Blue skies Monday needed for concert

The weatherman will be very popular in Prince Rupert Monday if he provides the city with clear and sunny skies.

An outstanding program of music designed for light outdoor listening, and a famous RCMP band to play it on the green Provincial Court House grounds, will present an evening of top-notch entertainment, providing it doesn't rain.

However, should it be necessary, the concert, to be presented by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Band at 8 p.m. Monday will still be held but in HMCS Chatham Drill hall.

For the first time the Canadian musicians are touring British Columbia which concludes here Monday following performances since July 21 in 30 B.C. centres.

It is only on rare occasions that the band performs away from the headquarters of the force in Ottawa and is here in co-operation with the B.C. Centennial committee and the local Centennial committee.

From the band's large library of music, Inspector E. J. Lydall, supervisor of music for the RCMP, will conduct his concert in three parts.

Introductory numbers are "Fanfare" by Fleming; "The Song of British Columbia" by Carmack and "RCMP Regimental March" by O'Neill.

There will be excerpts from symphonic works, selections from opera, operetta and Broadway musicals. Inspector Lydall announced that he has added a generous sprinkling of waltzes and marches, some modern and light popular favorites and here, and there, a band novelty.

Renditions of lovely folk song music will be played on the program, rounded out with featured solos from the band's cornet trio, cornet and trombone soloists, together with a bass-baritone vocalist.

Weather permitting the band will present a marching ceremony as a separate presentation on Third Avenue between Third and Fourth Street, also on Monday, at 5 p.m.

The world-famous RCMP Musical ride will be staged in Prince Rupert, August 30.

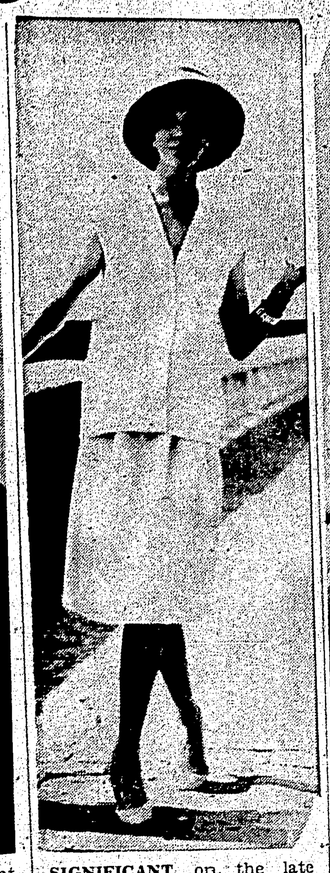
Woollens highlight late summer fashions

CARDIGAN SUITS in wool combine practically with the height of fashion. Wonderfully packable and wrinkle shedding they are ideal for travel. Bitter chocolate and warm beige on a neutral ground mark this suit with its all-round pleated skirt. Other details are deep, turned-back cuffs on the three-quarter sleeves, vertical pockets on each side of the front and the wide edging in which the stripes are used horizontally.
(By Jacqueline Monnin, Paris.)



SIGNIFICANT on the late Summer fashion scene are casually comfortable cardigan suits in wool. This is an openwork white wool lace tweed. The loose jacket is sleeveless and has a pocket low at each side of the front.

A STYLISH SUIT from Paris that could easily be duplicated by the woman who makes her own clothes. The jacket and skirt are in different knitted wool fabrics but are the same colour—here, pale turquoise. The jacket, in a honeycomb wool knit has its collar and front edgings in the finely-knit fabric of the straight skirt. All that is involved for the home sewer is to make a straight skirt in a firm wool fabric, knit a matching boxy jacket and trim it with the skirt fabric.

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS
—by Byrne Hope Sanders

MONTREAL, Aug. 21st — Remember the old fable about the grasshopper and the ant? While the foolish grasshopper spent the summer chirping merrily, the industrious ant stored up provisions for the winter. Then when the first icy blasts swept the landscape, you know who was in a pretty pickle! I apply the moral to many things . . . yes, even to fashions. For instance, I'm providing for my new winter suit now . . . in my "Fashion Account" at the BANK OF MONTREAL. It takes just a little determination to set aside a few dollars each pay-day. It's surprising how quickly regular deposits mount up. Why not open your "Fashion Account" at the B of M this pay-day?

THE REASON I enjoy making jam is because my family enjoys eating it! So—soon I'll be having a jam session with peaches, plums and pears. My jam (and jelly too!) always turns out right without guesswork because I follow the CERTO method. Certo is pectin, the natural jelling substance found in fruit. The Certo people select the finest pectin-rich fruit, then extract, refine and concentrate it to give you perfect performance. With Certo, you get up to 50% more glasses because you don't boil the juice away. You keep the true color and flavor too. This failure-proof method is explained in the booklet that comes with Certo. All the recipes are tested and approved in General Foods Kitchens. You can't go wrong!

THE DEEP DEVOTION OUR DOGS GIVE US deserves the best care, in return. And that, to my way of thinking, means DR. BALLARD'S CHAMPION DOG FOOD . . . because it's a veterinary diet — including all the nutrients any dog needs. Every tin has a constant uniformity and quality, which means a balanced nourishment, always. You'll find your pet shows new interest in his food when it's Dr. Ballard's . . . and you can vary the flavor with Chicken, Liver and Regular. Do get Dr. Ballard's for your devoted friend, this week — and watch him thrive on it, with a shiny coat, bright eyes, good digestion and an abounding zest for fun!

Shortage of teachers "old problem" in city

The present teacher shortage in Prince Rupert is not unique for this city, the Rotary club was told yesterday at its weekly luncheon meeting.

Addressing the members, R. F. Lucas, principal of Booth Memorial High School, said that even during the 1930's when there were more teachers available in British Columbia than there were positions, there still was a high rate of resignation here.

Mr. Lucas said that he felt the geographical location of the city had a great deal to do with the shortage.

"We can't escape the fact that Prince Rupert is isolated," he said.

"There are two aspects to the problem of adequately staffing our local high school."

"First we have to recruit qualified competent teachers and then, having induced them to come to Prince Rupert, we must try to retain them.

He said that the school was failing in both regards. Of 34 teachers on the staff last year, four did not hold a teaching certificate of any kind acceptable to the department. Another 14 held elementary certificates and only 16 were adequately qualified for secondary school positions, Mr. Lucas said.

The principal said that to date this term, there were two teachers accepted with no teacher training and that there were three positions still to be filled without any applications on hand.

"There will only be six teachers on staff this September who have taught at Booth Memorial High School for more than two consecutive years. The turnover was 41 per cent this year," he said.

Mr. Lucas suggested that these problems could be helped by continuing to develop projects such as the museum, library, Civic Centre, swimming pool, parks, and the Concert Society.

"Adequate housing is also essential for retaining a good teacher." It might be necessary to have accomodations for teachers controlled by the School Board, Mr. Lucas said.

Mr. Lucas also pointed out that the atmosphere of the school was important. While it depends partly on internal school organization, a healthy atmosphere still stems from attitudes of parents and citizens, he said.

"Salaries have a lot to do with the calibre of teachers we get here. And if we can't hold our teachers, at least they should be good teachers, while they are here," he said.

On the brighter side, Mr. Lucas said that he was pleased to report that the school did meet with some small measure of higher academic standards this past year.

He said that results were better in all but two subjects and passing rose from 68 per cent to 73 per cent.

"The standard depends largely on the climate of the opinion in the community. And the community which values a scholarship will probably get better students," Mr. Lucas said.

Fire chief receives gold badge

A 25-year service gold lapel and lifetime honorary membership badge last night was presented to City Fire Chief E. W. Becker by Local 550 of International Association of Firefighters.

In service since 1933 in Prince Rupert, Chief Becker was the president of the Local when it was chartered in 1938. On behalf of the group, life president Vernon K. Wager made the presentation.

Home for the summer was Miss Sonja Hansen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hansen, 212 Eighth Avenue East. She leaves Sunday by plane via Terrace en route to Port Coquitlam where she is teaching school.

PERSONALS

Mrs. C. B. Thomson and her three children Mary Ellen, Dorothy and Arne of Seattle arrived last Saturday by train for a 10-day holiday as guests of her mother Mrs. M. P. McCaffery, 445 Fourth Avenue West.

P. W. Shatford, manager of Tom-Boy store, leaves Monday by Canadian Pacific Airlines plane for Vancouver where he will join his wife and family. They will return to Prince Rupert within a week to make their home here.

Colorado visitor Mrs. Gervis Hoofnagle leaves Monday by CPA plane following a three-week holiday in the city with her aunt, Mrs. J. H. Thompson, 1809 Graham Avenue.

George Rodgers, 667 Fourth Avenue East, leaves Monday by plane for Vancouver where he will join his wife who left this week for a holiday in Vancouver.

Queen Charlotte City visitors Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kraft and their son Alfred leave Monday by plane for their home, following a visit in the city. With them will be Mrs. Freida Anderson of Nelson, B.C., who will spend an extended holiday with the Kraft family.

THE CENTRE SCHOOL OF DANCING instructor W. E. "Buddy" Taft pictured in last year's "Sweethearts on Parade of 1958" will not be returning to Prince Rupert. The popular dancing director, who for five years has held classes for more than 200 pupils, is making his home in Penticton. He is discounting his dancing career and plans to go into business for himself.
