ULSTER'S PETITION TO KING GEORGE.

The Ulsterites, with the Unionists back of them, seem to be a little behind the times in their petition to King George, referred to in our London despatches of yesterday. The right of petition to the King has never been abrogated, nor have his sovereign rights in the premises. But customs change, and in Great Britain its laws keep pace with the customs and are based, as Tennyson tells us, "Upon precedent on precedent." The demand of the Unionists that the sovereign veto legislation passed by parliament is atrophied by disuse. It is inconceivable that the King should contemplate a step which might lead to an apparent disagreement with a majority of his people. The first principle of the unwritten constitution of Great Britain is that the King acts solely on the advice of his ministers.

CANADA MAY BE INVOLVED IN WAR.

Right cleverly does Editor Scott Bone, of the Seattle P.-I., reprimand the Canadian constabulary for breaking in upon that American game of poker at Coaticook the other morning. It was a bit of impertinence that the poker playing American is not likely to forget, and it may be depended upon that some reprisals will follow on first occasion. The P.-I. editor-in-chief had this to say:

"Just as Coaticook had arrived at the happy condition of seeing its name on the front page every day, here comes this poker incident to put a dent in the popularity earned by the Quebec village. Coaticook has received a setback in American esteem from which it may never recover. Putting William Travers Jerome in the Coaticook cooler does not harass the hairstrung American sensibilities nearly so much as to have a Canadian constable protrude his presence into an American institution and interrupt with heavy shoes the harvest on a flush or a king full.

Canada may trample on the flag and get away with it, but it would be well to point out that our brothers across the northern border can go too far. We are tolerant, good natured people. Britishers come over here demanding their morning tub and otherwise deporting themselves in an eccentric manner without public criticism. They have even played cricket over here unmolested, if not in actual peace; but when a British subject attempts to deny an American citizen the right to take home the increment of a pat hand the situation assumes the dimensions of a whipsaw.

In the event of war with Mexico, a Chicago paper wishes to know if Secretary Bryan would deliver lectures between battles.

A New York divine says no woman who wears a slit skirt in this world will ever enter heaven. Angels are usually pictured as attired only in a thin cloud and a pair of wings.

Babylon burgeoned and burst; Troy towered and tottered; Greece gloried and gasped; Rome rose and receded. Sherbrooke's fame has come with the suddenness of the sun breaking through a cloud; it may depart with the celebrity of the lightning's flash.

LATEST RELIABLE NEWS FROM THE NEW SHUSHANA DIGGINGS

MARK HEALEY WRITES THAT IT IS THE BEST MINERALIZED
COUNTRY HE EVER SAW AND THAT IT LOOKS LIKE A BIG CAMP.

Writing to an intimate friend, M. H. Healey says that the Shushana district is the greatest prospect that he has ever visited. The letter was written at Blackburn and was mailed from McCarthy, Alaska, on August 22. Healey says in his letter:

"I arrived in McCarthy a day or two ago from the diggings, after a hard trip. The district is all right as far as I can see. There are Bonanza, Gold Run, Glacier and Eldorado creeks and several small tributaries that prospect well, or well enough to pay.

"It is the best mineralized country that I have ever seen, and it looks to me as though it would make a big camp. There is a possible belt sixty miles long and forty miles wide, in which a prospect can be obtained. Remember, this is not all pay creek. Some streams in this belt pan gold that shows you how extensive a gold belt this will be.

"There is no grub in the country and it is impossible to buy any. We were compelled to pay $1 a pound for grub to come out on, but at that price all we could get was some flour.

"I staked on a pup butting into No. 11 above the discovery. It looks like a good location. Good prospects are being found on No. 10 and No. 11 creek claims. "A great many men have rushed into the district and staked claims, and on account of no grub were compelled to leave without doing the necessary work to hold, so in that case all of this ground will be open for relocation in ninety days. I am satisfied that there will be some new discoveries made this winter. It looks to me, from the formation, that it will be a big camp."

NOT LOOKING TOWARD BINDING ALLIANCE WITH UNITED STATES

BRITISH GOVERNMENT POLICY AS SET FORTH IN LORD HALDANE'S SPEECH SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN MISINTERPRETED

London, Sept. 8.—Not a little perplexity has been caused by the announcement that Lord Haldane's Montreal address embodied the official policy of His Majesty's Government and was approved, line by line, by Sir Edward Grey. Lord Haldane apparently handed the full text of his speech to the English journals before he left England, and it was printed extensively and accepted as the more or less academic talk of a brilliant student and jurist to an audience of his own profession. Now, however, that they have begun to regard the speech as a formal pronouncement of British policy, Britishers have begun to question and are wondering whether the British ministry means to prepare the way for binding alliances. This is how the speech is being read on the continent, but inquiry in authoritative circles shows that the ministry has no such intention.

There is reason to believe that formal proposals of this kind would encounter a polite rebuff at Washington and would, moreover, provoke, rather than allay, the suspicion of Germany and other European countries, whose journals suspect Lord Haldane's purpose is the further isolation of Germany and the defeat of her naval and commercial ambitions. Moreover, Britain's binding alliance with Japan is hardly reconcilable with an Anglo-American compact while the Californian immigration difficulty is still acute.

Appreciation of these and other obstacles and a desire to offend no American susceptibilities, probably explain the curious reticence of the London and provincial press. The Standard is the only journal which discusses the entirely new situation created by Lord Haldane's announcement. Every other journal keeps silent. The Standard says:

"If the government think to bring about an Anglo-American alliance, they are too sanguine and distinctly premature. After all, Americans and Englishmen understand each other as no other people can, and the closer we draw together without a formal bond, the better for all of us and the world generally. We can use a freedom in our intercourse that would be perilous elsewhere and can criticize each other without offence."

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY

What Prince Rupert Fair Means in Advertising Country.

The forthcoming agricultural and industrial exhibition, to take place at Prince Rupert next month, notice of which appears in this issue of the Courier, has a greater significance than many persons would perhaps imagine. Too many people have an altogether wrong impression of British Columbia, and this exhibition will demonstrate to these people the vast resources of this portion of the province in a manner which is inimitable by any other mode of advertising. THE MILLIONAIRE'S LAMENT.

I envy not the poet;
I envy not the sage;
I'd not be—if I knew it!—
The earner of a wage.
I would not be a scholar,
Nor yet a millionaire—
Why should I chase the dollar?
'Tis but for life I care.

One thing I wish I could be—
A noble, upright youth;
A boy scout then I would be,
And always tell the truth!
With him that task was easy,
A noble lad and leal;
Unless his shirt were greasy
He'd have naught to conceal!

A boy scout he would be, then,
And just a few years old;
A brave and honest heathen,
With scorn of lies and gold.
To be young, strong and healthy
Would suit my mood of late,
For, though men call me wealthy,
I'm also sixty-eight!
