Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kenneth Hardy.

Hardy-Dougherty Vows Exchanged At St. Andrew's Cathedral Rites

Members of well-known Prince Rupert families were united in marriage Friday night when Miss Deanna Beryl Dougherty became the bride of Harold Kenneth Hardy before the chancel steps in St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral.

The Very Rev. A. E. Hendy, Dean of Caledonia, officiated at the wedding ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Karasosky of 238 Sixth Avenue West and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Hardy, 613 Eighth Avenue East.

A background of pink gladiolus and multi-colored crysanthemums, arranged in huge white baskets, formed an attractive setting for the bride as she walked down the aisle wearing a ballerina-length white lace-over taffeta gown. The fitted V-pointed waistline bodice fell to a full skirt, and featured a stand-up collar and long sleeves tapered to lily-points.

A tiara encrusted with seed pearls, a waist-length white illusion veil and pearl-dropped earrings, gift of the groom, completed her ensemble. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses, mixed with white stephenotis.

The bride was given in marriage by her step-father.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Harry Garland chose a gown of pale blue nylon net and lace. The ballerina-length skirt was accented with side panels of appliqued lace. A blue lace jacket topped her gown and on her head she wore a matching tulle band. Her flowers were blue chrysanthemums.

Miss Marion Hardy, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid wore a rose-toned chiffon ballerina-length gown, topped with a gold lame jacket, a headband of rose colored tulle and she carried chrysanthemums in the same shade.

Petite Janice Campagnola as flower girl, was frocked in yellow nylon eyelet-over-taffeta, topped with a matching headband and she carried an umbrella of mixed fresh-cut flowers. Bridal attendants wore single strands of pearls, and the flower girl wore a gold locket, gifts of the bride.

Best man was Richard Johansen and ushers were Raymond Copperthwaite and Neil McAra. Organist was Peter Lien.

The reception held in the Sons of Norway hall saw the bride's table, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake, flanked by pink tapers. The serving table was attractively decorated with white tapers and a bouquet of pink carnations.

Edward Hildebrand proposed the toast to the bride.

Receiving the guests, the bride's mother wore a dusty-rose colored lace cocktail gown, off-set with a black feathered hat, black accessories and a corsage of rose colored carnations.

The groom's mother wore a purple velvet cocktail gown, white feathered hat, white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

At the reception the bride's mother sing "I Love You Truly".

For travelling the bride chose a dusty-rose toned knitted suit, topped with a winter white shortie coat and gold-colored accessories.

Following a motor trip to Prince Gorge and points in the interior, newlyweds will take up residence at 1517 Piggott Place.

Mrs. Hardy is a graduate of St. Joseph's Academy.

Aladdin Hilarious Treat For Over 700 Youngsters

The wonderful wonders of magic were hilariously enfolded to some 700 children and several hundred parents yesterday when the Holiday Theatre presented two performances of its 1957 touring production "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp".

The stage of the Civic Centre auditorium became a long of fantasy as a cast of eight enacted the fable of Aladdin with clever settings, effective lighting and garbed in colorful Arabian costumes.

Aladdin's simplicity, excellently portrayed by Peter Moore, proved once again that honesty and charity will over-power evil and greed, cunningly demonstrated by Ion Berger as the wicked magician.

Through his imagination and carefree zest for living, which was the constant concern of his mother, delightfully acted by Marie McCooey, Aladdin found wealth in the wonderful lamp and romance in Princess Adora, pleasantly played by Bena Shuster.

Realists, Aladdin's mother and the Sultan, father of Princess Adora, bumptiously performed by Des Norman, while finally succumbing to Aladdin's and Princess Adora's new found magic, provided tremendous humor throughout the show.

Others in the cast contributing to the gay one and a-half-hour production were Ann Lidstrone as Noona, the lady-in-waiting to Princess Adora; George Patey in comedy roles as the Sultan's guard and the show's clown and Ed Hanson as Graspino, a greedy townsman.

The exciting theatrical treat showed the immense talent of the travelling group who with bounce and fast moving foot work, displayed their versatility as acrobats and dancers.

The laughable and eye-catching production was sponsored by the Parent-Teacher council in aid of the PTA bursary fund.
