In the Letter Box

To the Editor of the News:

Dear Sir,—In answer to your question in your paper of Thursday, August 21st, namely, to figure out the amount you have received from the city for advertising. I wish to make clear that I do not criticize from a financial point but from a moral point as regards the duty of public officials. When an official is elected he must realize that he represents his political opponents as well as his supporters. If he uses his office to discriminate against any citizen he is not fitted for his position when he is doing public business what he may do regarding his private business is different. The mayor's high handed methods regarding the city's advertising by freezing out the Empire is to be regretted and is unworthy of any man holding such a position. Dollars and cents is not the right light to look at these questions.

Yours respectfully,
W. H. MONTGOMERY.

HAS INVENTED SELF-RIGHTING AEROPLANE

Army Officer Perfects Adjustment Which Makes Flying Safe In any Wind

Villa Coublay, France, Aug. 18—The new self-righting flying apparatus invented by Lieut. J. W. Dunne, a retired British army officer, underwent most successful trials on the aerodrome here yesterday in the presence of General Auguste Hirschauer, commander of the aerial corps of the French army.

Major Julian Relix, a French army aviator, was the pilot. He ascended in a high wind, considered too strong to face by the other aviators present.

The apparatus displayed a degree of stability which drew expressions of amazement from all the expert witnesses. From time to time, Major Felix removed his hands from the levers and held them above his head to show the automatic equilibrium of the machine, which remained on a perfect level, even when it encountered eddies, air pockets or squalls.
