Canada's Royal Guests—

EARLIER YEARS GAVE GEORGE NO TITLE TO HIGH PLACE OF KING

Birth and Childhood of Neither King Nor Queen Marked By Prospects of Present Exalted Posts

By The Canadian Press

There was little thought at the birth of a second boy to the then Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York at Sandringham, December 14, 1895, that the young prince, 41 years later, would become George VI. "of Great Britain, Ireland, and of the British dominions beyond the seas. King . . ."

Much less was it imagined on August 4, 1900, the new-born daughter of the ancient Scottish family of Bowes Lyon, a commoner, would one day be Queen Consort and journey to Canada with the King on a fresh venture in royal contacts with self-governing dominions. But already their Majesties are no strangers to their peoples.

Prince Albert — now the King— was born 18 months after his lusty brother Edward, afterwards Prince of Wales, later King Edward VIII and now Duke of Windsor. Likelihood of kingship for Albert was remote. His great grandmother, the revered Victoria, was then in the last decade of her 64-year reign. His grandfather, Edward, his father, George and the elder brother Edward were before him in the succession.

Queen Victoria was at that time [illegible] the immediate circle of her own family, the Canadian Press recalls. But overpressed with the uncertainties of even royal lives she alone may have had a vision of the second prince reaching the throne with the name Albert, after her late husband the Prince Consort. When the young Albert, in the fate of kings, did become a monarch, he chose to be the sixth of the Georges, honoring the memory of his own father.

Some historians of the day relate Good Queen Victoria was quite disturbed that the latest royal prince should arrive on the anniversary of the death of the consort over whose loss she had remained inconsolable for many years. The mournful coincidence was rendered less painful for her, however, when the parents (afterwards King George and Queen Mary) readily agreed that the first name of their second child should be Albert. He was christened Albert Frederick Arthur George.

Queen Victoria's own diary shows a more cheerful reaction to the event: "This terrible anniversary has returned for the 34th time," the Queen wrote, referring to the loss of the Prince Consort. "When I went to my dressing room I found telegrams from Georgie (George V) saying that dear May (Queen Mary) had been safely delivered of a son at three this morning. Georgie's first feeling was regret that this dear child should be born on such a bad day. I have a feeling thaat it may be a blessing for the dear little boy and may be looked upon as a gift from God."

Brother's Recommendation

Prince Albert spent his earlier years at York Cottage, Sandringham, the country home of his parents, then the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. He was generally in the company of Prince Edward, afterwards Edward VIII. Those boyhood companionships left Edward with a good impression of his younger brother's character and abilities. When Prince of Wales he remarked on one occasion: "My brother Bertie (Albert) would make a better King than I would." The future, when Albert reigned in his stead, give observers of another day an opportunity to make comparisons.

Second sons in the line of succession are never such subjects of

A BOX OF BAD NEWS FOR BRITONS

You'd never guess from the tender, almost benign smile on the face of Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon, that the battered case he holds in his hand here as he left the treasury for the House of Parliament, contained bad news for Britain's millions. That is the famous and historic budget box, containing Sir John's recommendations for raising revenue in the coming year. This year, thanks to Britain's rearmament program, new taxes were imposed on Britons, among them an increase in income tax, bringing the total income levy of Englishmen up to more than 27 per cent.

EUROPEAN DIPLOMACY

In view of recent changes, it is difficult to follow European diplomacy. With Great Britain and France now loosely tied to Germany and Italy, it is easy to understand how the Communists of France might precipitate a strike such as is going on. It is also easy to see that in the Orient there might be differences over the change of front. Japan, being tied up with Germany and Italy and opposed to Communism, it is not difficult to realize that Communistic China might be inclined to break with Britain.

Canadian sympathies generally seem to have been with China in the Orient and with the government forces in Spain, although there are many who have opposite sympathies, especially in regard to the Spanish situation.

THE SHEEP AND THE GOATS

The world seems to be dividing into those favoring Communism and those opposed to it. The statement of Stalin that Russia is ringed about with enemies seems to be more or less true, except that Great Britain and France have shown no active enmity to the Soviets and certainly would not do so if the Comintern would mind its own business and not keep on boring from within as is being done in this and other countries.

Many of us in Canada feel a very great sympathy with the Russian people and would like to see them succeed under their chosen form of government were it not for the constant efforts of the Internationale to interfere in our own administration. That is the reason for the Padlock Law in Quebec. It may become the reason for restrictive measures in the United States and the present upheaval in France may possibly lead to the establishment of a dictatorship in that country.

THE LESSER EVIL

In view of these trends we shall view with great interest all international movements and note to what extent they conform with what we have outlined. It must be remembered that the dictatorship in Italy was set up at a time when Communism had a strong hold on the country and was designed to save Italy from a dictatorship of the prolitariat. Hitler pushed himself to the fore to save Germany from Communism. Several other countries have had dictators forced upon them for similar reasons. There is a possibility of other countries following if Communism becomes too active.

It is curious that dictatorships have arisen because of Communism and yet in Russia, the home of Communism, a dictator had to whip the people into line to keep them from breaking away from Communism after a crude form of it had been established. Many lives have been taken in Russia in the effort to stamp out democracy and keep the dictatorship in power. The people of Russia, just like the people of Germany and Italy, do dare not express an opinion that is out of line with the opinion of the dictators. People who express opinions are liquidated.

observation as heirs-apparent and it would appear Prince Albert was a bit eclipsed by David, as Edward was known in the royal family. "It was the elder boy's pranks during their visit to their indulgent grandparents which were noted by visitors to Sandringham," wrote one observer.

The late Lord Esher, governor of Windsor Castle and a close friend and confidant of the royal family, with an excellent opportunity of noting the characteristics of the two boys wrote in his diary in 1901: "The second boy is the sharpest but there is something rather taking about Prince Edward."

Daughter of Scotland

Lady Elizabeth Bowes Lyon, as the Queen was first known, is the youngest daughter and the youngest child but one of 10 born to Sir Claude George and Lady Nina Bowes Lyon. Sir Claude in 1904 succeeded his father as the 14th Earl of Strathmore. At that time a Scottish barony it was in 1937 created the earldom of Strathmore and Kinghorne in the United Kingdom.

It has been pointed out both the King and Queen descended from Henry. VII, the first of the Tudor kings, through his marriage with Elizabeth of York in 1486. The Queen's father traced his descent from Sir John Lyon of Forteviot, to whom Robert II of Scotland granted the lands and thanage of Glamis in Forfarshire.

The Queen, while properly a daughter of Scotland, in her early years saw far more of the placid scene of St. Paul's Waldenbury, Hertfordshire, England, than of Glamis with its rugged battlements and tragic story. Shakespeare placed the murder of Duncan by Macbeth at Glamis, though hard facts of history reduce it to a poetic legend

During the Great War years Glamis was turned into a military hospital and Lady Elizabeth, her four brothers at the front, was a familiar figure around its great rooms.

"She had the loveliest pair of blue eyes I'd ever seen— very eloquent, expressive eyes that could speak for themselves," wrote a Gordon Highlander who was nursed back to health and strength at Glamis. "She had a very taking habit of knitting her forehead just a little now and then when speaking and her smile was a refreshment."

Incidentally, a portrait of Cleverhouse hanging in the old banqueting hall of Glamis is a reminder that Elizabeth's ancestors fought valiantly for the Scottish Covenant. Moreover portraits of the Stuart King are reminiscent of the days when the Queen's ancestors battled for the Jacobites against the English.

DISGUSTED

Editor, Daily News:

Sometimes your editorials are good. Sometimes they border on brilliancy but your remarks in Thursday's Daily News regarding "what is known as a health campaign" descend to the depths of puerility! Apparently, you believe that the public should be left to its own devices, to attempt by the trial-and-error methods of the Dark Ages to find its way out of labyrinth of ignorance in which such a policy as you advocate keeps it. If you are consistent in your views, Mr. Editor, you will, doubtless, soon be writing a companion editorial to impress upon your readers the inherent dangers of placing warning signs at hairpin curves and other such hazardous spots on our highways for fear that our motorists become neurotically curve-conscious and start driving around curves that are not there!

Dear! Dear! Dear! Mr. Editor, what is the world coming to when its people cannot be informed about ways of protecting themselves from disease or death without being editorially accused of being hypochondriasis!

Yours in disgust,
E. B. PUGSLEY, M. D.

SPORT CHAT

Winter sports at Smithers are now getting well under way. Two basketball leagues—men and girls—are in operation and games are played regularly on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Play started this week. League hockey will soon be getting under way and, early in the New Year, the Smithers senior team expects to do some travelling. Curlers in the interior town are also getting active, having had their annual meeting on Thursday night of this week. Cribbage is one of the less active winter sports at Smithers. The Smithers Athletic Association has a more or less paternal interest in the direction of most of the winter sports.

South Africa is becoming baseball conscious and such centres as Johannesburg, Cape Town and Durban have from 10 to 15 organized teams. Inter-city games are played each year by the strongest teams from these three cities and sell-outs are frequent for the games. The trade commissioner estimated the main grandstand in the Cape Town park seats about 3,000 fans. Major league baseball clubs in the United States have nothing on South African teams in the distance the travel to play games. When inter-city games are played between Johannesburg and Cape Town teams travel approximately 1,000 miles each way.

Negro Title Holder Gave Garcia Bad Beating In First 11 Rounds And Fought Off Closing Attack

NEW YORK, November 26: (CP)— Henry Armstrong, Los Angeles negro, successfully defended his world's welterweight title here last night for the first time since winning it from Barney Ross. He outpointed Ceferino Garcia in fifteen fast and furious rounds which roused a howling crowd of fans in Madison Square Garden. Armstrong gave Garcia a bad beating about the head and body with his slashing lefts and rights during the first eleven rounds and, at the start of the twelfth round, Referee Art Donovan looked Garcia over to make sure he was fit to go on. During the last four rounds the Filipino engaged in rushes that obviously hurt the little colored mammerer but failed to slow up his terrific pace.

Weights were: Armstrong, 133½ pounds; Garcia, 146. The weight advantage was, undoubtedly, a great factor in Garcia's favor and a corresponding handicap for Armstrong.

In the first round Garcia took the lead and forced the pace but it was not long before Armstrong took command which he maintained with fierce and effective leather throwing. Neither fighter spared an effort and a great pace was driven. On several occasions Garcia was forced into the ropes by his much lighter opponent. While the negro did the most effective hitting, the Filipino was not without a lively response, particularly towards the close although he never faltered. Despite the pace and punishment that both gave and received, Garcia's face being pretty badly cut up, they were both fresh at the end. Garcia several times was obviously trying for a knockout but he found Armstrong impregnable, taking everything and seemingly minding not a bit.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL

Vexed Problem Again Arises At Meeting of Local Hospital Board

The isolation hospital situation, in view of the present outbreak of scarlet fever here, was up for discussion at last night's meeting of the hospital board, the old question of responsibility for the operation of the decrepit and poorly equipped quarters being once again gone into. The outcome of the discussion was the passage of a motion, proposed by F. A. MacCallum and seconded by W. M. Brown, that the hospital board does not assume any financial responsibility in connection with the establishment.

The question came up in connection with the reading of correspondence between the hospital and the provincial secretary on the subject. The isolation hospital, it appears, was opened up to receive as a patient a man who had been a member of the crew of the steamer Princess Louise. Under these circumstances, some question has arisen as to just where the responsibility rests for the paying of the operation of the isolation hospital. The city commissioner here has refused to pay, so has the city of Victoria where the patient comes from. Correspondence from the provincial secretary fails to fix the responsibility but gives assurance that, somehow or other, the cost will be taken care of. Meantime, it was reported to the board that the medical health officer here had made personal cash advances in connection with the payment of special nurses who had been brought here to staff the isolation hospital.

These nurses were engaged by Miss Jean Harrison R. N., lady superintendent of the Prince Rupert General Hospital, who, fearful of the responsibility of anything in the way of accident at the isolation hospital, told of deplorable conditions existing at the isolation hospital.

PREMIERS OF ONTARIO AND QUEBEC MEET, JO IN FORCES

At this meeting of the provincial premiers of Ontario and Quebec in Montreal, united action was planned in a joint opposition to any radical change in the British North America Act was decided upon. Premier Duplessis of Quebec was also sounded out by his Ontario colleague on the question of the export of power, urged upon the Ottawa government by Mr. Hepburn. Members of the two delegations in the Montreal conference are pictured. Left to right the group includes: Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Hon. Paul Leduc, Hon. Gordon Conant of the Ontario cabinet; Premier Duplessis of Quebec, Premier Hepburn of Ontario, Hon. T. J. Conan and Hon. B. Dussault of Quebec and Hon. Peter Heenan of Ontario.

PAVES WAY WITH JOKES

Bon Vivant of Nazi Cabinet Good Storey Teller and Makes Eastward Push Easier

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

BERLIN, Nov. 26: (CP)—Nobody in the German cabinet of Adolf Hitler gets more fun out of life than short, chubby, dry-humored Walther Funk, Nazi minister of economics, direct successor in that office to high-collared Dr. Hjalmar Schacht.

Germany's "push to the east" is continuing and the driving force is not high-powered guns but high-powered salesmanship directed by Walther Funk.

Funk is the bon vivant of the cabinet, the man who admittedly loves good things to eat and to drink, who is fond of care-free society, who so dotes on the fine arts that he almost became a professional pianist.

At a time when feeling was tense over the arrest of Lutheran Pastor Martin Niemoeller, he said in an aside during a conference with foreign news men. "You know, I almost became a Lutheran pastor. You can imagine where I'd be now!"

During the sessions of the international commission of ambassadors in October he inquired from Ankara, Turkey, where he happened to be visiting, "What has happened to Pilsen?" When told that Pilsen would remain Czech, he said, "One can tell that there are no beer drinkers on the commission."

Knows His Economics

Unlike some of his more pontifical colleagues in the cabinet, he does not hesitate to use expressions like, "when I became minister of the Reich through an accident." Funk can afford to be ironical about himself: his is a fund of economic knowledge such as few leaders in Hitler's Third Reich possess.

Fact is, he came into politics via journalism. Born August 18, 1890, in Trakenhnen, East Prussia, famous for its blooded horses, where his family had been for centuries, he attended the "gymnasium" at Insterburg and then headed for a newspaper career. He studied at Berlin and Leipzig.

After serving on various dailies in Middle Germany he devoted himself in 1922-23 to writing a series of articles and pamphlets on German economy. Men like Schacht, former Ambassador Hans Luther and the late nationalist leader, Karl Helfferich, sought his advice when Germany went over from an inflated currency to a stable exchange.

As chief editor of the trade section of the Berliner Boersenzeitung he became a bitter critic of reparations, foreign loans and subservience to foreign financial interests.

As early as 1931 he became head of the economic section of Hitler's National Socialist party. On the day Hitler assumed power—January 30, 1933—Der Fuehrer appointed him press chief of the German government.

Soon thereafter Dr. Joseph Goebbels was entrusted with founding the ministry for propaganda and public enlightment. Funk became his State's secretary, in other words, the man next after him in the hierarchy and the man responsible for the administration of the huge ministry.

The Prince Rupert General Hospital is reasonably full at this time and work of the institution is going along in a normal way, Miss Jean Harrison R. N., lady superintendent, advised the board at its regular monthly meeting last night.

HOSPITAL FINANCES

In the monthly report of the finance committee of which he is chairman, F. A. MacCallum advised the board of directors of the Prince Rupert General Hospital that there had been a total of 1365 hospital days at the institution during October, the per diem cost being $2.76. NEWS OF THE MINES

Good Ore in Silver Standard Mine Reported—Coronado at Smithers Makes Shipment—Pioneer Northern Prospector Dies

Government assayers report $245 ore in samples sent to them from the Silver Standard mine, well known Hazelton property, which is again going into production. There is said to be a good tonnage of that kind of ore ready to be taken out of the mine as soon as the plant can be put on the ground. Work is being rushed on a power house and on the road to a lower tunnel where the mill will be located. The machinery has already been delivered at New Hazelton. It is said that, from the start, the company will ship at least a carload a week to be increased as time goes on until the concentrating plant is installed in the spring.

Immanuel Olsen has returned to his home at New Hazelton after having been engaged for several years in mining in the Atlin district. He expects to return there next spring.

Very encouraging returns have been received from a shipment of ore made from the old colorado mine on Hudson Bay Mountain near Smithers recently. The test shipment of 3¼ tons made by Fred Griffin under a leasing arrangement from the owners returned $102.60 after paying all freight and treatment charges. The ore shipped was taken from several tunnels on the property and included some re-sacked ore taken out twenty years ago. Harry Orm has now joined Mr. Griffin and they plan to work the property throughout the winter with the expectation of having a full carload ready for shipment next spring. The Coronado was located about thirty years ago, being owned by Jack Halley, the late Pearl Fleming and the late R. J. McDonnell. The property has seen a great deel of work including the driving of several tunnels. Owing to lack of road facilities, the property has been handicapped in the past. Mr. Griffin operated the property throughout the past summer, packed the ore down despite the steep hill.

One of the real old time prospectors of the Dog Creek area north of Vanderhoof passed away last week at the age of seventy-two years in the person of Peter Anderson. The late Mr. Anderson has prospected for many years in the north, having been at various times in the Yukon, Cassiar and Omineca districts. He was a fine old representative of the pioneer mining school type. His funeral took place at Fort St. James.

E. T. Kenney, M.L.A. for Skeena, has been appointed to the mining committee of the British Columbia Legislature. His experience and knowledge of mining affairs, particularly of the north, should prove of value.

Hospital Does Not Want Baby

Pathological Laboratory Matter For Doctors, Members of Board Feel

Some members of the hospital board, at the regular monthly meeting last night, perceived a move on the part of the Prince Rupert Medical Association to foist an unwanted baby upon the hospital. The baby is the pathological laboratory which was established a few months ago at the hospital. The definite understanding at the time was that the hospital would provide the quarters for the laboratory, make available such equipment as it already had and look after the board of the doctor in charge, the Medical Association to assume responsibility otherwise. Now the Medical Association is proposing that the hospital board levy a flat charge on all pay patients in the hospital for laboratory service, the charge to be settled upon by negotiation between the board and Dr. Coleman, the doctor in charge of the laboratory.

W. M. Brown expressed his opposition to the board assuming any further responsibility in connection with the laboratory. "This is a medical association baby, not ours," he asserted.

W. O. Fulton agreed that it seemed unfair to tax all patients for a service regardless of whether they used or desired it.

Miss Jean Harrison R. N., lady superintendent, was inclined to feel that a general laboratory service for all patients was desirable. The service was already being made available to other than pay patients.

It was finally decided to refer the matter to the executive committee to take up with Dr. Coleman or the Medical Association.

British Tars Repair Damage From Jap Shells

Seamen of the British gunboat Ladybird upon arrival at Shanghai are pictured repairing damage done to the vessel when it was attacked by Japanese bombing aeroplanes on the Yangtse some time ago. The tars found it necessary to plug a hole in the boat's hull down near the waterline. In this picture they are removing traces of shelling from the upper structure.

Story Hour Commences

Sixty-One Children Are Entertained This Morning

The fifth season of the Children's Story Hour got away to a good start this morning with about sixty-one in attendance. After welcoming the children, Mrs. Robert Cameron introduced the new members of the staff, then read a letter from the author of the new serial story, "The Box Car Adventure," the first chapter of which was told by Kitty Cameron who later delighted the children with the amusing tale of "Bertram and His Giraffe, Rudolph." The remaining part of the hour was in the hands of Dr. J. T. Mandy who related an interesting Indian legend, "Falling Stars," and entertained with lantern slides of Indian life.

Next week the Story Hour will be in charge of Mrs. Cameron assisted by Isabel McCrimmon and Jean Cameron and is for children from four to eight years.

A. J. Prudhomme left on last evening's train for Telkwa where he plans on spending the next two weeks or so.

City Commissioner W. J. Alder will be in session Monday morning in his capacity as a city council to ratify transfer of various properties and conduct other business requiring his attention.

Waterfront Whiffs

Herring Run Spotty So Far—Waterfront Quiet These Days — Promise of Boatbuilding Activity—Capt. Holberg's Death is Shock

A "spotty" run of herring developed in Prince Rupert Harbor since the end of last week and, while a few scattered catches have been taken by seineboats which enabled the reduction plants at Tucks Inlet and Port Edward to make a start, the quantity was of by no means sufficient volume to permit of continuous operation. A close watch is being kept not only in the harbor but in other adjacent waters for a run of material proportions developing and the reduction plants are ready to operate on a full scale just as soon as the fish are available.

As usual after the closing of halibut fishing for the season, late November sees Prince Rupert waterfront in the doldrums. Except for the odd boat still out for codfishing, the halibut fleet is tied up and quiet. The salmon trollers have also gone into winter quarters at Prince Rupert and the various settlements hereabouts. One encouraging feature is the promise of considerable in the way of boatbuilding activity this winter. In fact, most of the yards now have boats under way and others planned. These mostly consist of salmon trollers.

Friends in the local fishing fraternity and along the Prince Rupert waterfront were shocked to hear yesterday of the death in Vancouver under tragic circumstances of Capt. Ole Holberg, skipper of the well known halibut boat Constance B. Capt. Holberg, although Vancouver was the headquarters of himself and his boat, was well known in Prince Rupert and very popular.

Len Williams arrived in port at 9 o'clock this morning from Alaska and, after discharging five carloads of frozen fish for transshipment East over Canadian National Railways, sailed at 1 o'clock this afternoon in continuation of her voyage to Seattle.

Alan Jacklin, young son of Sergeant and Mrs. Chris Jacklin, who sustained rather extensive abrasions yesterday when struck by an automobile on Fifth Avenue East was able to be taken home today from Prince Rupert General Hospital. No bones were broken and there were no internal injuries.

Usk-Hazelton Road Subject Of Questions

Colin Cameron, C.C.F. member for Comox, has been interesting himself in the progress of construction of the transcontinental highway between Usk and Hazelton and had some questions concerninng same to ask in the Legislature recently. So far, $82,792.26 has been expended on this road, Mr. Cameron was informed by Hon. F. M. McPherson, minister of public works. Construction was to standard trunk highway specifications through difficult country, one mile having been built in 1936, two miles in 1937 and one mile in 1938.

Man in the Moon

Mrs. Madge MacBein says that Canada is known in South America as the country of the Dionne quintuplets.

And yet how many Canadians in this part of the country seem to be trying to emulate the Dionnes?

Perhaps it is because some of our French Canadian residents are failing in their duty to their country.

Jake suggests that prayers might be effective in securing another complete set similar to the Dionnes.

Lord, give us a full set of quints
How to get them just give a few hints
For such great fame is theirs
Who do better than pairs
No matter what gender or tints.

"Cook, I don't like to mention it, but the food disappears rather quickly in the kitchen!"

"Well, mum, I admits I eats 'earty, but no one could call me gorgeous."

"Will you please signal to me in the gallery when Mr. —— begins to speak!" asked a constituent of a member.

"Certainly, sir, certainly," replied the senator.

"Well, what shall the signal be?" asked the constituent.

"I'll leave," answered the the senator, with much enthusiasm.

"I went back to my old job the other day."

"Been out of work long?"

"Thirty-six years."

"Hadn't you forgotten how to do it?"

"I managed it all right."

"What is your line?"

"I'm a Coronation program seller."
