HEALTH HORIZONS

Minor Ailments Plague Heart Patients

A medical problem that takes the form of a common ailment for you, can take the life of a person who is suffering from a heart condition. How to prevent these minor problems from becoming major hazards to heart patients are the subject of intense investigation by clinicians throughout the nation.

A single meal sufficiently rich in fat content, one of these clinicians theorizes, could precipitate a heart attack in an older person with atherosclerosis (a condition where the arteries are partially clogged with a fatty substance). The researcher, from the University of Minnesota Hospital, says that after eating a rich meal the atherosclerotic person would not be able to clear the resultant fat from the blood stream quickly enough. This raises the chance of formation of blood clots that could bring on a heart attack.

Common constipation is another "potentially dangerous situation" to a cardiac patient because of its effect on the circulatory system. Dr. Norman Shaftel of Kings County (N.Y.) Medical Center reports that this condition produces straining by the patient of an intensity and duration that significantly raises the blood pressure to dangerous levels.

To prevent this situation, Dr. Shaftel tested Senokot, a standardized preparation derived from the Egyptian senna plant. Senokot was highly effective in correcting constipation and restoring normal bowel functioning, he found, reducing much of the need to strain, and thereby keeping blood pressure at safer levels.

On the mental side, Dr. Louis A. Selverstone of Tufts University, says that reducing emotional strain may even be a major factor in helping some patients with heart conditions. In many people, he said, worry and fear concerning heart trouble may produce more disability than the disease itself.

With physicians keeping a close check, the major hazards these minor ailments may cause can be alleviated allowing the cardiac patient to live a longer, fruitful life.

BUSS STOP—Clad in a jazzy leopard skin coat, shapely French actress Brigite Bardot has her hand kissed in old-fashioned style by actor Gerard Philippe. They were among the many screen celebrities attending the premiere of the movie, "Montparnasse 19," in Paris.

DOTES ON DINOSAURS—A lad who is probably the nation's youngest lecturer on prehistoric life, seven-year-old David McAllan examines part of his dinosaur model collection in Amityville, N.Y. The youngster, who became interested in the subject while in the hospital recovering from an operation, has purchased 20 dinosaur models with his 25-cent-a-week allowance, and browsed in every book on prehistoric life in the local library. David often is asked to lecture before other classes at his school and he illustrates his talks with his miniature dinosaur collection.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Your failure to come over an adverse overcall doesn't mean you are barred from the bidding forever. In today's deal Mr. Dale could find no good bid after Mr. Abel overcalled with two hearts. He didn't have adequate trump support for his partner's spades and he was far from strong enough to bid three clubs or two no trump.

He might have taken a shot at doubling two hearts but that would have been extremely risky. All in all, his best action was to pass and await developments even though it appeared that his side had an edge in high card strength. If his partner could not find a second bid, then it was practically certain that there was no game in the North-South cards.

Looking at it the other way around, if Mr. Dale had put in a bid on the first round, Mr. Meek would have been justified in expecting more. And he might have bid the hand overboard.

When Mr. Meek bid three diamonds on the second round Mr. Dale swung into action. He did not make the mistake of showing mere preference for spades or of raising the diamonds to four. He knew a lot more now than he knew at the beginning. He knew Mr. Meek's spade suit was at least five long, that Mr. Meek's hand was well above a minimum and that hi sown ace and two queens were fitting cards. No reason to be subtle. Mr. Dale put the hand in four spades.

Mr. Abel opened the king of hearts and continued with the ace, which Mr. Meek ruffed. A small trump was led to the queen and Mr. Meek obviously didn't like the looks of Mr. Abel's ten spot. With typical caution, he abandoned the trump suit and started leading diamonds. Mrs. Keen ruffed the third diamond and returned the queen of hearts.

Mr. Meek refused to ruff. He merely discarded his losing club. Now another heart lead could be ruffed on the board, preserving Mr. Meek's own trump length. Mrs. Keen shifted to a club and Mr. Meek won with the ace. He then picked up the remaining trumps and spread the hand for four-odd.

Dodgers cut roster

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles Dodgers yesterday sent three young pitchers and an outfielder to their farm system.

Lefthanded pitcher Jackie Collum was assigned to Montreal Royals, righthander Ron Negary was assigned to St. Paul and righthander Larry Sherry was optioned to Spokane. Outfielder Don Demeter was optioned to St. Paul.

The cuts left the Dodgers with 26 players on their roster. They must be down to 25 by May 15.

Alouettes sign import halfback

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes Monday night announced the signing of Rogers Hampton, described as a fleet-footed, pass-catching halfback from McNeese Stage College in Lake Charles, La.

Hampton played service football in the U.S. before going to college. He is 24 years old, weighs 180 pounds and is five feet, nine inches tall.

The African Gold Coast frist became known through Portuguese navigators in the 14th century.
