Jap Bombs Cause Horrible Slaughter

Attack Upon Train Kills Three Hundred Civilians In Shanghai

Human Forms and Blood-Smeared Debris Showered Into Air—Great Britain Not Satisfied

SHANGHAI, Sept. 8: (CP)—At least three hundred Chinese civilians were killed and four hundred injured today in one of the worst disasters caused by Japanese air bombs. Five hundred railroad cars packed with Chinese refugees were blown up by Japanese bombers thirty miles from Shanghai. Bombs literally showered human forms and blood-smeared debris into the air. The Chinese said that the train was not carrying soldiers.

In London it was stated last night that Great Britain was not satisfied with the Japanese reply to the protest at the wounding of the British ambassador to China and that the government would press for full satisfaction.

RAINING ON FAIR DAY

Smithers Got Bad Break From Weather Man But Had Good Show

SMITHERS, Sept, 8:—Selecting Smithers on Fair Day as the one place in British Columbia upon which to pour an accumulation of rain the weather man turned his attention to this district and soaked the valley with a heavy downpour of rain thereby changing what gave every indication of being one of the most successful fairs in the history of the Valley into a virtual wash-out.

One wet day in centre of a great many fine days was the luck of the Fall Fair Board and a great deal of effort was annuled therby.

From early morning until after noon it rained real hard. It stopped raining about 3 p.m. but the sky was lowering and the ground was sodden and the scheduled baseball game and the horse racing were abandoned.

The indoor exhibits were there in large numbers, however, and many people attended to look at these despite the unfavorable weather.

The produce displayed was of a very high order as was also the Indian work. The school display was the largest ever shown at the local fair and was of an exceptionally high class, indicating the latent talent of both the boys and girls.

There was a nice assortment of ore in the mineral exhibit and Dr. Kindle of the Dominion Geological Survey working in the district acted as judge in this class and was impressed with the fine samples of local ore being displayed.

C. H. Sawle of New Hazelton was a very interesting visitor at the fair and was amazed at the superiority of the local produce over some of the same kinds from his own district. He was great admirer of the flower exhibit and wonders why this district does not compete with the Hazelton Flower Show. He also sampled the exhibits of the culinary art which were on display and thinks that the local ladies are all champions in the art of cooking.

The dance at night was very well attended and was the success that it always is.

The directors of the Fall Fair Association are deserving of a great deal of credit for their efforts to make the annual fair a success and they are also deserving of a great deal of sympathy in the bad break they got on the weather.

Walter Hume, who has been on a trip south, returned to the city from Vancouver on the Prince George this morning.

Soviet Insists That Fascists Are Guilty Of Submarine Piracy

Another Demand Made For Reparations as Result of Sinking of Two Ships—Conference on Mediterranean Situation to be Held Friday

MOSCOW, Sept. 8: (CP)—The Red Army's official newspaper served notice today that the Soviet government will use force "to call Italian sea pirates to their responsibility" if peaceful moves fail. It said the goveernment was determined to obtain redress from Italy for the sinking of two Soviet ships.

ROME, Sept. 8: (CP)—The Soviet government told Italy today that the Fascist answer to charges that Italian submarines had sunk two Russian ships in the Mediterranean was unsatisfactory and repeated the grave accusation made in the original note. The second note is more terse than the first which demanded that the "intolerable situation" in the Mediterranean be ended and that the Soviet be paid reparation for the two lost vessels.

Italy has accepted an invitation to an international conference on "submarine piracy" which has been called for Friday in Switzerland. Russia has protested at an invitation to Germany being sent and suggests that loyalist Spain should also be represented. The conference has been called by Great Britain and France.

ABOLISH RELIEF

There are in the Dominion somewhere about 900,000 people receiving help from the federal or provincial governments or from the municipalities. While this looks like a large number, it is not as large as it might seem. Among those receiving this aid are farmers and thenr dependents, amounting to about 27 per cent. These are men and women and their families who are supposed to be working but who are not sufficiently established in their farms to be self-supporting or who, through failure of crops, are unable to carry on without aid from the government. They are not employed. Then there are something like 46 per cent who are housewives, children under sixteen years of age and aged persons. There is a small group of about five per cent of the whole who are unemployable and who will always need state aid. The total unemployed who are able to do a day's work but cannot get it and who are being relieved by the government number about 200,000 in all throughout the Dominion.

With the steady improvement of conditions this number may be very materially lessened next year although it may not be wholly wiped out. Owing to the seasonable employment in a number of industries it is very difficult to eliminate relief altogether. It should, however, be reduced to a very small minimum except for the unemployables.

In former days the families of old people made themselves responsible for the parents or immediate relatives. Today the government is called upon to keep those who are unable to keep themselves, no matter how well to do may be the immediate relatives.

Many cases also are reported of small farmers drawing relief allowance and refusing to produce anything of value for fear the relief payments may be stopped. This kind of graft will have to be abolished. Taxpayers will realize that, when someone gets money from the government to which they are not entitled, the taxpayers have to pay that much more. Relief that encourages loafing will have to go but genuine relief cases on a small scale will be always with us.

WAR NOT LIKELY TO SPREAD

It does not seem at all likely that the war in China will spread to any other country unless Russia should take a hand in which case Germany may possibly become involved. Undoubtedly Japan knows that Great Britain has not many warships in the Pacific and that she does not dare to withdraw too many from European waters. She also does not fear United States interference although that is the only power with an effective naval force in the Pacific. It is a pretty safe bet that Britain will not act alone in the Orient and coalitions are too slow to cause real trouble. The situation does not look dangerous, although as long as there is war going on in any important country, there is always danger that others may be drawn into it.

INDUSTRY--RESEARCH

The Place of Laboratories Subject of Address by Basil Bailey Before Junior Chamber

"The Place of the Laboratory in Modern Industry" was the subject of Basil E. Bailey of the Prince Rupert Fisheries Experimental Station scientific staff in an address of much interest before the monthly dinner meeting of the Junior Section of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce last night. Mr. Bailey described how science and industry were co-operating today in bringing about greater efficiency and better products in many lines of manufacture. The importance of such co-operation was becoming more and more realized. A general discussion followed the address. In the absence of the president, George L. Rorie, the chair was taken at last night's meeting by J. C. Gilker, vice-president. In addition to members, guests were present in the persons of Clarke McLean and Don Passmore. A new member, A. S. Nickerson, was duly welcomed.

There were many kinds of laboratories, said Mr. Bailey, but the type he intended to deal with more particularly was the industrial laboratory whose primary function was to produce increased revenue by reducing cost of production, improving of products so as to increase markets and develop new products. Laboratory control was now regarded as essential in many industries. The laboratory had now come to be regarded as a unit in an industrial organization.

Costs of production were cut by reducing losses of primary material. Plant operation was studied and analyses made of losses at every point where they occurred. Remedies were then devised. The speaker gave examples of how, through laboratory control, losses had been reduced and costs of production thereby cut in the refined sugar industry, in production of metallurgical concentrates from mine run ore and in the soap industry.

Laboratory Specifications

Many products were now sold on the basis of laboratory specifications. Laboratory control of manufacturing operations was necessary to make standardized products such as lubricating oils and gasoline. In the production of steel laboratory control was of great aid in keeping the carbon content of the product to within the narrow range required. Laboratory functions in connection with the manufacture of flour, cement and pulp and paper were also referred to.

Experienced operators were important but the materials used in modern industrial development were only made possible by accurate control through the laboratory. Continual analysis of materials was going on in laboratories so that the proportions could be adjusted to give the desired products.

The laboratories were also being found invaluable by the industries to test materials being purchased so that the most suitable might be secured and the best value obtained for the money expended. Standard specifications were important. At least one large British Columbia fishing company, said Mr. Bailey, bought all its linseed oil for oiling nets on the basis of reports of its own laboratory. Most large companies had testing laboratories working in connection with the purchasing departments.

Often plant problems could be solved in a more effective way in the laboratory than in the plant itself.

Mr. Bailey then proceeded to discuss the subject of industrial research in improving existing products and development of new products some of which the speaker described in some detail. Formerly many discoveries had been made by isolated research workers but now most important advances were made by highly organized laboratories of large companies. Some of the details of modern research departments —equipment, etc—were outlined by the speaker. Laboratories were also of value in devising means of utilizing waste materials. Large companies had both control and research laboratories. Smaller companies often had only control laboratories. There were also consulting laboratories and laboratories operated by trade associations as well as government laboratories. Services along these lines were ever extending and had assumed international as well as national aspects.

BETTER LIGHT
Makes Better Marks

Are you doing all you can to make sure your children get good marks in school? Do they get enough rest and sleep and good food? Of course, you say! But that's not enough! School days usually mean study nights. And many parents who would never starve their children's stomachs are literally starving their eyes — with insufficient, or glaring light.

Your children live outdoors during the long summer months. Their eyes are accustomed to the intense light of outdoors — up to what lighting experts measure as 10,000 foot candles of light. Indoors, in many homes, their eyes get only 5 to 10 foot candles of light under the average study lamp — when less than 20 foot candles is definitely harmful to youthful eyes.

The only way to be sure your children are getting enough light is to have one of our lighting experts measure the actual light your lamps are now providing. This service is free, and without obligation. Have it done at once!

TERRACE

Labor Day was celebrated quietly in Terrace. There was a baseball game between Usk and Terrace. It was an evenly contested game which was won by the home team 15 to 12. The baseball fans staged a dance in the Orange Hall. Gavins' orchestra supplied the necessary music, which everybody said was better than ever. There was a good dancing crowd.

An alarm was circulated about 4 o'clock on Monday afternoon when Mrs. Bissonette's two-year-old baby was lost. She had been out playing with some little friends and these had apparently run away to their homes leaving the little tot far from the Bissonette place. As dusk came on and no sign of the child search parties scoured the surrounding brush and the search was continued by lantern and flashlight into and right through the night. Jack Sparkes and Wilfred Dumas found her at 6:15 in the morning, whimpering faintly among the debris along the river's edge, cold and frightened but with good prospects of getting over it alright.

CHAN FILM AT CAPITOL

Warnr Oland Here in His Fifteenth Picture of This Role

Warner Oland plays the part of Charlie Chan for the fifteenth consecutive time in "Charlie Chan at the Olympics" which is the mid-week feature offering on the screen of th Capitol Theatre here. The yarn is one of murder and international spies and, as usual, is ably depicted by this popular actor. The spy ring is neatly fooled when the wily Oriental sleuth substitutes a radio direction-indicator for a secret airplane radio control device which the criminals are seeking to obtain. As a result, they fall into the hands of the police and a baffling mystery is solved. The supporting cast includes Katherine De Mille, Pauline Moore, Allan Lane, Keye Luke and C. Henry Gordon.

The other end of the mid-week double bill is a speedy comedy romance, "Fifty Roads to Town" with Don Amache and Ann Sothern heading the cast. The story is built around the adventures of two snowbound strangers who are marooned in a mountain cabin by a blizzard. Mistaken identity plays an important part in the zestful escapade. The supporting cast includes Slim Summerville, Jane Darwell, John Qualen, Douglas Fowley, Allan Lane, Alan Dinehart and Stepin Fetchit.

Dr. R. G. Large and Dr. J. P. Cade will sail tomorrow night on the Prince George for Vancouver where they will attend a medical postgraduate clinic. From Vancouver they will motor through the Cariboo district and the central interior to Hazelton and thence back here.

A communication read at last night's meeting of the Junior Section of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce outlined the program of the annual convention of British Columbia Junior Chambers of Commerce which is now in progress at Vancouver with G. L. Rorie, president of the local chamber, in attendance as a delegate.
