MOVIE COLUMN

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Another great talent search is over: They've found Porgy's goat.

Samuel Goldwyn needed a very special animal for the goat who pulls the cart of the crippled Porgy in the film version of Porgy and Bess. It had to be strong enough to pull actor Sidney Poitier, have stage presence and not offend the other actors with its aroma.

Clarence Jones, who supplies animals for film makers, came up with five-year-old Mr. Faust, a husky, deodorized, talented goat.

Why the name? Because Mr. Faust butts like the devil, say the whimsical studio aides.

At any rate, the goat has a six-month contract and the use of a stand-in. Mr. Faust will be watched closely; no scenery chewing in a Goldwyn picture.

It's ironic that the factor that prolonged Deborah Kerr's marriage helped to sink it in the end. She and Tony Bartley faced problems after the war when she came here as a star. He had nothing to do for a year, since immigration restrictions stopped him from taking a job.

The situation of a famous wife and a non-working husband has always been a dangerous one in Hollywood. But then Bartley began to find his own success as a producer of TV films. The trouble was that his career kept him in Africa and England much of the time while Deborah was working here. Hence the drift in their marriage, once considered unbreakable.

Shelly Winters wonders where the money is coming from. Her husband, Anthony Franciosa, has been paid for 10 weeks on "The Naked Maja," though the picture hasn't even started yet. The same goes for Ava Gardner.

The delay is apparently to find a script that will please Ava.

Joanne Woodward and Paul Newman are beginning their first film together since their marriage — "Rally 'Round the Flag, Boys!" Oscar winner Joanne assured me there will be no fights—"because he's bigger."
