BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Mr. Muzzy had played the hand preceding this one — an easy contract that should have been made, but wasn't.

The bidding:

5 ♦	Pass	6 ♠	All Pass

Mr. Champion, who never makes an error (he never admitted one, anyway), had commented, "You never make any inferences from the fall of the cards, Muzzy. In fact you pay absolutely no attention to what your opponents play."

This remark was put to him in a somewhat embarrassing position after the play of today's deal.

The queen of spades was opened and the defenders quickly collected three tricks in that suit. At trick four the shift was to a diamond and Mr. Champion won on the board with the king.

Clearly, the only remaining problem was how to avoid the loss of a trump trick. Mr. Champion gave a lot of thought to the possible distribution of the outstanding hearts. He pictured himself as the hero in making one of his favorite plays. This dream involved leading the deuce of hearts from dummy and finessed the queen.

The queen would hold and he would then go to the board with the ace of clubs and lead the jack of hearts. That would be a killing play, simultaneously trapping the lone 10 on his left and guarded king on his right.

But this was all a waste of time. When the deuce of hearts was led at trick five, Mr. Dale promptly played the king.

Unlike Mr. Muzzy, Mr. Champion does pay attention to what the defenders play. If Mr. Dale had started with the lone king of hearts, then Mr. Masters had three to the ten left in his hand. So, after winning with the ace of hearts, Mr. Champion led a small heart and finessed dummy's nine. Mr. Dale won the setting trick with the ten spot.

There was dead silence for a moment. Then Mr. Muzzy asked, "Is this a typical example of what happens when you pay attention to what the opponents play?" He turned to Mr. Dale and continued, "He's making inferences while you're singleton tens. Nuts."

Terrace Wins Third Money

Terrace baseball team of the Prince Rupert District baseball league, bolstered by two Prince Rupert players, Joe Giordano and Bill Sunberg, won third place in a ball tourney at Quesnel over the Labor Day weekend.

Kelowna won the tournament with three straight wins and collected $1,000. The Okanagan squad beat Terrace twice, 8-1 and 4-3 and trimmed Summerland 12-8 in the finals. Second place money of $500 was won by Prince George.

Terrace, behind the pitching of Neil Sauve beat Prince George 9-6 and Willow River 7-1. The Terrace squad split $300 for third place and Willow River got $200 for fourth spot.

Sauve won a special $50 prize for pitching the best game, a two-hitter against Willow River. Ray Scott was the loser of the two games against Kelowna.

Sunberg hit six safeties in 13 official times at bat and Giordano hit 5 for 13 for Terrace.

It is hoped that next year Prince Rupert can enter a team.
