WEEKLY SERMON

REV. JOHN KUEHN
Bethel Baptist Church

At this time of advent we think of the coming of our Lord. This not only includes the time when He came to this earth but also we think of Him as one who comes into our hearts and homes. The story that we read in the gospel of Luke Chapter 19, 1-10 concerning Zacchaeus clearly reveals this fact.

If we had asked the people of Jericho as to who would become a follower of Jesus on that specific day, Zacchaeus would have been the last man they would have mentioned. The publicans, such as Zacchaeus, were intensely despised by the Jews. They were considered as the lowest of all people. They were shunned as lepers, hated as traitors, denounced as the enemies of God and man. No bitterer scorn could have been hurled than when the Jews of that day accused Jesus of being a friend of publicans. Yet Jesus disregarded public opinion. Here was a Prophet who did not denounce the publicans but loved them.

Jesus felt and answered the deep inner longing in the heart of this wretched man for something better so He offered His friendship by entering his home.

"Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have taken anything from any man by false accusation, I restore him fourfold," Zacchaeus said.

After such a confession Jesus answered "This day is salvation come to this house". Confession always opens the door for Christ so He can help.

A change was wrought in the heart of Zacchaeus after Jesus had entered therein. From that time on he forgot self and thought of others who were poor, not forgetting, however, to right the wrong he had done toward his fellow men. Christ's influence was first felt in the heart and home of Zacchaeus, then spreading into the community.

Christ, alone, can bring about a newness of life so that wasted lives may be changed into useful ones, but, we, like Zacchaeus must have a longing to see Jesus so that He, too, may say to us, "To-day I must abide at thy house."

Serpents' sting shows sin

All men have been bitten by the serpent and need to be saved, Evangelist Amund Tveit told the congregation of St. Paul's Lutheran Church Wednesday night.

He said that the serpents that came with the sting of death, were a picture of sin in the world. The brass serpent which God commanded them to make and to raise up was a picture of Christ Jesus, who was to suffer and to die in order that men might have life.

He challenged all to do as God says in His Word, to believe and to have eternal life.

Rev. Arthur S. Olson, pastor of the congregation, led the service. Mrs. Morris Kaardal was pianist.

The special services will continue for tonight of this week, and each week night of next week. Everyone is invited, regardless of race, creed or colour, Mr. Olson said.

No, she didn't have to sell the car
When a man dies, his widow is confronted with the responsibility of looking after the family. There are so many necessary expenses . . . so many good things she's used to, like the family car.
This widow didn't have to sell the car. Her husband took a realistic approach to life insurance protection. He carried enough to cover any eventuality.
Carrying such protection is not a burden when you select the company that offers family protection at low net cost. That's The Mutual Life of Canada—the company with the outstanding dividend record.
