MERRY CHRISTMAS

The Christmas season is to many of us the most wonderful part of the whole year. It is the season that brings us back again to our mother's knee. It is the time of innocent joy and holy reverence; the time when the world seems fresh and young and when nature itself seems to breathe forth that eternal chant, "Peace on earth, goodwill toward men."

Christmas is a day for children but that is only because it makes children of us all. That man is indeed poor and barren and sad who has not still a little corner left in his heart where the echoes of childhood are found. Christmas comes to renew those echoes, to soften those feelings and to enable us to begin life again with a freshness that we did not know before.

It is a beautiful custom to spend the merry greeting for a joyful Christmas and in defence of that The News "doth gladly join with all the world." Christmas, however, like the Kingdom of Heaven, is within you and can be made merry or sad according to the attitude we assume toward ourselves or toward our environment.

A great many people, however, look for the joys of Christmas in vain. That is because they seek the joys and not the things that produce them. You cannot call up a feeling just because you want to. The only way to develop an emotion is to unconsciously engage in the task that produces it. Do not enter the festive season with a selfish search for joy. Go into it with the intention of bringing joy to others, and the pleasures that you give will by some magic means be transferred to your own bosom.

Let us rise up Christmas morning with our hearts full of the Great Eternal Life that is continually surging about us. Let us for one day at least refuse to shut ourselves up to the healing influences of love and fellowship. In our deepest heart of hearts let us declare that we love all men—even our enemies—and that because of Christmas there will not be left in all our world one thought of hatred or of selfishness or fear.

AMERICANS PROTESTING OVER EXCLUSION ORDER

EDICT PREVENTS U. S. TRAVELLERS COMING INTO BRITISH COLUMBIA SEATTLE PAPER CLAIMS THAT APPEALS HAVE BEEN MADE TO CONSUL

The Dominion order excluding all artisans and unskilled workmen from British Columbia is having a far-reaching effect. It is stopping Americans from entering Canada and is bringing protests along the border. The Seattle P.-I. publishes a news story over a big heading. In part it says:

"Keep out! This means you, too!" is the order that has come out of British Columbia to American artisans or laborers skilled or unskilled, who, in view of the present overcrowded condition of the labor market in that province, are forbidden to enter any part of British Columbia.

Enforcement of the edict began at this port yesterday. Inspector S. N. Reid of the Canadian immigration service, stationed at Seattle, said that he did not interpret the order as meaning that American artisans as a class were undesirable, but until they were excepted from its provisions he would have to enforce it against them. By the terms of the order it continues in effect until March 31, 1914.

MORE REGULATIONS FOR COAST FISHERIES

Professor Prince at His Favorite Occupation—Includes Pacific Halibut

Ottawa, Dec. 23.—A comprehensive plan for the protection and encouragement of the halibut fisheries of the British Columbia coast and the herring and cod fisheries of the Atlantic coast will be drawn up by the Biological Board of Canada. It was decided at the annual meeting here this week which concluded tonight.

The Montreal members of the board who were present were Prof. Willey of McGill University, and Prof. Huard of Laval. Prof. E. E. Prince of Ottawa is chairman. The board, which has made investigation on both coasts and Georgian Bay, has been carrying on for some time investigations into the breeding and general life history of the herring, salmon and halibut of the Pacific coast, including the injurious effects of seine nets.

The Atlantic cod and herring as well as the lobster industry have also been receiving attention, and as announced a comprehensive set of regulations designed for the encouragement of the fish resources of both coasts will be drawn up by the board.

Teacher wanted for night school. Salary $1 an hour. Duties to commence January 5, 1914. Applications close Dec. 26. O. H. Nelson, Chairman.

MAJOR R. W. LEONARD,
Chairman of the Transcontinental Railway Commission.
