PRAIRIE CROP AGAIN TO BE FINANCED BY GOVERNMENT

Former Premier Has Thrown In Lot With Independent Forces

Denies Report That He is Withdrawing From Contest—Is Merely Consolidation of Opponents of Tolmie and Pattullo—Conferences Being Held

VANCOUVER, Sept. 9:—W. J. Bowser has dropped the leadership of the non-partisan movement which he has headed during the present provincial election campaign and has thrown in his lot with the independent candidates who favor the formation of a real union government. This announcement was made today, following a conference between the former premier and the independents, by R. W. Bruhn The statement in part said:

"Mr. Bowser states that, after the election, the independent members, when in control of the House, will, as a matter of course, be free to select their own leader."

The Bowser non-partisan party had already nominated 12 candidates and the independents 24.

"Emphatically no. I am not withdrawing," declared Mr. Bowser when his attention was directed to a rumor from Victoria that he was about to announce his retirement entirely from the campaign.

"Far from withdrawing," Mr. Bowser said, "we are consolidating our forces." He stated that conferences were now progressing with those "who have deserted Premier Tolmie" with a view to joining forces to "ensure Pattullo's edfeat."

Mr. Bowser stated that already two conferences had been held with independent candidates and another conference was to be held to reach a final understanding on Monday.

There have been a number of independent candidates headed by Mr. Bruhn in the city for the past day or so.

Crisis and Way Out

William Irvine, M.P. for Wetaskiwin, Urges Change of System

"The Present Crisis and the Way Out" was the subject of William Irvine, M.P. for Wetaskiwin, Alta., who addressed a large meeting last night at the Moose Hall here in the interests of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. Mr. Irvine spoke for about two hours and, despite the fact that he devoted the most of the time elaborating upon the "crisis" and theorizing as to its causes and had, apparently, little but rather nebulous generalities to offer as a "way out," he was given an attentive hearing. An orator of the eloquent and spell-binding type, his speech was punctuated with frequent witticisms and, if not very enlightening, was, to say the least, entertaining. Ex-Ald. Oscar Larsen occupied the chair.

In opening, Mr. Irvine enumerated what he considered the outstanding factors in the present economic situation. First, the agricultural industry had been producing for some years at less than cost with the result that the standard of living of the farmer had been gradually lowering until he had now reached the point where he could hardly furnish himself and his dependents with the necessities of life and the whole industry was jeopardized. Second, there was the growing army of the unemployed which in Canada had now reached over one million persons who were being penuriously maintained at the expense of those who still had jobs or part-time jobs. Both private and public business had become paralyzed, the country's trade was dropping, despite wage cutting and tax increasing the governments were becoming increasingly involved financially and private and public debts were continually growing.

Canada, as well as the other nations of the world, was reaping the bitter fruits of capitalism in the form of continuously growing unemployment, the concentration of the national wealth among the few while poverty increased among the majority, staggering debt and international strife and war. Never had there been such universal want in the midst of such tremendous abundance. Out of the colleges and schools of the country were annual-

THE BUILDING TRADES

The population of Canada is increasing rapidly but no provision is being made for this increase either in increased housing accommodation or in those public works which usually keep pace with population increases. The result is that Canada is running behind in her building and, as soon as the people again acquire sufficient confidence, there is every prospect of a building boom.

Statistics provided through the Royal Bank of Canada show that since statistics have been compiled there has been no time at which the building trades have been so slack as they are today. The condition of the industry is worse than it was in 1915, the previous low point, which followed the boom days of 1912.

The business slump from which we are now beginning to recover is due to a large extent to the almost total stoppage of building operations. The moment building commences again the unemployment slack will be taken up in that trade and in the hundreds of other trades dependent upon building for their life.

Men employed in the building trades are mostly skilled men who earn good wages. Once they get back to work their buying power will return and the general revival of business for which we have looked will be with us again.

So great was the agitation a couple of years ago for reduction of wages and general economy in all walks of life that it takes time for people to regain the amount of confidence necessary to encourage them to engage in building programs. With the cutting down of wages and the pruning of expenses has come also the cutting down of rents with the result that the rents paid today are not sufficient to encourage investment in buildings of any kind.

The suggestion coming from Ottawa that Premier Bennett is considering the launching of public works to take care of the unemployed is the most encouraging news heard of late in connection with recovery plans. It is the scheme advocated and promised by T. D. Pattullo in his public addresses. The announcement of such a scheme would have the effect of inspiring confidence and would be the first step toward activity in the building trades.

System Disintegrating

In short, declared the speaker, the capitalistic system was disintegrating. In the matter of production, the system had been successful but, in distribution, it had been a lamentable failure. Despite such operations as the Ottawa Imperial conference and the world economic conference, which might temporarily prolong the life of the system, it must eventually die. Unfortunately, the governments of today were devoting their entire efforts in the attempt to resuscitate the broken down system instead of endeavoring to devise a new plan to meet the new and modern order of things.

Declaring that the intention and hope of the C. C. F. was to bring about a new economic system without precipitating conflict or seriously disrupting the present social order, the speaker declared that the only hope of bridging the chasm was to act intelligently now. If things were allowed to drift as they were now going and unemployment permitted to increase, there was danger ere long of the elemental urge to live dominating the situation with disastrous and ruinous results.

All the industrialized nations of the world were today producing a surplus of the same goods with the result that there were no foreign markets for any country. The debts of the world could not be paid in gold for the simple reason that the debts of the world aggregated four hundred billion dollars in gold with but eleven billion dollars of gold existing.

"There can be no improvement," declared the speaker, "until a type of statesmanship has been developed with the courage to wipe out the great weight of debt and abandon the collapsing capitalistic system." There was no reason why the people of Canada should have to go without those things which the country produced in abundance. To save wealth it must be realized that wealth must be consumed. The government should be able to provide the people with the wherewithal to obtain the goods which the country produced. By this means alone could trade be restored.

Turning his attention to what the C. C. F. proposed to do, Mr. Irvine gave his views as to the economic philosophies of the three groups—capitalistic as represented by the Liberals and Conservatives, communistic and C. C. F. The first was conservative and reactionary, the second radical and short-sighted, the third, based on commonsense and natural principles. The speaker told how the C. C. F. had been formed by the joining together of farmer, labor and other groups for the common object of bringing about an orderly change in the economic system. The C. C. F. would substitute "brotherly co-operation" for the bloodthirsty struggle for things which were no longer scarce. The attitude of the C. C. F. approach was with scientific methods and with due regard to natural and orderly processes.

Must Make Start

"We do not know," said the speaker, "how long it will take us to develop the new system but we do realize that there must be no dilly-dallying in making a start." It was the intention of the C. C. F. to establish a "planned national economy"—an economic plan which would square up with the requirements and technique of present and modern life—and to bring about socialization of finance and credit so that the people would be enabled to provide themselves with and use the goods which the country put upon the market. The C. C. F. would take the administration of currency and credit out of the hands of the bankers and place it with the government where it rightfully belonged so that it might be administered with due regard to its proper economic function in the interest of the needs of the people.

The speaker concluded by urging his listeners to exercise their franchise in support of an organization whose object it was to bring about by orderly means the much needed change of economic system. If this were done, there was no danger of Canada not being able to come through.

Following the address, a few questions were directed at Mr. Irvine by communist sympathizers in the audience. Mr. Irvine informed his questioners that the C. C. F. could do nothing until it "obtained power by constitutional means." He made it clear that the C. C. F. was not in favor of resorting to measures of force but to obtain power by means of the people's franchise. Ex-Ald. G. B. Casey took the floor evidently with the intention of making a speech rather than asking a question and finally was prevailed upon to resume his seat after which the meeting adjourned.

Prosperity A. Leads Local Fleet in Volume of Landings—Salmon Fishing Falling Off—Week's Halibut Business

Up to September 1, the Prosperity A., Capt. A. C. Christiansen, with 250,000 pounds in eleven trips, was the leading unit of the Prince Rupert halibut fleet for volume of production in the 1933 season. The Relief, Capt. Merrill Sollows, was second with an aggregate of 238,000 pounds in thirteen trips and the Cape Beale, Capt. Edgar Arnott, third with 228,000 pounsd in six trips.

The Relief had made the greatest number of trips, thirteen, while the Tramp, Capt. Sam Hougan, was second with twelve trips for a total production of 179,500 pounds. Boats which had made eleven trips were the Atli, Capt. William Bussey, 179,-600 pounds; Capella, Capt. Dan Larsen, 161,500 pounds; Ingrid H., Capt. Charles Lundquist, 131,000 pounds; J. R., Capt. J. P. Reid, 95,-000 pounds; Prosperity A., Capt. A. C. Christiansen, 250,000 pounds; Pair of Jacks, Capt. Peter Liland, 113,000 pounds; R. W., Capt. Anskar Wick, 126,500 pounds; Rose Spit, Capt. Axel Olsen, 168,000 pounds, and Viking I., Capt. H. Ericksen, 130,500 pounds.

As far as volume of landings at Prince Rupert was concerned, the Oceanic was leading the American fleet with an aggregate of 165,000 pounds in ten trips. The Sherman was second with 151,000 pounds in two trips and the Baltic third with 129,000 pounds in eight trips. The visitor had landed the greatest number of fares at Prince Rupert for the American fleet, namely twelve for a total catch of 61,500 pounds. The Thor had made eleven trips for a total of 65,500 pounds and the Oceanic and Viola ten trips each for totals of 165,000 and 71,500 pounds respectively.

While working on a pipe wrenching job at Victory Cove on Wednesday afternoon of this week, Bert Flewin had the misfortune to fracture a rib as a result of which he will be confined to camp pretty much hors de combat for the coming fortnight. He was in port on Thursday afternoon with the fish packer Taplow II and, while here, received necessary medical treatment for the injury. Flewin & Brown during the past week reopened their camp at Warke Canal and are packing the coho salmon taken there to Inverness cannery on the Skeena River. Previous to this they had been packing salmon from Klemtu and elsewhere down the coast to Inverness with the Taplow II.

Skipper O. P. Smith, who has recently been chasing the elusive salmon in the Banks Island vicinity with his well known trolling boat Billy Boy, was in port late this week, arriving on Thursday afternoon and leaving again the next day. "O. P.," who is disgusted with the way the fish have been running in northern waters this season, is now heading southward. He will try the various fishing grounds enroute to Vancouver where, as usual, it is his intention to spend the winter.

Six Canneries Running

Six salmon canneries are still in operation packing fall fish in Prince Rupert district, these being Claxton, Inverness and Oceanic on the Skeena River and Lowe Inlet, Butedale and Namu in the central coast area. The Skeena River canneries are getting their supplies of coho salmon principally from some two hundred boats which were still engaged in gill-netting on the river while some fish is also being delivered from the trolling grounds. The canneries in the central area are operating on seine-caught chum salmon.

The trolling season is reported to be about over at North Island. There are fair runs of cohoes still on the Stephens Island, Dundas Island and Warke Canal grounds with probably more fishermen than the quantity of fish justifies. Most of the troll caught fish is being delivered to the Canadian Fish & Cold Storage Co. at Prince Rupert and the Canadian Fishing Co. at Butedale.

On its way from the North Island trolling grounds to Butedale, the fish packer B. and Y., Capt. Don Yelf, was in port for a few hours yesterday afternoon, having on board 20,000 pounds of spring salmon and 10,000 pounds of cohoes. The vessel is expected back again tomorrow outbound for North Island and after discharging at Butedale. She will not be making many more trips.

Little Canadian Fish In

Owing to the cessation of fishing in Area No. 2 in which the majority of the Prince Rupert vessels operate, only one Canadian halibut boat landed its catch at Prince Rupert during the week ending yesterday, this being the Ingrid H. which brought in 19,000 pounds which it sold for 6c and 5c. Sixteen American boats sold catches aggregating 359,500 pounds at prices ranging from 6.5c and 4c to 7.8c and 4.5c. A number of the larger Canadian boats left during the week to fish in the further distant Area No. 3, where fishing is still being permitted by the International Fisheries Commission, and it is expected these will be in with their catches later in the month.

Landings for the 1933 season at Prince Rupert up to and including yesterday totalled 10,929,600 pounds as compared with 10,870,300 pounds at the corresponding date last year. Canadian landings so far this season have reached a total of 4,941,500 pounds as against 3,408,750 pounds last year, while American landings for 1933 have reached an aggregate of 5,988,100 pounds in comparison with 7,461,600 pounds last year.

The Indian Department's power cruiser Naskeena returned to port Thursday after a trip to the Queen Charlotte Islands with Col. G. S. Pragnell of Kamloops, inspector of Indian Agencies for British Columbia, and Indian Agent W. E. Collison on board. The vessel left here on Monday morning of this week for the Islands. Col. Pragnell arrived late last week from the south in the course of his annual northern inspection tour and will proceed from here to the interior.

John Group of Oona River has been in the city this week-end in connection with his boat building operations. So far he has turned out eight fine fishing boats and expects to be busy during the coming winter.

Quite a large run of spring and coho salmon is reported from Marble Island and Rennel Sound on the Queen Charlotte Islands but there are no packers to carry the fish for the trollers. Very few chums and pinks are reported to be showing up in the streams around Skidegate Inlet and it is beginning to look like this is to be very much of an off year there.

After having spent the summer in command of his old love, the mission boat Northern Cross, which has now been tied up for the winter, Canon W. F. Rushbrook on Sunday last resumed his ministrations in St. Peter's Anglican Church at Seal Cove. In the morning there was children's service while, in the evening, the usual adults' service was held. There were large congregations which taxed the capacity of the church on both occasions and the esteemed clergyman was gi a hearty welcome back by his p ishioners.

The 12-ton San Diego power ye Chalice, which has been cruisin Alaska waters for the past weeks with her owner, Charles Boynton, and party on board, in port Wednesday on her south. She tied up during her at the floats of the Prince Ru Rowing & Yacht Club. Mr. Boyn reported that the trip had bee most enjoyable one.

INTERESTED VISITOR

William Irvine, M.P. for Wetaskiwin, who is spending a few days in the city, paid a visit to the Canadian Fish Cold Storage Co. and local dry dock plants yesterday and today is being taken for a launch trip around the harbor as the guest of the local branch of the Socialist Party of Canada. While here Mr. Irvine is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Dalgarno. He is a former Presbyterian Church minister and comes from the same part of Scotland as Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Sandison of this city. He will sail for Vancouver on the ss. Prince Rupert tomorrow night.

KAIEN ISLE

Where the sentinel mountains brood
In eternal majesty
O'er the storm and smile of our Kaien Isle
In the arms of the sparkling sea.

Where the mighty Pacific rolls
And its stately vessels sweep
To the stretching hands of the shelt'ring land,
Out of the stormy deep.

Where never a painter limned,
Such glory of sunset skies—
Crimson and gold and purple unfold
Their hues as the daylight dies.

Where the silvery spoils of the sea
Are heaped at the island shore,
When her sons speed home on the rolling foam
With treasure of richest store.

Dear port of the fisherman's dream
As he toils with his nets at sea;
Haven of rest, our Isle of the West,
In the arms of the sparkling sea.

—WINIFRED O. BRASS.
