Ink Spot Bill Kenny Returning

Bill Kenny (Mr. Ink Spot) makes a return visit to Prince Rupert for a two-night engagement Friday and Saturday exactly two years from the time of his three weekend performances here when nearly 1,600 people thrilled to the "most imitated voice" in show business.

William Francis Kenny, one of the world's top entertainers, probably the biggest radio and stage star Prince Rupert has ever had the honor to host, brings with him a six-piece orchestra for his concert series to be held in the Civic Centre auditorium.

Sponsored by West Coast Varieties, the 43-year-old Philadelphia tenor has appeared in the largest and finest clubs and concert halls of two continents.

A performer who always give his "all" said when last here, "Once a person has paid a penny to see or hear you perform, it is an honor for you to do so and to do your best."

Also a famous recording star, Mr. Kenny in his "revival" sessions has the unique gift of filling his audience with laughter, awe and deep emotion.

The dates are August 16 and 17 for the Billy Kenny shows at the Civic Centre auditorium.
