ALL SPEAK ENTHUSIASTICALLY ABOUT CHISANA'S GOLD CAMP

WINTER FREIGHTING ALREADY STARTED OVER GOOD TRAIL WITH COMFORTABLE ROADHOUSES—WHITEHORSE WILL BE BUSY PLACE THIS WINTER.

Arrivals from the north on the Princess Sophia on Saturday state that sleighing has already begun from Whitehorse to the new Chisana diggings and that considerable freighting is already on the trail. If that is so there is undoubtedly freighting from Dawson by the White River route and this means that the Chisana will be a good winter camp. Mr. Pedlar of Whitehorse, on the way out to select goods for his firm, says it will undoubtedly grow to be a large camp by the opening of the year, as he knows of so many who are outfitting and ready to go in.

snow packs; that the company has established comfortable road-houses every twenty to thirty miles along the trail and have made every arrangement for doing a very large business. "It means a great increase in the activity of Whitehorse," observed Mr. Pedlar, "and our next is sure to be a banner season. What with our own copper mines so rapidly increasing in production and shipping and the new shippers we shall have from Windy Arm and Atlin, Whitehorse will be a busy place. As to Wolf Creek, not much can be said as yet because little development has been done, but it is promising."

Barney McGee, who gave a producing creek in Atlin his family name, was also a passenger on the Sophia and said that the Atlin camp never looked more promising. Mr. Drury, another merchant of Whitehorse, said he expected a tremendous trade with Chisana would develop during the winter.

AN AVALANCHE NEAR VALDEZ GOT FOUR MEN IN ITS ICY GRIP

ONE OF THEM WAS KILLED AND OTHERS SUFFERED TERRIBLY FROM BRUISES AND EXPOSURE BUT ARE RECOVERING

Valdez, Nov. 13.—Robert Martin was killed and John Connelly, Warren Nelson and E. S. Bruner are suffering from exposure and bruises as the result of a snow-slide a few days ago on the Big Four mining claims on Mineral Creek. Bruner, Nelson, Connelly and Martin were overwhelmed in their tent by the avalanche of snow that came down upon them and carried them and their tent to within ten feet of a 100-foot precipice. Bruner managed to work himself loose by using a part of a whisky flask, that was near, as a knife. With his hands badly cut and not a shred of clothing on him he walked a quarter of a mile to the tunnel and secured a shovel, with which he dug out Warren Nelson after the latter had been pinned down three and a half hours. Bruner and Nelson continued the work of rescue until John Connelly, another partner, was released. He had been buried for seven and a half hours before he was rescued but he was still alive. Martin's body was not found until the next day. It was crushed. The accident occurred at an elevation of 5000 feet.

A few more of such fiery harangues as the one he made and there can be little doubt of the success of his threat of a general strike being declared throughout the United Kingdom. John Redmond, the Irish leader in the House, and his followers fear for Home Rule as a result of the new move. Sympathy for Irish labor threatens to force the labor party of Britain out of the Liberal coalition. The Unionist hopes are running high in consequence. #### "NE TEMERE" DECREE DISCUSSED PASTOR DENOUNCES RAFFLES

REV. F. W. KERR SAYS THE LAW SHOULD TAKE AWAY FROM CATHOLIC CHURCH RIGHT TO PERFORM MARRIAGE CEREMONY

The announcement that Rev. F. W. Kerr, Presbyterian pastor, would discuss the "Ne Temere" decree attracted a large gathering at the Empress Theatre last night. In opening his address the reverend gentleman explained that any criticisms that he might make of the Catholic church would be made in the most friendly way but he felt he would be shirking his duty as a Christian if he did not raise his voice against certain matters. He drew attention to the apparent harmony that prevails in Canada between Catholics and Protestants. That the fires of religious controversy, however, have not been extinguished is shown by the difficulty in settling the question of Home Rule in Ireland, one of the most prominent issues before the public mind today. If there are bitter feelings between Catholics and Protestants in Canada, it is, the speaker said, the fault of the Roman Catholic church. Protestantism is referred to in the Catholic church one hundred times more frequently than Roman Catholicism in Protestant churches.

Coming to the "ne temere" decree Rev. Mr. Kerr explained that the term literally means "less rashly." The decree, issued by the Pope, first of all raises its voice against hasty and rash marriages. In doing this the preacher said the Pope had acted wisely and he too would advise those who became suddenly infatuated to wait. The large number of divorces are chiefly due to hasty marriages. In the second place the decree issued its voice against mixed marriages and the Presbyterian church joined with the Pope in advising against such. The "ne temere" decree, however, did not stop here. It went so far as to declare that marriages between a Protestant and a Catholic, unless performed by a Catholic priest, are null and void. "The law of the land," the preacher said, "has a right to step in and put a stop to such infamy. So long as the Catholic church continues to declare such marriages null and void, the law of the land should take away from the Catholic church the right to perform the marriage ceremony."

Referring to certain local matters, Rev. Mr. Kerr criticized the Catholic church for certain methods in raising money. "When a church will sell one thousand tickets for a doll," he said, "a practice that is outlawed, I do not find as much fault with the church as with the weak kneed Protestants who took part in such a proceeding." In concluding his address Rev. Mr. Kerr said that the work of the church should be to unify and solidify the home. The ne temere decree worked in the opposite direction.

about 225 pounds and Morris about 230 pounds. Each has had a battle with Gunboat Smith. Both bouts were unsatisfactory, inasmuch as they terminated without a decisive victory on the part of the contestants.

Willard in his bouts here made a very favorable impression with the fans. When a novice at the game and minus the elementary parts of boxing he fought to even honors with the late Luther McCarty. Since then he has won a number of battles in the west.
