United States May Take Ships From Spain and Close Embassy —Madrid Bombed Again

Huge Death Toll

Conflicting Reports Make it Difficult to Judge Trend Of Civil War

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 1: — Following the incident of the attempted bombing of U.S.S. Kane on Sunday and in an effort to remove the possibility of United States becoming further involved in international complications arising out of the Spanish civil war, Secretary of State Cordell Hull last night forecast that all American warships would probably be withdrawn from Spanish waters and the embassy in Madrid closed. As American warships had been sent to Spain only to assist in evacuating United States citizens from the country, Americans have again been urged to leave the troublous republic without further delay.

Up to last night no replies had been received to the American protests to both the loyalist government and the rebels at the attempted bombing of U.S.S. Kane. It was expected that the Spanish government would announce that it could accept no responsibility for the incident as it had no planes of the type which dropped bombs around the American destroyer.

Madrid Bombed Again

GIBRALTAR, Sept. 1:— It was reported here by radio last night that Spanish rebels had again bombed Madrid yesterday on three occasions. Valencia was also reported to have been bombed.

At Seville insurgent leaders claimed that three hundred persons had been killed in the fifth successful bombing raid on Madrid. Bombs hit the interior ministry and war ministry buildings.

Government spokesmen issued a contradictory report saying that damage was slight.

Irun was also bombed by rebels while Burgos, northern insurgent headquarters, was bombed by Socialist planes.

Uncensored reports from Madrid give estimates of dead to date at between 75,000 and 100,000 persons.

GERRY ON HOLIDAY

Vancouver Mayor Thinks he Deserves Rest—Gives Forester Another Boost

VANCOUVER, Sept. 1:—Speaking Saturday night in support of J. Howard Forester, Liberal candidate in the Burrard by-election which takes place on Wednesday, Mayor G. G. McGeer made a personal plea for support of Mr. Forester whom he said was a valued friend. A vote for Forester, said the mayor, would help Vancouver which had already received so much assistance from the provincial government.

In the course of his address Mr. McGeer said that he was leaving the city in a few days for a rest which he thought he deserved after the strain of the Jubilee celebration and other recent activities. He did not say where he intended to go other than it would be some place where there were no telegraphs or telephones or even radios.

MEMENTO OF NORTH

Two Kitwanga Totems Are Presented to Titanias Palace

VANCOUVER, Sept. 1: — Two miniature hand carved ivory totem poles, beautifully colored, were presented to Sir Neville Wilkinson for the gardens of his famed Titanias Palace by B. T. Chappell, general superintendent, Canadian National Railways, at a farewell gathering to Sir Neville in the Hudson's Bay private dining room yesterday afternoon. Splendid reproductions of fine totems found in Kitwanga Indian village along the Canadian National, Prince Rupert line, they will serve to advertise the attractions of Northern British Columbia as the Palace cotninues its travels around the world.

Making the presentation on behalf of the railway company, Mr. Chappell stated that the legend of the two totems was most appropriate to the occasion. It told how the Thunderbird, mighty creature of Indian mythology, helped the first man build his home in British Columbia. The bird descended to earth and helped the builder when he could not raise the logs. "There is a good parallel there," said Mr. Chappell. "You now become the Thunderbird in man form since this marvellous creation is all your work." Mr. Chappell hoped the totems would help spread the story of British Columbia wherever the Palace went on display.

The lord mayor of London, Sir Pery Vincent, was received on board the destroyer H. M. S. Scimitar as Admiral of the Port of London when he embarked at London Tower pier on his way to Chatham to open Chatham naval week. He was received by a guard of honor of seamen of the London division of the royal naval reserves. Photo shows the lord mayor of London (left, in costume) inspecting the bodyguard. The famous Tower Bridge is seen in the background. The lord mayor was in Vancouver recently in connection with the city's golden jubilee celebration.

GARDENS, SCENERY AND OTHER ATTRACTIONS INTEREST VISITORS

Prince Rupert, it is said, has been winning more and more publicity through press and radio in the United States this year as a result of the comments made on return home of tourists after making trips along the north coast. Many have been entranced by the wonderful gardens and scenery hereabouts and have been much interested in the totem poles, museum, cold storage plant and other attractions.

Growing conditions had been ideal this year for all kinds of crops with ample moisture as well as warm weather when it was needed.

There is a big crop of seed this year and, while the price has not yet been set, it is known that it will be good.

It is reported that Trotsky is negotiating with British authorities for permission to move to England to take up residence.

TROTSKY'S POSITION

Leon Trotsky has been a revolutionist all his life and it would be difficult now for him to change. Evidently he had a good deal to do with the recent revolutionary plot in Russia against the government of which he was at one time himself a member and which he by his previous plotting was largely instrumental in placing in power.

Naturally no country is anxious to harbor such a plotter. Norway does not want him but objects to being told that he must be sent away. Britain since the beginning of time the home of political refugees, is not anxious to have the exiled Bolshevist. No other country seems to want him. Possibly before the end comes he will be handed back to his own countrymen to deal with as they wish.

ELECTION TOMORROW

The provincial by-election is to be held in Burrard tomorrow to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of G. G. McGeer, mayor of Vancouver. In that election anything may happen. Vancouver has never been very friendly to the Pattullo government and especially has opposition come from the Province newspaper. The C. C. F. party has been very strong there but whether they are as strong today as they were at the time of the general election will be one of the interesting things the election will determine.

There is said to have been a swing toward Conservatism in the past months. Whether that is really so or just a dream will be indicated tomorrow. In any event the Pattullo government will not be affected by the result of the election. They have a good majority in the Legislature and will carry on whether their candidate is chosen in Burrard or not.

TERRIBLE SITUATION

There is a terrible situation in Spain where every man is involved in a factional war, neighbor fighting against neiglibor. It is far more terrible than a war of one nation against another, bad as that may be. Before the end of this family quarrel there are likely to be many terrible outrages and much slaughter. Scars will be left that it will take generations to heal. The end of the civil war will be only the beginning of a most difficult time. People cannot resort to savagery without suffering.

SPORTS

SPORT CHAT

The Wimbledon champions, Helen Hull Jacobs of the U. S. A. and England's Fred Perry, are, without doubt, the ones to beat for the titles in the United States national singles championships starting this Thursday at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, Long Island. Each of them will seek to establish a precedent, with Miss Jacobs attempting to stretch her own record of four straight U. S. championships and Perry trying to become the first foreigner ever to win the U. S. crown three times.

None of the U. S. forces seem able to stop Perry—barring accident, of course, such as that which befell him in the semi-finals at Forest Hills last year. On that occasion he suffered a severe back injury in a fall in the seventh game of the first set and lost the match to Wilmer Allison of the U. S., who was having one of his good days, and who went on to win the championship over Sidney B. Wood, jr. Allison will not defend his title —owing to an injury he brought back from Europe—and he probably wouldn't have been a serious threat to Perry, anyway. That leaves red-haired Donald Budge as the only American with a bona fide chance to keep Perry from taking the U. S. crown back overseas.

Perry won the American title in 1933 and '34, tying the record for invaders established by Jean Rene Lacoste of France, who won in 1926 and '27, with Bill Tilden as his finals victim in the latter year. Perry hasn't been invincible since he recovered from the back injury after a trip to Australia, but he has won this year when it counted most. He lost to Budge in the British-American series in July; was defeated by Christian Boussus of France in the Franco-British matches, and lost to the German, Baron Gottfried von Cramm, in the finals of the French hard courts' tournament. But the smiling, pipe-smoking Briton beat Budge, in the semi-finals, and Von Cramm, in the finals at Wimbledon this year, and won the British hard courts title over Bunny Ausin.

Von Cramm was injured and virtually helpless as Perry breezed through a straight set triumph in the all-England finals. The injury thwarted the German's plan to enter the U. S. singles. The tennis people will have their eyes on another young invader, however. He is Bernard Destremeau, 19-year-old member of the French Davis Cup team, who is looked upon abroad as the one to lead France back to the top.

The biggest foreign threat to Miss Jacobs' reign is Kay Stammers, the pretty British southpaw, who has beaten Helen two times straight, in the Wightman Cup singles matches, in straight sets this year, 12-10 and 6-1. Miss Jacobs comes to the nationals this year as the Wimbledon champion for the first time in her career. She gained her long-sought title at the expense of Frau Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling in the all-England finals.

Although Forest Hills fans are distinctly disappointed over Helen Wills Moody's refusal to renew her rivalry with the other Helen from Berkeley, Miss Jacobs will find plenty of opposition in the defence of the title she has held ever since 1931. Mrs. Moody never has come back to the national since she defaulted to her arch-rival while trailing 0-3 in the third set of the 1933 finals, but "Queen Helen" won from Miss Jacobs in last year's Wimbledon final. The American threats to Miss Jacobs' reign include upcoming Alice Marble, Palm Springs, Cal., and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Brookline, Mass., runner-up last year.

POWER CHISELLED OUT

PRESTON, Eng., Sept. 1: (CP)—When a workman dropped a chisel which severed a large cable the town's light and power was cut off for 15 minutes.

Beauty Queen of Tennis Courts

'Tis said Miss Kay Stammers is the most beautiful of all top-notch women tennis stars. Perhaps you will agree when you see this picture of the winsome British court queen as she arrived in America to participate in major tournaments. She is considered the principal foreign threat to Helen Jacobs in the United States national open commencing this week at Forest Hills.

WINNER BY KNOCKOUT

Towel Thrown in For Steve Bright In One-Sided Fight Against Benny Windle

Benny Windle of Prince Rupert scored a technical knockout over Steve Bright, husky native lad, in the third of a scheduled six round boxing bout headlining a card presented before a large and enthusiastic crowd of fans in the Boston Hall last evening. Bright had lots of courage and charged like a bull but did not have the boxing ability of the local fighter who just waited him out. The native went to the canvas four times before the towel was finally thrown in on his behalf. He was saved by the bell at the end of the first round on the count of six and again the bell saved him on the nine count at the end of the second.

The card provided plenty of action and fun, novelties such as barrel and blind-fold boxing being interspersed with the regular boxing events.

In the curtain raiser "Tiger" Montgomery and "Bull Dog" McLeod did a three-round exhibition. Henry Dickens won a decision over Herbert Mah in three two-minute rounds. Sev Dominato took three out of five falls from Andre Letourneau in barrel boxing. In another barrel boxing bout Ralph Smith won from "Dynamite" Peacock. Freddie Calderone won three rounds of boxing from Jack Campbell. Cliff Robertson took a three-round decision from David Houston. Blind-fold boxing for which Barnard Sheen, Jarvis McLeod, Cliff Robertson and Frank Hodkinson entered the ring was the scream of the evening.

It was the first fight card of any consequence that has been put on in Prince Rupert in two years and Bill Stone dished up thirty rounds of fighting to the fans.

Tommy Fraser was referee; B. J. Bacon and Tommy Morgan, judges; Max Heilbroner and W. E. Drake, timekeepers, and William Stone, announcer.

CUBS WIN TIGHT ONE

New York Giants Defeated With Lon Warnecke Pitching Impressive Game

CHICAGO, Sept. 1: (CP)—Chicago Cubs, with Lon Warnecke allowing only six hits and pitching his thirteenth and most impressive victory of the season, scored a one to nothing victory yesterday over the New York Giants. As a result the Giants were left three and a half games ahead of the idle second place St. Louis Cardinals who are but half a game ahead of the Cubs.

In the American League, the New York Yankees made it three straight over the Chicago White Sox by a score of 5 to 1. It was the seventh straight victory for the Yankees who are now sixteen and a half games in the lead over the Cleveland Indians. The White Sox dropped into fourth place half a game below the Detroit Tigers with whom they had been tied for third position.

Only the two major league games were played yesterday.

NEW DEAL IN WHEAT

J. R. Murray, Number One Trader, Won Spurs as Patient Apprentice

WINNIPEG, Sept. 1: (CP) — A stout-hearted Irishman who loves to talk of wheat is ushering in a new deal in international wheat trade relations. He is James R. Murray, the man charged with disposal for Canada of one of the largest stocks of surplus wheat in existence.

Selling wheat is first an adventure with this intensely human chairman of the Canadian Wheat Board whose ruggedness remains unimpaired by 27 active years in grain houses and wheat pits. Since assuming the position of number one trader last December, he has played no minor role in whittling the carryover from the 1935-36 crop year down to less than 100,000,000 busheds, lowest in seven years.

His friends say he is a straight, independent thinker who has ploughed his own way in life. He won agrarian support in the west during his first two weeks as head of the new board by disposing of more than 35,000,000 bushels of wheat. He has a kindly expression, smiles easily and is optimistic and good-humored in conversation.

As the successor to John I. McFarland he acquired present ranking in market nobility through a succession of achievements that stamp him as a leader. An immigrant he arrived at Halifax 30 years ago to seek fame and fortune. Today he holds a prominent place among Canada's men of commerce.

Rise Was Rapid

Difference over a career that figured largely in family councils were shrugged off by young "Jimmy" when he came to Winnipeg at the age of 20. He first tried his hand at railroad construction work and logging in lumber camps at $45 a month. In 1909 he accepted a position as clerk with the Grain Growers Grain Company following which his rise was rapid.

After patiently serving his apprenticeship he accelerated his pace, passing through trusteeships of branch manager and assistant general manager to become secretary of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. In 1931 he was appointed general manager of the Alberta Pacific Elevator company, and in December, 1935, was entrusted with the problem of shaping Canada's wheat selling policies.

Always a diplomat, Mr. Murray is a hard worker and a lover of detail. He is an advocate of the preservation of open markets as an essential part of the Dominion's wheat marketing machinery and a believer in co-operative enterprise. The idea of a 100 percent compulsory pool is to him, however, the antithesis of co-operation.

In contrast to his simple, direct personality his interests cover a wide field. He is a lover of music and an eager reader of books dealing with politics, the theatre, history and law. Light fiction and autobiographies intrigue him. He was born at Limerick on the west coast of Ireland, in 1885.

From the Waterfront

After having been in port almost a day disposing of customs, immigration and quarantine formalities following her arrival from the Orient Sunday evening, the Japanese freighter Tonegawa Maru left at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon for Sedgewick Bay, Queen Charlotte Islands, to load a full cargo of hemlock and spruce logs for Japan. The vessel will be at Sedgewick Bay for the better part of two weeks, it is expected.

The Watson Tug & Barge Co. of Seattle is now loading two large scows of 600 tons capacity each at Hudson Bay Passage, Dundas Island, with clamshells from beds staked by Robert Irvine of this city. The shell will be towed south to Seattle. The Armour Salvage Co.'s pump scow is being used to dig the shells and the power tug Erne, with Capt. Reg Green in charge, is standing by. The outfit was towed out at the end of last week by the Algie which will be going out again this evening with Capt. W. P. Armour on board.

Union steamer Catala is late again today in returning from her voyage to Stewart, Anyox and other northern points. If she does not have to load salmon at Wales Island she will be in at 9 p.m. on her way south. If she does have to load there she will be later.

DEATH ENDS IMPRISONMENT

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Sept. 1: (CP)—Confined to her home for 15 years through illness, Mrs. Jane Bird died in her 101st year.

Announcement

After two months which have been most wonderful for my health I will start practising dentistry again on September 2.

However, having found the long hours indoors necessary to handle the work coming to my office too hard on my health, and having read in current dental magazines about the now so popular idea in the United States which they call the Bungalow Office and the convenience of same as compared to the downtown office, I have decided to move my office to my residence, corner of Fourth Avenue East and Green Street (the white house with the red roof next to the Prince Rupert General Hospital) and believe that I will be better able to handle the work for those of my patients who wish to follow me to my new location, than I could in a too busy downtown office.

My telephone is as before 109.

MYSTERY OF OLD WRECK
Lure of Treasure and Tales Of Ghosts Aroused by Unidentified Hulk

GREEN POINT, N.B., Sept. 1: (CP)—The mystery of an ancient hulk buried for 300 years or more in the sands of this Gloucester County shore may give way soon to scoop and shovel. Interest in digging out the ship has been evinced by local residents and the Historical Branch of the Miramichi Natural History Association.

Possibility of treasure existing in the wooden hull is one incentive. Probing into the sand with a crowbar produced the sound of metal. An old cannon, shining with preservation by the sands, already has been recovered. One night of exposure caused it to rust badly.

Nothing is known about the wreck's history. Its age, estimated at between 300 and 400 years, is a matter of rough calculation based mainly on tradition. Only a portion of the hulk is visible at low tide, with the rest buried in sand.

The hull is believed to be some 120 feet long. Ribs seen during low tides are of oak and pegged with no sign of spikes or nails. At high tide the wreck is under 20 feet of water.

Indications point to the mystery ship having been burned. The beach, once an inlet, was filled by sand in the course of time, according to tradition. In recent years the beach has worn away, steadily revealing a little more of the wreck.

A theory that the vessel was one of a French fleet which failed to re-capture Quebec in 1760 was discounted because the hulk is unlike a warship of that time. The recovered cannon, a type once used in forts, gave the impression of having been wrapped in a casing and is believed to have been merely a part of the ship's cargo.

Many ghostly tales have been told regarding the vessel's complement. One French resident of the village summed it up this way: "Dey've seen hell on dat beach when ze waves were poundin' dose old ribs."

A favorite story is told by an old villager who said he ventured down to the desolate beach one night and saw a phosphorescent man standing amid the gaping ribs with his arms lifted toward the sky as if in prayer. The most peculiar thing was that the figure had no head, apparently having been decapitated in some fight of the dim past.

Then there was the reported night when a dozen hideous apparitions—some with arms gone, others with legs missing and a few minus their heads—gathered before a blazing fire on the beach all silent and sinister.

There's a story going around about a man who cleaned up a pile of money at the carnival games last week. It was a tall story, taller than the pile of money.

The Spaniards formerly showed their blood-thirsty tendencies by killing bulls. Then they ran out of bulls.

An enterprising local promoter is considering a plan to sell ringside tickets at the Spanish show. He says he has already made arrangements for Mussolini, Hitler and King Edward to be present.

When Leon Trotsky was accused of fomenting a rebellion in Russia he yawned in his author's study at Oslo, put his thumb to his nose and stretching out his little finger, wriggled it derisively in the direction of Moscow.

Permits Asked To Kill Ducks
Flocks Invade Harvest Fields—Seek Food From Grain Stooks

LIBERTY, Sask., Sept. 1: (CP) Duck breeding conditions may be worse than expected in many areas in the western provinces but not in this central Saskatchewan community, 70 miles northeast of Regina.

Farmers had petitioned the provincial government for permission to shoot the wildfowl before the official date set for opening of the season, September 1. Thousands of birds, many of them old greenheads from the Long Lake sanctuary, have invaded harvest fields and destroyed wheat stocks.

The government is faced with a problem to protect both grain and wildfowl. Farmers, diffident about shooting birds merely to scare them away, say there is a limit to what grain they can lose out of the first fair crop in five years. Early migration of the greenhead mallards from the north is believed to indicate an early winter.
