Tillamook to Ply Once More to Prince Rupert from Alaskan Ports with Headquarters at Ketchikan

VANCOUVER, June 7.— Power boat Tillamook, formerly operated between Prince Rupert and Alaskan points is being overhauled here prior to being again operated in the same trade but under different ownership. She has been sold to the Northland Steamship Company of Seattle and will make her headquarters at Ketchikan, plying to Prince Rupert. It is understood she will be fitted out with deisel engines so that she may be in a position to compete successfully.

The Tillamook several years ago brought large quantities of salmon to this port from the Alaskan canneries. Her operation was stopped when the law making it necessary for her to be owned in the United States was put into force. Then she was taken to Vancouver and tied up.

A tentative arrangement for the sale has been in force for some time but the purchase has just been concluded and the new owners now have possession of the craft. She will leave for the north just as soon as she is overhauled and will be ready to handle canned salmon and other freight. She will also, it is understood, carry a few passengers.

The Tillamook is a wooden vessel. She was built at North Bend, Oregon, and was secured by the Grand Trunk Pacific because she was under U.S. registry and could therefore call at several Alaskan ports on one trip. Then the change in the U.S. law made her useless for that purpose.

OPENING NEW RESTAURANT

Commodore Under Management of James Killas in Business Tomorrow at Noon

SPLENDIDLY EQUIPPED

The opening of the Commodore Ice Cream Parlor and Cafe on Third Avenue under the management of James Killas, tomorrow at noon will mark another milestone in the history of Prince Rupert's progressive business life. To say that the new cafe as beautifully fitted up is only to give a slight idea of what the interior really looks like. It is doubtful whether a more elegantly equipped or comfortable restaurant exists in the province.

The design has been carried out in dark and light blue furnishings. The tables, decorated with dark blue bird design, are covered with glass. There are 24 boxes giving a seating accommodation for 102 people which can be augmented with chairs giving an additional 24 seats. The walls are adorned with exquisite paintings of familiar northern scenes, the panels between the paintings being decorated with light blue marble finished paper. The lighting effects are extremely pretty. Four chandeliers are hung from the ceiling supplemented by individual post and box lights in each box.

Given Away

To mark the opening of the cafe tomorrow 700 knives, forks and spoons will be given away, one to every visitor entering the cafe.

Professor Pryce's string orchestra will give selections during the day and Mr. Killas extends a cordial invitation to everyone to call in and see the finished restaurnat.

Nothing has been left undone by the management to cater to the comfort and needs of customers. A ladies' room is situated on the main floor while the gentlemen's room is in the basement.

The Kitchen

The kitchen has been equipped in the most modern manner and will be in charge of Ed. Jose, head chef of the Good Eats Cafe, Vancouver, with five assistants. The waiting staff will comprise six persons. There are two ice boxes in the basement while a large McClary Chef range occupies the whole side of the kitchen.

The silverware and chinaware is of the very best and is all marked with the initials of the restaurant "C.C.C."

Local Work

The following local firms have executed the interior work of the new restaurant. Carpentry: Mitchell & Currie; electrical fixtures, Parkin Electric; painting, Silversides Bros.; upholstery, linoleum, etc.; Geo. D. Tite; plumbing, Walter Longwill; sheet metal, Steens Ltd.; plastering, John Bremner.

Evidence of Witnesses in Beryl G. Murder Case

VICTORIA, June 17. — A. M. Johnson, crown prosecutor, trained a heavy battery of twelve witnesses on Baker and Sowash during the first day of the trial of those men on a charge of murdering Captain Gillis on the power boat Beryl G.

Paul Stromkins, who was released from a similar charge Monday, did not appear in the witness stand.

The featuring testimony yesterday was that of Albert S. Clauson of Seattle, a rum runner, who testified that in conversation with Baker accused had said he had got certain liquor which both were engaged in running from Sidney and Moresby Island caches to Anacortes from "the old man and the boy."

Graphic pictures of life on Puget Sound's rum row were painted by American bootleggers and rum runners, who spoke from the witness box.

The crown has fifteen more witnesses to call.

Debate on Railway Rates Takes Place in House of Commons in Committee after 2nd Reading

OTTAWA, June 17.—The much heralded debate on railway freight rates opened in the House of Commons yesterday.

The bill, which is a government measure, gives statutory authority to the Board of Railway Commissioners to proceed with the equalization of railway freight rates, limited only by the Crow's Nest eastbound rates on grain and flour.

The second reading passed the House easily, there being no debate, but in committee of the whole the discussion was protracted. Robert Forke, leader of the Progressives, declared "The west wants the maximum rates fixed by agreement simply for the purpose of protecting itself from any exorbitant railway rates that it may be called upon to pay at any time."

H. H. Stevens of Vancouver centre thought the Crows Nest agreement obsolete. It should be abrogated and a free hand given the railway board to adjust rates.

J. L. Ladner, Vancouver south, criticized the bill as a "political affront to B.C."

Hon. George Graham, minister of railways, replying to Ladner, said that British Columbia would not be adversely affected when the readjustment of rates was made.

Rich Strike of Ore in Marmot River Mine is Financing Operations

STEWART, June 17.—A strike, equalled only in mining operations in this camp by the Premier, has occurred on the Porter-Idaho on Marmot River in a winze being sunk from the lower tunnel on a lenze of ore which last year yielded a gross smelter return of $205 per ton. This winze is down 60 feet and gives an average width of 12 inches of this high grade ore on the wall of a vein carrying a good grade of milling ore.

It is stated that the intention of the management is to drift both ways from the bottom of the winze and stope the high grade for immediate shipment. A safe estimate of the weight of this ore is seven cubic feet to the ton. More than 50 tons are already sorted and on the dump awaiting the pack train for shipment. It will commence moving down the hill on Monday, June 20.

Good headway is being made with the 300 foot crosscut tunnel which is now 180 feet in. This tunnel has for its object the cutting of an intersection of two veins at depth. One of these veins is the same as that upon which the winze is being sunk.

A car and rails have arrived for the tunnel developments which are such that the company will be able to attend to its further financing from ore shipments. Stock is off the market.

HEROIC RESCUE FROM DROWNING

Sampan Overturned at Hawaii and Man Swan Five Miles to Fetch Assistance

SHARK INFESTED WATERS

LAHANA ISLAND., Hawaii, June 17.—When their sampan overturned in the swift current off Molokai Island Sunday night fifteen of the sixteen occupants clung to the capsized craft in the shark infested waters, while the sixteenth member of the party, Eugene Dauvauchelle, 40 years of age, went for assistance.

Dauvauchelle swam five miles to Milokai Island, ran overland several miles and returned with a rescue party. He found ten of the survivors, who had been in the water for ten hours. Five were drowned, only two of the shark torn bodies being recovered.

The survivors arrived today.

VANCOUVER, June 17.—"With the greatest care we have checked up the story of Miss Barbara Orford, containing her so-called confession of the sensational events preceding the death of Janet Smith. He declined to discuss the matter further than this.

First Point Won for Wong Foon Sing in Habeas Corpus Proceedings at Vancouver

VANCOUVER, June 17.—Counsel for Wong Foon Sing, Chinese houseboy, held in Okalla prison awaiting trial on a charge of the murder of Janet Smith, nursemaid, won a point Tuesday afternoon in the habeas corpus application on behalf of accused in the Supreme Court when Chief Justice Hunter decided to review the evidence on which the Chinese prisoner was committed.

Following announcement of his decision of that phase of the application, the Chief Justice ordered an adjournment of the habeas corpus hearing until next Tuesday.

The hearing was featured by a battle between counsel for the crown and counsel for the accused regarding the right of the Chief Justice to consider the evidence at the preliminary hearing.

Dealing with the Crown's contention that he could not consider the evidence, the Chief Justice intimated that he could not accept that view.

Making Preparations For Big Business.

When the grain elevator is built we naturally expect to do a great deal more shipping business than is being done today. The railway will handle very much more freight than it is now handling and the company doubtless is getting ready for the big event.

There have been cases where railways have been caught napping, where no preparations have been made to meet coming movements and the result has been disastrous.

In the autumn the first Japanese liner is to call here on a trial trip and it is understood that if there is business the steamers will come here regularly. We wonder if efforts are being made by the railway to collect freight for these vessels. If the C.P.R. could collect enough freight and passengers, over ninety per cent of which originated at points east of Vancouver, to keep the Empresses running regularly, even before Vancouver was anything more than a small town, it ought to be easy for the Canadian National with their immense system to collect enough to keep the Japanese liners running out of this port. It would be interesting to know if any steps are being taken with this end in view.

Why Compete When Business is Here?

Apparently the Canadian National is making an effort to compete with the C.P.R. on its own ground, when here there is a virgin port equipped to handle the business without any opposition. Apparently the Nippon Yusen Kaisha is prepared to operate vessels here in conjunction with the railway company, to carry its silk through this port and to do a real transportation business. But nothing has been done so far. Now, however, the elevator is being built and there is a new opportunity to make this the Canadian National outlet, using Canadian National docks, paying no port dues and no switching charges to a rival concern.

The future of Prince Rupert seems to lie in a tieup with the Japanese lines. The Blue Funnel line has thrown in its lot with Vancouver. If there is real co-operation, the N.Y.K. can beat any of them out in point of time by using Prince Rupert. It might be a good thing for the Board of Trade to get into touch with the Japanese company and find out if possible under what conditions they would come here and then put it up to the railway company. What we need is a transpacific line of steamships plying to this port in order to make it really prosperous.

Curious Views Of Many People.

Many people have curious views. The fact is they do not agree with ours and therefore they are odd. If the views are similar to ours they are perfectly sane and orthodox.

There are in the world religious and irreligious people. There are good and bad, light and dark, radical and reactionary, flippant and stolid, humorous and serious. They are born that way and will remain that way more or less to the end of their lives. There is room for all and all seem to have a place. A wide tolerance is desirable so that all may enjoy life in their own way without let or hindrance as long as they do not interfere with their neighbors.

The difficulty is that so many people are intolerant. Religious people make life uncomfortable for those who are irreligious. Radicals try to bring about revolutions in order to make their ideas effective. Serious people abhor humor, whereas humorous people make all sorts of fun of those who are serious.

Because we are willing to admit freedom of thought or freedom of expression is no reason why we should be always rubbing shoulders or associating with those we dislike. We can live happily away from those who are distasteful and do it without being considered proud or aloof or stuckup.

Likes And Dislikes Natural To Many.

In electricity there are positive and negative poles. One attracts and the other repels. So in life we are attracted naturally to some people and repelled by others. We cannot help that. Because we do not enjoy being with people does not mean that they are not just as good as ourselves in every way. Perhaps they are much better.

It is never wise to try to live with someone that jars the nerves and annoys. It is easier to keep at a distance and save a lot of worry.

GLEE CLUB IS COMING MONDAY

Splendid Jazz Band and Side-Splitting Comic-Skits and Other Turns

"As good as anything in vaudeville" is one of the comments heard most often concerning the fourteeen-act vaudeville program to be given by the University of California Glee Club in the Westholme Theatre next Monday and Tuesday. The same type of show that has tickled audiences in Shanghai, made them roar in Scotland, guffaw in Manila and split their sides in Hong Kong on foreign tours of the Club, is expected to make a tremendous hit here, to say the least. A judicious mixture of Club singing, comic skits, instrumental solos and jazz-band playing, gives the program of the Berkeley Club a universal and irresistable appeal.

Quality rather than mere size has been the aim of C. R. 'Brick' Morse, director of the Glee Club. For this reason only twenty out of a Club of seventy-five and out of a University of 10,000 are selected to make this summer's trip. The group appearing here next week is nearly the same as the one which made itself famous on a tour through Europe and the United States last summer.

The California Glee Club is on an extended tour of the Pacific Northwest which will take it into Southern Alaska. This will be the first time any college Glee Club has ever reached Alaska. Just another reason why these boys are known as the "World Famous California Glee Club."

SCENERY SHOULD BE CAPITALIZED

So Says Colonel Burritt, Head of the Elks, Who is Visiting City

"What I notice about the West is that you do not sufficiently capitalize your scenery," said Colonel Royal Burritt of Winnipeg, head of the Canadian Elks, who is here today on a visit to the local lodge. The Colonel said he had had a great reception everywhere he went including Vancouver Island and Vancouver. This was his first visit to the West and he found the western people wonderful and the country a dream.

HOW TO PLAY FOOTBALL

Plans of Defence---Stopping the Attack and Teaching Team Formation

(By "Andy" Ducat, Manager of Fulham Club.)
(Reprinted from "Greenock Herald")

Which plan of defence pays best?

It depends on the style of game your opponents are playing.

Short passing is the vogue now with many professional teams. The attack most often comes in the form of a short-passing bout between the centre and his inside men. That is why the halves need to concentrate on this inside trio.

Another thing is that while the halves are attending to the inside men they are not so scattered over the ground. Short passes between themselves and the forwards become easier when they open up a counter attack.

Stopping the Attack

For myself, however, I remain convinced that—for amateur teams—the plan of having the halves mark the opposing wing forwards holds most advantages. You may take it for granted that the halves ought to do the hardest work; they are men specially picked out as having the stamina to hold the team together. In amateur football the attacks most often come down the wings. That is why the halves must mark the wingers.

The reason why the attack so often comes down the wing in amateur football is that few amateur teams play the short passing game. The ball is run down by swinging it out to wing. Most amateur teams have a speedy winger, and they rely on this man for a solo effort towards the opponent's goal. Dribbling, too, plays a greater part in amateur football than in professional.

Your halves ought to be where the attack is, and that is why they should mark the opposing wing forward, leaving the inside men to the backs.

Don't make a hard and fast rule, however. If you find that the opposing team is adopting short passing tactics in the centre of the forward line, then your halves should turn their attention to the inside men. They should not do this, however, until they are instructed to do so by their captain. If each half takes it into his own head to change his tactics when he feels like it, he will throw the whole team out of gear.

The general plan should be to have the halves mark the opposing wing forwards. Then, if the captain sees that a change is needed, the word must be given so that the whole defence adopts the new system in concert.

Teaching Team Formation

Teams should know these two plans for defence, and understand the reasons for them. Then, on the field, instructing the backs and the halves which plan to adopt is the work of a moment.

A plan which is sometimes adopted profitably is that of making one half interchangeable with a back. You have seen that when an attack is coming down the right wing the right back goes up to meet the attackers as far away from his own goal as possible. The left back moves over to the middle of the field to cover his comrade.

It may happen that his attention is immediately engaged on the right, so that you have two backs over on the right, and a dangerously vacant zone on the left.

Such a contingency does not happen to teams which make a wing half interchangeable with the back. As the attack was on the right in the example quoted, the left half would be standing with nothing to do on his own side for the moment. He would therefore fall back and take the place of the left back who had moved over to the right.

Thus the two lines of defence are preserved a first line actively engaged and a second line behind them ready to tackle any isolated man who happens to slip through.

"Elastic" Defence Wins

The ideal defence is one that forms at a moment's notice to meet an attack from any quarter.

In these articles I have set out several methods of meeting various kinds of attack. It is fully possible to explain these methods on a blackboard—it is being done now by several professional teams—and I am convinced that it would pay an amateur team to assemble once a week for the working out of examples in black and white.

The alternative is to have one fixed form of defence. That is dangerous, and may lead to quick disaster. Thus, in the example above, the left half might have remained up the field to dog the footsteps of the opposing wing forward if his marking of the winger had been a fixed defensive policy with the team.

Whereas the particular circumstances of both backs being over on the right demanded that he should leave the opposing forwards altogether for a little while, to take the place of the left back as a second line of defence.

Sport Chat

When the fishermen of Lunenburg built the "Bluenose" to compete in the Atlantic fishermen's schooner races there was a rather wide suspicion among the landlubbers of the Dominion that the boat had been built purely as a racer and that the promise that she was a regular fishing schooner was something in the nature of sporting writers' "bunk." The "Bluenose" is several years old now and it may interest the suspicious ones to know that the Bluenose goes to the banks with all the other schooners of Lunenburg and that as a fishing boat she has been just as much a success as she has been as a race winner. She had paid her owners 15 to 25 per cent in dividends every season since she was built.

The Anyox ladies seem to be a much liver bunch from an athletic standpoint than those in Prince Rupert—in fact most anywhere around this country. Members of the fair sex in the smelter town have achieved some reputation in the past as basketball and tennis players and trapshooters. Now they have started playing baseball. The first game took place last week when the ladies from the Mine defeated those at the Beach by 30 runs to 29. The teams were:

Beach—Mrs. Dwyer, c.; Mrs. McTaggart, p.; Mrs. Crone, 1b.; Mrs. Cody, 2b.; Thelma Deeth, ss.; Margaret Dupuis, 3b.; Annie Scott, lf.; Rowena Champion, cf.; Rose O'Neill, rf.

Mine—Miss Rashleigh, c.; Miss Dean, p. and 1b.; Miss McMillan, 1b. and p.; Miss H. Calderone, 2b.; Miss J. Calderone, ss.; Miss J. Moffatt, 3b.; Miss J. Morley, lf.; Miss A. McLachlan, rf.

McTigue, who recently lost the world's light heavyweight championship to Paul Berlenbach, was at the best of times mostly a defensive fighter, whose main assets were a long reach and a strong right. He assumed the title of champion of Ireland after his first fight, when he was introduced in some small hall in New York as such, and he acted and talked like an Irish champion. He gained the title he just lost by defeating the erratic Siki in Dublin a few years ago, amidst the sound of explosions, that took place close to where the fight was being held, civil war being lively at the time. He must be worth considerable money, as he has a good business head, and is saving.

In the junior leageu football game to be played this evening on Acropolis Hill between Booth School and Borden Street the Booth School team will be Harvey Crate, Willie Murray, Tom Kelsey, Jack Nelson, Eddie Smith, Billie Collison, Willie Donald, Jack McFie, Fred Dingwell, Kami Miwa and Alan Cross.

SAWMILL IS LEAGUE VICTOR

Baseball Team Beats Gyros by Score of Ten to Six

The Sawmill defeated the Gyro Club for a second time last night when it won the Senior League baseball fixture by a score of 10 to 6. Except for the fifth inning, when the boys from the mill got six runs through timely hitting and errors on the part of the Gyros, it was a fairly tight game. Lidstone, who obtained his release from the Sons of Canada team, pitched for the Sawmill and held the Gyros to nine hits while he struck out 16 men. At the same time the Gyros made more errors than the Sawmill. McKeown, behind the bat for the Mill, had a score of 17 putouts to his credit. Considering the weather, there was a good turnout at the game.

.... Why Ford is the universal quality car

DISTRIBUTION

Public appreciation is the final standard by which the demand for any product is measured.

It is difficult to win and more difficult to keep. It must be earned on quality and held on continued quality. Consequently, only the best products may ever hope to enjoy it.

The public appreciation which quality has earned for Ford products has established a Ford dealer in every town and hamlet.

It is obvious that this vast distributing service could not exist unless it sold a quality product.

Fair Board Working on New Proposal Regarding Sale of Tickets

MEETING LAST NIGHT

The Fair Board held a lengthy session last evening. There was a full attendance. The various committees reported progress and placed before the board matters of policy requiring its consideration.

The prize book for 1925 is being prepared. The office and the board of directors have been duly diligent and it is expected that as a result of their labor and the community spirit evidenced throughout the district there will be a record exhibition.

The executive is working on a plan which, while giving necessary impetus to the preparations for the coming fair, will have its appeal to some of the ambitious High School students throughout the district.

In a general way, the proposal, as it stands, suggests a ticket selling competition, for which only High School or ex-High School pupils up to the age of 20 will be eligible. A grand prize of $500 would be offered to the one making the highest count. All other contestants would receive 10 per cent commission on their respective sales.

The grand prize referred to would be placed in trust for educational purposes or otherwise held in trust until the winner reaches the age of 21. These things, however, are subject to possible revision.

INDIANS MEET PEACE FOOTING

Tribes That Formerly Fought Now to Foregather for Conference

MACLEOD, June 17.—For the first time since the signing of the famous Blackfoot treaty of 1877, Indians of the Western plaons of Canada and Montana will gather together at Macleod on July 1-3 and re-enact scenes such as were witnessed in the days of tribal warfare, forty years ago. Such deadly enemies as the Sioux and the Blackfoot, the Cree and Sarcee, the Piegan and the Assiniboine for the first time in history will meet on friendly terms.

While the old warriors and chiefs retire to an Indian encampment on the outskirts of the town, to dance, smoke the pipe of peace and reminisce on feuds of by-gone days, their sons, the younger generation, will meet in Macleod town hall and form an association to be known as the Allied Tribes of Western Canada.

The gathering is being conducted by members of the Blood tribe. An office has been installed at Macleod and great preparations are being made for the historic event.

Indicative of the spirit that prompted the call for a "peace gathering" is a letter received at headquarters here from Dan Pathmaker of the Assiniboine tribe. Pathmaker, who is a graduate of Manitoba Agricultural College writes: "My chief advises me to write you that forty-three years ago, while we were camped in the Cypress Hills, your tribe, the Bloods and Blackfeet, invited us to come over to their encampment and hold a peace conference. Then we suspected treachery. We doubled you. We did not come. Now history is repeating itself. This time let us trust that what our forefathers lost through their inherent distrust, we will retrieve by our present day enlightenment and our united effort. We are bringing with us a warrior named Runs-With-Another, son of Buffalo-Head-Flag. Tell your father, Chief Mountain Horse, we are bringing him to visit him. He will remember he and this man nearly killed each other in their last battle."

Twenty-five delegates, representing the various Indian tribes, will formulate the first Indian constitution to be drawn up in Canada.
