peace conflicts with someone else's, what do you do then?

We know that one man—or one state—can produce a policy—or start a conflict. But it takes two to make an agreement.

We can at least make sure that we will not be the ones who, by action or attitude, obstruct the peace and that we will not be the ones to start the trouble.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Develop Sort of Awareness For Possibility of End-Plays

You have to develop a sort of awareness for the possibility of executing end-plays. They have an irritating quality of being much easier to see after a hand, than at trick one.

One way to develop a feeling for these plays is to form the habit of surveying your own hand and dummy carefully before playing to the first trick. Look for a combination of cards in any one of the four suits where it would obviously be more advantageous for the enemy to lead the suit first.

The heart suit in today's deal is a case in point. Mr. Muzzy won the opening lead of the jack of clubs with dummy's queen. He got by his first hurdle successfully when he laid down the ace and king of trumps, dropping Mrs. Keen's queen.

From there on, however, he didn't look so good. He cashed the ace and king of clubs, discarding the trey of diamonds from dummy. Then he led a diamond and finessed the queen. Mr. Masters won with the king and had an easy, safe return. He simply led another diamond to put dummy in with the ace.

Now Mr. Muzzy had to play the heart suit at last. He led the four from the board and Mr. Masters played the deuce. Mr. Muzzy put up the queen and it lost to the king. A heart return through dummy's jack-nine up to Mr. Masters' ace-ten assured the defeat of the contract.

Mr. Muzzy claimed he played the hand right because he gave himself two chances—the diamond finesse or finding the 10 of hearts on his left.

This argument sounded pretty good and certainly two chances are better than one. In this case, however, the one correct way to play the hand was foolproof against any defense.

Instead of taking the diamond finesse, Mr. Muzzy should have gone right up with the ace and returned the queen. No matter which opponent won with the king of diamonds, the contract would be safe. On a club or a diamond return, Mr. Muzzy could ruff in dummy while discarding a heart from his hand. And if the return was a heart, it would be impossible for the defenders to take more than two tricks in that suit.
