BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

Theory Explained on One Over One; Mr. Meek Makes 4 Heart Contract

Those extremists who believe in one over one response on any four-card suit, no matter how weak, would have responded with a bid of one spade on Mr. Dale's hand. Their theory is that partner might have four spades, too, in which case spades would be a good playable trump suit.

But there are disadvantages. In my opinion, when you hold a suit as weak as four to the eight spot, it will not usually turn out to be your side's best trump suit, unless partner himself can and does bid it. True, when you bid a weak suit, partner without as many as four cards in the suit. But he can properly give you a single raise with only three to the queen or king, in which event you will be sorry you brought up the subject.

And there is also the prospect of partner barging into three no trump, counting on your (reasonably enough) to have at least a stopper in your bid suit. When the opponents rattle off five or six tricks in your suit, partner's reaction will be somewhat grim.

Mr. Dale made the sensible response of one no trump in today's deal and a final contract of four hearts was reached.

Many optimistic players would go set at this contract, but it was made to order for Mr. Meek. He expects the worst on every hand and this time he got it. But he was prepared.

The queen of diamonds was opened and won by the ace in dummy. The careless (although admittedly normal) play is to start trumps at once and if you do that, you're through.

Not Mr. Meek. He counted on the opposing trumps being divided five in one hand and none in the other. At trick two he ruffed a diamond in his hand. He cashed the king up trumps, led to dummy's ace of trumps, returned dummy's last diamond and ruffed it. He then laid down his two remaining high trumps, the ace and king of spades and the ace of clubs for 10 tricks.

Agreement

Pineau and Dulles apparently held off in announcing their agreement on the plan to let French emotion cool off. By saying they are "seeking a procedure" they avoided any hot criticism in the French Parliament which might knock the new Gaillard government out of office.

SCIENTIFIC POOL

Pineau also proposed a pooling of scientific resources among NATO nations

"One of the reasons for the success of Soviet science recently," Pineau told reporters, "has been that Soviet scientists are working together for a definite purpose."

He suggested that Western scientists do likewise, making available to all qualified scientists throughout the West whatever facilities exist, no matter what country has them.

Meanwhile, in Paris, the permanent council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization discussed the controversial Tunisian arms affair for the second time today without reaching any final conclusions.

The council, made up of representatives from the 15 NATO nations, decided to take up the issue again early next week, probably Tuesday.

In London, British and American leaders have decided to seek early heart-to-heart talks with France over the future of rebel-torn Algeria, informed Allied diplomats reported today.

May Retire

MONTREAL (CP)—President Leo Dandurand of Montreal Alouettes said Tuesday he will retire as president of the Big Four football club next March.

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — Nino Valdes, 215, Havana, knocked out Jeff Dyer, 210, Springfield, Mass., (10.)

Fulton Upholds Jurisdiction Of Commission

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's chief law officer said Tuesday that in his opinion the royal commission inquiry into corruption allegations against former British Columbia Lands Minister Robert Sommers is constitutional.

Alfred Bull, counsel for one of six firms named in terms of reference given commissioner Gordon Sloan by the B.C. cabinet, challenged the commission's jurisdiction at its opening hearing last week.

He claimed that the matter under investigation is beyond the jurisdiction of the province, and said he would apply for an injunction to block further proceedings.

The injunction application has not yet been filed.

Justice Minister Fulton told a press conference Tuesday that the provincial government has, "so far as I see it," full power to investigate its own affairs.

Mr. Fulton added he "didn't want to get into a legal controversy with Mr. Bull."

LAST NIGHT'S FIGHTS

MONTREAL (AP)—Gabby Paliotti, 124½ Montreal, knocked out Frank Supplee, 122, New York, (3.)

B.C. Briefs

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 42-year-old Vancouver golf club manager plunged to his death from the Oak Street bridge in South Vancouver Tuesday.

He was Jack Chambers, manager of the Point Grey Golf and Country Club, the father of three children.

VICTORIA (CP)—Fourteen new brands of whisky, gin, rum, wine and miscellaneous liquers were added to B.C. Liquor Control Board stocks Tuesday.

No brands of vodka were included in the list, despite growing demand for the product.

Officials of the liquor board said the additions were made because of demand.

Outdoors

In a few instances a showing of wolf has promptly been attended by small scale work by Warden Cliff Walker.

In general it appears that we are in for happy outdoors times, while the trapper (as is usual in prosperous periods) will not get such good prices for his furs, meantime the furbearers are breeding up to high populations. Lots of mink along the coast, but price down to $9.00 to $12.00 and Marty found the same story right across the continent to New York State. The need for a local guide with a boat remains, anybody interested? Contact yours truly.
