Trip-Tips

(answers to your travel and vacation questions)
By Patricia Benton
Noted Travel Expert

This winter and spring will see the Caribbean come into its own as a major tourist area for the U. S. tourist. A million and a quarter sun-sand-and-sea lovers will spend an estimated $139,000,000 in the West Indies on hotel accommodations, food, sports, entertainment and shopping, according to the American Express Travel Survey and Forecast.

To help the traveler touring these exotic islands of the Western Hemisphere I have gone to the individual tourist board offices in the U. S. of such islands as Nassau, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, Cuba, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Martinique, Trinidad, Tobago and others plus the over-all authority, the Caribbean Tourist Assn., which represents 25 islands for specific information relative to clothes, customs, cruises, costs, languages spoken, lodgings and the like.

Below, in question-and-answer form will be found practical answers to practical questions asked by men and women, young and old, about the mechanics of movements. How much does it cost, can I finance my trip on credit, is formal dress required, what are the sports facilities offered, should I go by air, or by ship and the like?

Q: Is it necessary that I speak the language of the island, French in Martinique, Spanish in the Dominican Republic, to make my wants known?

A: No. English is the universal "second language" in all parts of the Caribbean. All hotel owners, shopkeepers, transportation people and many natives speak English—and well.

Q: What should I wear? Is there any particular type of clothing a woman or man should take? And does "clothing choice" vary with the season?

A: Light weight summer clothing is recommended throughout the Caribbean. Ladies should pack a light wrap for evening or mountain sight seeing while a light weight all weather coat would serve equally well for men. Regular street wear is adequate for most evening social functions. Slacks and shorts, while acceptable in resort hotels and beaches, are not customary in Caribbean cities.

Q: Is it possible to pay for my trip on a credit basis?

A: Yes, indeed. According to American Express more and more travelers are financing their vacations on a time payment basis. The company reports that an ever increasing amount of its travel revenue stems from customers paying for all or part of their vacation on this basis.

Q: How do I get there? Which is the best way to go, via air, or by ship?

A: Both air and sea are available. The answer to this question must be found in the individual traveler's time available, personal preference. A majority of the tourists go by air because of speed and greater frequency of schedule although many tourists take the cruises and package tours offered by the steamship lines which service the area.

Q: Is it advisable that I have advance hotel reservations, particularly if I make my trip in the "off season"?

A: Yes, according to the American Express Travel Service. This major world-wide travel organization recently made an exhaustive survey of the Caribbean area and discovered the Islands are fast becoming a "year-round" vacation land. Travel to the Caribbean has increased an overall 48.5 during the past five years. Advance hotel and land cruise reservations are advised. These reservations can be made through your Travel Agent or through any American Express office.

MUSH!—"Get a move on seems to be the sentiment of two-year-old Gurl Christina Shore, who's all set for a day of skiing at Heavenly Valley, Calif. But her low-slung pet, Fritz, seems to be dogtired of the whole thing as he sniffs suspiciously at an oversize snowball.

Campus Asset

VANCOUVER (CP)—The $200,000 St. Andrew's Hall being erected by the Presbyterian Church in Canada to be affiliated with the University of British Columbia is expected to be read in June. Now being built on the UBC campus, it will include a chapel, dining area and dormitory.
