WINNING ORDER

LONDON (CP) — The Clyde Shipping Company has ordered a tug from a German firm because it can be built "quicker and cheaper" on a fixed contract of £80,000, and delivery is six months against 12 to 15 months in Britain. It is the first time the company, founded in 1815, has gone outside the United Kingdom for a new vessel.

Sommers

counts with disagreement on one.

Mr. Justice Wilson commended the jury for a tremendous job which he said probably would have stumped a third-year law student. He criticized the $6-a-day jury duty payment as "almost disgracefully inadequate" and in an unprecedented action announced:

"It is my intention to recommend to the government, who, I hope will give it sympathetic consideration . . . that you should, even if it requires a special statute, get a substantial monetary grant."

GOVERNMENT APPROVAL

In Victoria, Attorney-General Robert Bonner indicated the government will act on the jurist's recommendation.

Mr. Justice Wilson said he could not comment on the verdicts but "what you (the jurors) have done is sufficient to establish that the process of justice still functions in this country, that a Canadian jury can be trusted to deal with the most complicated evidence, the most difficult law and reach a decision."

He invited the jurors to his chambers before they left the courthouse "so that I can shake your hands and say goodbye."

The Crown alleged in a 20-count indictment that more than $16,000 was involved in the bribery-conspiracy and that thousands of dollars went to Sommers after he became minister in 1952.

The ex-minister resigned in 1956 after evidence had been laid before the attorney-general through former Pacific bookkeeper Charles W. Eversfield, who later became chief prosecution witness. Hundreds of documents Eversfield gathered from Pacific files before he left the firm in March, 1955, became the hard core of the Crown's evidence.

NOW IN JAIL

Sommers and Gray were taken into custody on their conviction and housed in city jail for the remainder of the trial.

Sommers' status as Social Credit member of the legislature for Rossland-Trail appeared unsettled following the verdicts.

Attorney-General Bonner said in Victoria Sommers still legally holds his seat. A study of obscure points of law indicated the charges concerned were technically misdemeanors and not felonies or infamous crimes, which would have resulted in automatic forfeit.

One report from Victoria said it appears the government expects Sommers' resignation.

Road rally November 16

Drivers will compete for three separate awards November 16 at the second Instrumental Road Rally sponsored by the newly-formed Road Safety Club, President Les Cawthorne said today.

The rally is set for 1:30 p.m. with the first car leaving at 2:00 p.m.

The local militia is supporting the club's theme "Planned driving is good driving" be entering a team to compete for the Inter Services Award. HMCS Chatham and Squadron 559 have been invited to take part.

The various city service clubs have been invited to enter two cars and assist the organizers' aims of encouraging safe driving practices. There will also be an award in the club's division.

The overall trophy will go to the entrant who completes the 40.3 mile course and three tests with the least loss of points.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Optimism in the bidding, to a reasonable degree, usually pays off. But in the play of the hand, the opposite is true. It is folly to look for every suit to break favorably. Until your contract is in the bag, be a pessimist. Expect the worst and try to prepare for it.

Many declarers would go set at today's four-spade contract. But not Mr. Meek, of course. He always takes the pessimistic view even when he doesn't need to.

After getting the nine of hearts opening, many players would feel a strong urge to let it run around to the jack. In the first place the jack might win the trick. And even if Mrs. Keen won with the king, there were a lot of losing diamonds in the closed hand, two of which could later be discarded on dummy's ace and queen of hearts.

Not Mr. Meek. He went up with the ace of hearts. He reasoned that Mr. Abel surely had six diamonds for his rebid at the three level, leaving Mrs. Keen with only one. If she won the first trick she would lead her singleton diamond and then ruff a diamond lead from Mr. Abel when he got in with the ace of trumps.

Mr. Meek

At trick two Mr. Meek led a spade and lost to the ace. Mr. Abel returned the eight of hearts and Mr. Meek had another crucial decision to make. If he ruffed, that would bring him down to three trumps.

This would pose no problem if the opposing trumps were divided, but what if one opponent had started with four trumps? In that case it would take Mr. Meek's last one to pick them up and when he let the enemy in with the ace of clubs they could run whatever hearts they had left.

Mr. Meek resisted the temptation to ruff the eight of hearts. He simply discarded a diamond. On came the deuce of hearts and this time he ruffed, picked up Mrs. Keen's three remaining trumps, led a diamonds and finessed the queen. Then he led the six of clubs to his king.

Mr. Abel won with the ace. His partner had two good hearts, but owing to Mr. Meek's cautiousness and foresight, there was no way to reach them. Mr. Abel had to lead to the dummy, where all of the card were good.

Magazine claims runner sought money in bank

NEW YORK (AP)—Sports Illustrated says Australia's record miler, Herb Elliott, decided to remain an amateur when American promoter Leo Leavitt failed to back up a $250,000 pro offer with money in the bank.

The weekly magazine said Wednesday Elliott and his father, Herb Elliott Sr., decided to end negotiations with Leavitt when the American didn't live up to an agreement to place $67,200 in escrow.

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP)—Four bodies remain in the crushed No. 2 colliery and they may be recovered today.

Seventy-four miners were killed in the tremendous underground upheaval in the coal mine Oct. 23. One hundred were rescued, 19 after long days and nights trapped underground, in the worst Canadian coal mining disaster since 88 men died at Stellarton, N.S., in the 1920s.

Curling Draws
