TRIP-TIPS

(answers to your travel and vacation questions)
By Patricia Benton
Noted Travel Expert

Everybody planning a trip—and who isn't these days—has questions about his or her travels. While many of the questions are similar, of course, it is surprising to discover the variety of problems which the average traveler feels may come up during the journey or in preparing for it.

It seemed to me, therefore, that much more helpful than generalized advice to the average traveler would be some of the questions which are asked most often by travelers planning their trips. To get the questions—and answers—I arranged to spend considerable time in various offices of the American Express Company, the world's foremost travel agency, and listen in as travel representatives interviewed clients.

Here are just a few of the questions, the answers to which would appear to be most helpful to anybody planning a trip. In succeeding columns, I will list additional questions and answers which, naturally, change to some extent on a seasonal basis. But only to some extent. The answers to these questions should be rewarding at any time of the year.

Q: Outside of economy, is there any advantage to traveling abroad during the so-called "thrift season"?

A: Yes, a very important one. The social and artistic seasons are at their height during the Fall and Winter. It's "off-season" for travelers but very much "on-season" for the places you'll visit.

Q: What kind of European trip would you suggest for a girl traveling alone?

A: An escorted tour. You can join a group with special interests, if you prefer, like theater, music, art or photography. Also, an escorted tour is the easiest way for an unaccompanied girl to see the night-spots in a foreign city.

Q: I wasn't able to get away during the Summer. Where would you suggest my going for an inexpensive but different vacation now that Fall is here?

A: Bermuda. Rates are much, much cheaper now and the weather is still as lovely as ever. American Express now has a fabulous "package" that provides an all-expense paid week, including air transportation, luxurious hotel and meals, starting at only $140. This is probably the Fall season's best travel bargain.

Q: What is the best time of the year to visit Mexico or the Caribbean?

A: Times have changed. There is no "special time of the year" for visiting these places. It all depends on your individual tastes. You can have as much fun in these Southern climes in the Fall as in the Winter—and it will cost so much less. There are scores of luxury hotels with air-conditioning whose rates plummet after the main Winter season is over and stay way down until the end of December or even later. But Winter understandably is still the most popular time, so make your reservations now if you want to miss the snow and sleet for a few weeks.

At The CURLING CLUB

By BOB RUDDERHAM

When the curling draws finished Sunday night, all curling ceased until the bonspiel opens for the local rinks Friday morning. This gives us about four days and nights to get the ice into shape and as it is the usual practice to repaint the ice to make it look more attractive to the visiting curlers, we are going to need a large group out each night to wash and paint the ice once more. The club rooms can also stand a cleaning so if you have an evening or two this week, come on down and give us a hand.

We are expecting a larger entry than we have ever had before from the other towns and cities. During the meetings we had some time ago, we figured that we might expect about 20 rinks at the most from other points in the province but it looks like we are going to get more than that. It looks like a good bonspiel.

Alf Rivett and Cliff Ham have all the prizes purchased now and the lot makes an imposing array. The miniatures and prizes will be on display in the Esquire Shop on Sixth Street next week so if you get a chance, drop around and have a look in the show window. If you go in the evening and the window lights are on, you may need sunglasses to shield your eyes from the glitter.

The rink composed of Bert Field, Joe McKay, Joe Scott and Jack Lindsay returned from Prince George tired and weary but apparently they had a good time. They did not do too well and I apparently got my wires crossed about them being in the finals but a glance at their record says that they gave a good account of themselves. One of the things they would sooner forget however, is the seven-ender they had hung on them. Those things aren't supposed to happen but they do. The end starts to build up and there seems to be nothing you can do except swallow the lump in your throat and pray that you can get one of your rocks buried or that the other guy will miss one for a change. I get nightmares once in a while, the other guy has just scored an eight-ender and everything is stopped for photos and you have to stand around and wait. Must be hell. Then some goof comes up with a membership card of the Snake River Club of the Arctic Circle.

Get those entries in!! Tonight's the deadline.
