Cards' mentor may go to AL

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis Cardinal manager Fred Hutchinson was reported Tuesday as going to the American League as manager of the Baltimore Orioles.

Hutchinson has not yet been relieved of his field command of the National League St. Louis Cardinals, but has acknowledged receiving four offers. He declined to pin-point them.

In Baltimore, the Orioles front office said the report of Hutchinson becoming manager came as a surprise.

Yanks favored 7-5 in series

NEW YORK (AP)— Despite the result of the 1957 World Series and the late-season slump of New York Yankees, the American League champions have been established 7-5 favorites in man-to-man betting over Milwaukee Braves in the coming series.

The first game, to be played in Milwaukee, is priced at even money, unless the Braves collapse completely.

The series is scheduled to open Wednesday, Oct. 1.

A flock of about 25 bluebirds are giving us all a good deal of pleasure as they settle down quite close to the buildings. It would seem that they are getting ready to migrate and they seem to have an even deeper hue than earlier in the season.

✦ ✦ ✦

When Hugh was sitting quietly milking the cow in the barn the other evening, he was amused to see a small mouse run from under the oat box and out into the barn beside where he was sitting. Just at that moment the big black barn cat, by name "Satan", wandered into the barn doorway. Mouse and cat were so surprised to see each other that neither moved for a while, but the mouse was quicker wited than the cat and managed to get to safety under some hay.

✦ ✦ ✦

I hapened to be out in the front garden on Sunday morning just as a large hawk flew over from the lake. He seemed to be flying heavily and then I noticed that in his claws was a small trout facing the same way as the bird was flying, giving the impression that the bird had one enormous ski under it.
