Chamberlain Tells House Of Norway

TACTICS CHANGED

Abandonment of British Campaign Against Trondheim From South Announced

LONDON, May 2.— Abandonment of Allied campaign to capture the strategic Norwegian port of Trondheim from the south and evacuation without loss of a single man from the embarkation point of Andalsnes was admitted by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in speaking to Parliament today on the Norwegian situation. Mr. Chamberlain did not give details but the forces are believed to have been taken aboard warships and transports to be landed to the north of Trondheim, possibly at Namsos. Mr. Chamberlain ridiculed the Nazi claim that the retreat had been one of wild disorder. It had become evident, the Prime Minister said, that the air activities of the German aggressors against a defenceless and unarmed people would make it impossible to land heavy artillery and tanks that would be required to support the troops if Trondheim was to be taken from the south.

ENEMY LOSSES GREATER

Within the past few hours, the Prime Minister disclosed, the whole force had been withdrawn from Andalsnes, 100 miles south of Trondheim, "under the very noses of German airplanes which, as far as I am aware, lost a single man."

Despite the withdrawal, the Prime Minister stressed that it was too soon to strike a balance sheet since the campaign had merely concluded a single phase in which it was safe to say that, "if we have not achieved our objective, neither have the Germans achieved theirs while their losses have been far greater."

The Prime Minister added that Great Britain and France had already strengthened their Mediterranean fleets with cruisers and battleships needed no longer in the North Sea because so many German vessels had been destroyed.

The Allies had no intention of allowing Norway to become a sideshow.

Mr. Chamberlain again pleaded for patience on the part of the British people.

The Premier's statement was received in comparative silence, many members appearing to be stunned by its implications.

Four Nazi Ships Sunk as Allies Strike Hard With Naval and Air Forces in Kattegat

STOCKHOLM, May 2: (CP)— A two-hour naval and air battle in the Kattegat off Goteborg, Sweden, resulted in the destruction of four German transports last night. The Allied forces struck hard and met with considerable success. Some of the vessels were seen sinking in flames from the coast of Sweden. The Nazi troop and supply ships were bound from bases in Denmark to Norway when intercepted by the Allied surface craft and airplanes. The battle took place about ten miles off the Swedish coast.

Royal Air Force bombers harried German airport terminals in Denmark and Norway yesterday, causing heavy damage and shooting down one seaplane without loss to themselves, the Air Ministry reported.

FINAL BULLETINS

OIL COMPANIES BLOCKING

VANCOUVER—Mayor Lyle Telford said today that major oil companies in Seattle were "blocking" his plan to bring in gasoline from that city to ease the Vancouver shortage. Independent service station operators have put up cash to bring in up to 50,000 gallons daily. The first 5,000 gallons was due to roll last night but the mayor said that "oil companies in Seattle are blocking transportation." Oil companies today offered Telford their trucks at prevailing haulage rates to bring in gas from Seattle. The mayor said he "might be interested." Premier Pattullo has advised Mayor Telford that a proposed amendment to city charter to enable it to go into the gas business cannot be dealt with at next week's special session of the Legislature.

Capt. Ole Skog's Fine New Seineboat Thelma S. Takes To Water In Burrard Inlet

LAUNCHING IS SUCCESS

Capt. Ole Skog's new vessel "Thelma S." was successfully launched recently at the K. & M. Boat Works in Vancouver where she was built. Length overall 61 feet, beam 16 feet three inches, draft about seven feet and powered with a 135 h.p. V-8 Caterpillar diesel engine, it is anticipated that this will be one of the fastest seine boats on the Pacific Coast.

The launching took place in the presence of about 300 friends and interested spectators. Miss Thelma Skog smashed the magnum of champagne on the bow and christened the new vessel. She was presented with a beautiful bouquet of red carnations by William McIntyre of the Finning Tractor & Equipment Co. Ltd. of Vancouver.

Many prominent figures in the fishing industry were at the launching, including Wm. Dolmage of the Harbor Towing Co., Capt. Frank Cvitanovich, Capt. Sam Jassick, Capt. Herge, Mr. Paddy Moran of Standard Oil and Ted LePage of Home Oil.

Refreshments were served and, amid applause, Capt. Skog told the assembled guests the record of events leading up to the building and launching of his sturdy seiner.

It was a grand occasion and everyone enjoyed it.

Belgrade Continues, However, to Take Precautionary Measures Despite Assurances Given by Dictators

BELGRADE, May 2: (CP)—Italian and German diplomats assured the Yugo-Slav government today that any fears of aggression by these countries of aggression against the Balkan states are groundless. Admiralty Announces Loss of Escort Vessel and Mine Sweeper in Norwegian War

LONDON, May 2: (CP)—The Admiralty today announced that no casualties were as yet reported in the loss of H.M.S. Bittern, a 1,109-ton sloop, used as an escort vessel, off the Norwegian coast. The ship was sunk as a menace to navigation after repeated bombing attacks from German aircraft had set her afire and rendered her useless.

Forty survivors have been landed on the east coast from the 710-ton minespeeper Dunoon which struck a mine and was sunk. It is believed that three officers and 24 men perished. They are missing. The Dunoon dated back to the First Great War when she was built under the emergency naval construction program.

The submarines Shark and Sea Wolf have returned to their bases after having successfully accounted for some German troopships on their way to Norway.

CANADIANS OVERSEAS

It seems that a number of Canadians have joined the air force in Great Britain without stating that their parents or near relatives live in Canada. As a result, if they are wounded or killed, the Canadian relatives are not notified. If any people in this district have sons or near relatives in the British forces they are asked to notify the Canadian Red Cross Society so that a proper record may be kept and, in case they should be in the hospital, they will be properly looked after. This does not refer to men of the Canadian units.

HIS PEOPLE CLOSE TO WAR

Yesterday [illegible] came into the office to order the paper. He told of his people being at Steinkjer in Norway, one of the centres of military activity, and he did not feel very happy about it. Considering how brutal the German soldiers have been at other places it is no wonder he felt uncomfortable at the thought of what may be happening to his people. The war is coming close home to many residents of Prince Rupert and we understand how they feel about it.

ITALY'S POSITION

We are particularly glad to hear that Italy is not planning to enter the war just now. In Prince Rupert there are a great many people who were born in Italy or whose parents were born there. They are bound to feel keenly the situation which has developed. They have thrown in their lot with the British Empire. If the Empire is at war with Italy there is a tendency for a strained feeling to arise which does not make for the best citizenship. For that reason we are glad that the two empires are to be friendly.

AN AIR WAR

It seems as if a large part of the war is to be fought in the air. No action is taken today without air forces taking part. In many cases the mastery of the air is the deciding factor and possibly may be more so in the future. It is a good thing that the Allies have taken steps to rapidly increase their air forces. Canada is already taking an important part in the training of men for this vital force.

ANGLO-FRENCH WORK TOGETHER; ARE STRONG IN THEIR WAR EFFORT

Veteran Observer Finds Much More Cordial Feeling Than In Early Phases of First Great War

Written for the Canadian Press

By MAJOR-GENERAL SIR CHARLES GWYNN

LONDON, May 2: (CP)— After more than six months of war, it has become extremely enlightening to compare the excellence of Anglo-French co-operation with the less satisfactory state of affairs in the opening phases of the last war. In the last war, though there was such loyal co-operation and determination to achieve a common end, it cannot be denied that there was an undercurrent of distrust and criticism, largely due to a lack of full understanding of the share each was contributing to the war effort and of each other's methods.

By mutual consent British relations with France have never been so cordial or so well established as they are now. Nor have they ever covered such a wide field of activities.

After the First Great War it was realized, by soldiers especially, that should Germany become a menace, France and Britain must again stand side by side, and that the causes of former rivalries had been eliminated. Steps were therefore taken to maintain contacts established during the war and to clear up misunderstandings that had occurred in it by a frank interchange of views.

We are now gathering fruits from a well-prepared soil. War correspondents have reported the cordial relations existing between British and French troops and in the villages where British troops are quartered.

Express Admiration

There is an eagerness to acknowledge the help given promptly and efficiently by all grades of the French army and civil organizations. There is outspoken admiration of the high morale and high standard of training in the French forces.

No doubt, the prompt acceptance of conscription by Britain and the fact that France has not, as in the last war, had to sacrifice many lives while Britain prepared for action, have contributed to the happy conditions which exist.

Further afield the agreement just concluded for co-operation in economic and in colonial affairs is a good augury of a permanent recognition of the closeness of the common interests of the two countries.

Is it too optimistic to hope that, when the war is brought to a successful conclusion, our two countries will form the nucleus of a practical and flexible form of a Federation with which democratic nations may associate themselves?

Captain Colthurst Tells Japanese of Being in Prison With Churchill in South Africa

A copy of the Japan Chronicle just to hand tells of a recent visit to Kobe of Captain John Bowen-Colthurst, who contested this riding in the last provincial election and who since that time has been living at Sooke, B. C. He has recently been visiting north China on a sight seeing trip.

Interviewed in Kobe, Captain Colhurst is reported to have said:

"My own hope is that through compromise and mutual understanding it will be possible for two great Empires, the Japanese and the British, to recover their old footing of friendship. As Sir Robert Craigie pointed out in his speech the other day in our history and our traditions as well as in our geographical similarities, we have much in common."

In an interview with the same paper Captain Colthurst told of being a prisoner in South Africa along with Right Hon. Winston Churchill just before Churchill escaped. He told of the escape, how he bluffed the sentries, hopped a train and, not knowing a word of the language of the natives or the Boers, managed to get away into Portuguese territory.

The Captain also told the newspaperman of his admiration for Mr. Churchill, giving as one example how his hero had galloped up to sixty armed Boers, any one of whom could have shot him and one of whom nearly did. A few minutes later the Union Jack was hoisted amid cheers. He said he saw Lieutenant Grant in Thibet win the Victoria Cross and other epic deeds at Mons but he always thought Churchill's gallop was the bravest deed of all.

Albert Farrow, steamboat inspector, is paying one of his periodical visits to the city on official duties, having arrived from Vancouver on the Prince George yesterday morning. He will return south tonight.

MAIL FOR OVERSEAS

No Chance Taken With Slow Transport—Postics Training At Ottawa For Service Abroad

OTTAWA, May 2: (CP)—Postmasters for Canada's overseas forces receive their training in a hard school. The men who will dole out the mail and parcels containing goodies from home to soldiers serving in France and England must serve an apprenticeship at the Base Army Post Office in Ottawa.

It is through that office that all mail consigned to troops overseas must pass and there the men of the postal corps come up against practically all the problems they may meet in the army postal service anywhere.

The base Post Office in Ottawa is at once a busy centre of active work and a training depot from which drafts will be sent overseas as required for the postal needs of Canada's expanding overseas army.

Train Under Veteran

A staff of 30 postal corps men under Major G. W. Ross, experienced post office official and veteran of the Postal Corps in the last war, trains for overseas by handling some 20 tons of mail a week.

Here they have to straighten out all the tangles which arise from improper addressing of mail as best they can. Sometimes they fail because the sender neglects to put on the envelope the regimental number of the man to whom it is addressed or his unit.

Each battalion, battery, or other unit of the forces overseas has a separate bag for its parcels, newspapers and letters in the base Post Office. As the mail is sorted it is dropped into its proper bag and the bag is sealed and sent off to an eastern port.

There it must wait for a suitable ship. Mail for the troops is not sent on slow freighters. Only ships which have the best chance of eluding attack by the enemy are used. So it is that sometimes a ship may carry an accumulation of several days' mail. That means occasional delays but it is better than risking complete loss.

Alternative Address

On parcels of consumable goods, such as cigarettes, tobacco, candy and other foods, the postal corps likes to see an alternative address. Tobacco companies which ship gifts at special rates give the officer commanding the addressee's unit as the alternative address.

Then, if the addressee cannot be located, the officer commanding may distribute the cigarettes or tobacco among the men of the unit. If no alternative address is given and the man for whom the parcel is intended cannot be found the parcel must be returned to the sender who will then be presented with a bill for return mailing charges. If it contains cigarettes they will probably be dried out and worthless by the time they get back to Canada whereas, when the alternative address is given, some soldier overseas can enjoy them.

HIS MAJESTY COLLECTS THE TICKETS

You might call this the photograph of a faux pas. The British soldier at left had just arrived on leave from France. Rushing to take the train for London, he shoved his ticket into the hand of the man in blue uniform with gold-braided cap who stood at the platform entrance. Then he looked into the face of the "ticket collector" and snapped to the salute. The "collector" was King George. The King grinned broadly, tore out the soldier's ticket from the book and handed it back to the stunned Tommy.

War Conferences At Indian Table

Important Talks Held Over Choice Antique From Ranee's Palace

LONDON, May 2: (CP)—Britain's army council holds its frequent deliberations over a much-travelled table that stood in a Ranee's palace in India until an Irish regiment took it after capturing Jhansi fortress in 1858 in the Indian mutiny.

A recently-inserted silver plaque on the table proclaims it was "presented on trust to the army council by the officers of the Prince of Wales Leinster Regiment (Royal Canadians) on disbandment, July 31, 1922." The Canadian connection is explained by the Leinsters being amalgamated with a regiment raised in Canada during the Indian Mutiny.

Presentation of the table came when, in common with other Southern Irish forces, the regiment was disbanded in 1922 on creation of the Irish Free State (Eire). The Prince of Wales, colonel-in-chief of the Leinsters, presented the table to the army council.

Steam Rollered Says Labor M.P.

LONDON, May 2: (CP) —J. L. Hollins, Labor M.P. for Silvertown, was pertinent when he gave his first impression of the House of Commons in his maiden speech.

Mr. Hollins said he had sat hearing fine speeches—pathetic speeches—from the Labor benches, while fewer than four members of the government side were present, excluding the Front Bench. Then at 11 p.m., after the speeches had gone on six hours, a "crowd began to come in like rabbits from their bolt holes," and people who did not know what was in the speeches went into the lobby and "steam-rollered the whole lot." "It does not strike me that that is a very democratic procedure," Mr. Hollins concluded.

Control Of Sea Will Lead To Allied Victory In War; Gyros Hear About Graf Spee Affair

Control of the seas by Great Britain will lead to ultimate victory for the Allies in the present war in the opinion of Lieut. Orme Stuart R.C.N.V.R. who was the speaker yesterday at the regular weekly luncheon of the Prince Rupert Gyro Club. TEACHERS TO MEET

District Council Proposed — City Commissioner Is Sympathetic

The regular monthly meeting of the Prince Rupert Teachers' Association was held last evening with T. L. Davies, president, in the chair.

Correspondence included communications regarding the forming of a district council that would include teachers from adjacent points. There are many problems of a professional nature that could be solved, it was felt, if teachers could discuss them with other teachers. This was not possible in the outlying settlements but, if the teachers could meet occasionally at a central point the problems could be considered and views exchanged with mutual benefits [illegible]. The matter will be gone into further and the possibility of a full convention as a partial solution will be discussed.

Another matter that aroused considerable interest was the proposed new constitution. Teachers will have an opportunity to consider this at length as they will have copies for their personal study and the whole matter will be considered at the June meeting.

A delegation that had met City Commissioner R. S. Gilchrist recently reported on the interview. They had been very favorably impressed with the sympathetic and understanding attitude of the commissioner. [illegible]

STILL ASKS FOR PEACE

ROME, May 2.—In his new voice on behalf of peace, Pope Pius today condemned war as the outcome of "some men's desire and passion for unchecked power."

The Pope was speaking briefly at the canonization of two saints, Marie Euphrasis Pelletier, who formed the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, and Gamma Galgani, French peasant girl, when he blamed "Excessive human covetousness and thirst for power, for war."

Some observers see tension mounting between the Italian government and the Holy See over the German issue. Opposition of the Pope to Hitlerian methods is said to be the principal obstacle in the way of Italy giving more active support to the Reich.

Speaking at a session of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, a prominent Fascist referred to the Vatican as "the chronic appendicitis of Italy." Premier Benito Mussolini and Dino Grandi were in attendance when the remark was made and it was evident that neither of them approved of it having been made.

Italy has been in the war since the very start and will advance from its present position when the right times comes, declared Premier Benito Mussolini's newspaper today. That decision will be made exclusively by one man—the man with whom rests the responsibility for the safeguarding of the affairs of the Italian people.

NORWEGIANS HOLDING ON

Storen And Roros, Important Railway Points, Are Recaptured From Germans

STOCKHOLM, May 2: (CP) — The Norwegian high command reported today that Norwegian troops had reoccupied Roros, strategic railway and highway junction on the Storen-Elverum railway line. Unconfirmed reports said that the Norwegian forces had also reoccupied Storen, vital railroad function thirty-five miles south of Trondheim and fifty miles northwest of Roros. These reports cast doubt on Nazi claims that German land forces had established land communications between Oslo and Trondheim although they might be in line with German tactics of waiting for reinforcements before attempting to take a firm hold of advanced positions.

Meantime, the British War Office announced (prior to the speech of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in Parliament today announcing withdrawal from Andalsnes) that British troops had withdrawn to "prepared positions" in the Dombas area, one hundred miles south of Trondheim on another railway line southwest of Storen, after stubbornly resisting strong German attacks.

A communique said that Allied operations in the Narvik district, far to the north and completely separated from the Trondheim district, were "continuing satisfactorily." Official military circles said earlier that Allied forces were closing on the German garrison at the northern port.

The same military spokesman said at that time that the British situation in the Dombas area was "dangerous and very obscure." The British authorities had no confirmation then that Storen and Dombas had been captured by the Germans, as reported in Berlin, but said this was "quite possible."

B.E.F. HOLDS DIVISIONAL EXERCISES IN FRANCE

While official communiques from the Western Front report that everything is at present quiet, the British Expeditionary Forces are not idle. They are spending this respite from actual fighting to divisional exercises. Here we see stretcher-bearers of the Royal Ulster Rifles carrying away a "casualty" from a Bren gun anti-aircraft post. The deadly gun may be seen pointing skywards in the centre of the picture.

WINNIPEG WHEAT PRICES

WINNIPEG, May 2: (CP) — Wheat prices were 1/8c to 5/8c lower on the Winnipeg market yesterday with May closing at 88 1/4c.

There are a number of very fine spring gardens this year. One that is not seen without search for it is Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Norrington's little garden near the Cold Storage plant at Seal Cove. It is rather difficult of access just now owing to road construction going on there.

The hyacinths and daffodils are excellent.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dibb always seem to have a fine garden, no matter what the time of year. Their display of polyanthus and primulas has been much admired.

This is the season of rock gardens. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Priest have theirs at the back of the house with some excellent plants that will be in bloom soon.

Those with rock gardens should not forget to plant a few annuals among the rock plants to brighten up the rockery in the fall. After the middle of August there is not usually much color in the rock garden.

Dr. C. H. Hankinson is going in for rock gardening on a large scale. The place was plotted by a Seattle expert but unfortunately, he died before the work was completed. However, the development is going on nicely and, by next year, the result should be very effective. There is so much rockery to cover that a few plants seem to make very little impression on the whole. The part that was planted last year is looking very well. Outstanding is the grouping of dwarf red maples, the astilbes, heather and globe flowers. Soon there will be a wonderful display of tulips. The recent addition of a small greenhouse is a great acquisition to the facilities for raising seedlings and also adds to the general appearance of the place.

A great many English wallflowers seem to have wintered this year. At the Court House grounds the yellow wallflowers have made a fine dash of color and fragrance to the perennial bed at the side of the westerly drive. The rockery in the sunken garden is finer than it has ever been and should improve each year.

Many people have their dahlias planted but others fear morning frosts that may prove damaging to the plants showing above ground.

Some have their sweet peas above ground. Most of these are sown in boxes and started indoors or in a cold frame. Mine are coming up nicely but they were sown outside where they are expected to bloom later.

The Cold Storage officials are doing some fine work in beautifying a strip of ground adjoining the plant. The rhododendrons and other shrubs look as if they would bloom well this season. There will soon be a nice display of heather.

One of the beauty spots at this time of year is the little garden at the Seal Cove Post Office. This year E. Cavenaile seems to have a finer display than usual of polyanthus and other spring flowers.

Leonard Cripps has been extending his garden considerably. He has put in considerable effort on the new beds and already has some of them planted. The addition will be a very great improvement to this pretty garden.

Colonel Nicholls has a small clump of the new tulips with two and three flowers on a stem. They are not yet in bloom but the buds are formed. These are a small lot that were given him to try out. Col. Nicholls has improved his garden this year. His English wallflowers are now in bloom and provide the most interesting part of the garden. His roses and English iris also give promise of providing outstanding features later.

Mr. and Mrs. James Gillett are working hard on the renovating of their garden, the one that was laid out by M. A. Burbank. The weeds had got ahead of the plants there and every gardener knows what that means. There will soon be a fine showing there of Canterbury Bells. Many of the new plants in this garden were sent to Mr. and Mrs. Gillett by their friends at Massett.—H.F.P.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did — even look healthy and strong, yet — you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-famous for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

Moving Picture Executive Visiting City in Connection With Showing of Great Film

Dewey Bloom of Toronto, Canadian representative of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer moving picture producing concern, is a visitor in Prince Rupert, combining business with a holiday. ENDLESS CHAIN OF WAR SUPPLIES FOR FRANCE

Day after day, hour after hour, ships are loaded in England with troops, transport, ambulances, tanks, supplies, all bound for the battle lines at the west wall. Here we see a crane loading a truck on a freighter on the start of the trip to France.

Whifflets
From The Waterfront

C.N.R. steamer Prince George, Capt. H. E. Nedden, arriving in port at 10 o'clock yesterday morning from Vancouver, Powell River and Ocean Falls, had on board quite a large list of passengers as well as a substantial freight cargo which took her until 4 o'clock in the afternoon to discharge, the vessel then sailing for Ketchikan and Stewart whence she will return here this evening southbound.

Coming north from Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands, C.N.R. steamer Prince John, Capt. Edward Mabbs, left Skidegate Inlet at 2 o'clock yesterday morning for Massett Inlet where she made her calls yesterday afternoon. This morning stormy weather was holding up the vessel's crossing from Graham Island to Prince Rupert.

With favorable weather conditions prevailing on the banks and other circumstances being good, halibut landings at Prince Rupert continue substantial. Yesterday seven American boats disposed of a total of 134,000 pounds at prices ranging from 9.1c and 7c to 9.6c and 7c while eight Canadian vessels sold 127,500 pounds at from 8.9c and 6.5c to 9.4c and 6.5c.

PRIZES OF CONTRABAND ARE VARIED

Most Things From Scrap To Pineapple In British Captures

LONDON, May 2: (CP)—Somebody in Germany is minus a few sausage casings. Among cargoes seized by the British contraband control were 12 cases of weasands —bullock's windpipes — used for making the casings.

These were just one of the articles offered for sale "by order and for the account of the marshal of the admiralty" as a result of the control's ceaseless activity.

The "lots" offered for sale have been taken from ships which were headed for Germany when intercepted. They include tons of scrap brass, copper, iron, steel and lead, refined tin, bales of cotton, barrels of resin and raw materials needed for armament manufacture.

In the list of seized food products were many barrels of salted salmon, Turkish hazel nut kernels hundreds of casks of orange and lemon juice, casks of orange peel in brine and Brazilian pineapple.

Patrol Fights Between Lines

French Posts Separated By Half-Mile In Some Places Before Maginot Line

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, May 2: (CP) Reuters) —The intensive patrol fighting in the area between the Vosges and the Saar can be better understood when it is realized that platoon posts are often isolated by more than half a mile. No-Man's Land consists of a series of inter-locking positions so organized they form the centre of resistance for the protection of themselves and their neighbors.

This explains why the Germans almost encircled a French post recently until the troops of a neighboring post came to its assistance. The country is of a very bold rolling nature with wooded ridges and fast-running streams in the valleys. Generally speaking, the Germans hold the forward edges of their woods by day and withdraw by night to leave the area clear for their patrols.

Each post is provided with effective all-round defence. It contains machine guns, anti-tank guns and trench mortars and is therefore a self-supporting unit.

COMEDY IN COLOR HERE

Outstanding Entertainment Promised in "Divorce of Lady X" With Merle Oberon and Laurence Olivier

Beautiful Merle Oberon and handsome Laurence Olivier are the attractive team in the Technicolor feature comedy "The Divorce of Lady X," showing tonight and Friday at the Capitol Theatre here. It is said to be one of the most thoroughly enjoyable comedies which has been presented on the screen in a long time.

Miss Oberon has the part of a self-willed debutante with a sense of humor who gains much satisfaction from an elaborate hoax she stages for the benefit of a likeable although rather stiff-necked young barrister played by Olivier. Assisting in the plot are Binnie Barnes, as a woman with a colorful past, and Ralph Richardson as a somewhat dim-witted husband. Morton Selten is a hale, hearty and irascible judge around whose sturdy person much of the comedy revolves.

All the trouble begins when the deb is forced to spend the night in a crowded London hotel owing to the fog, thereby becoming involved with the barrister. Next day she attends court over which her grandfather presides. The barrister appears in a divorce action ... himself of a ... women. The girl deter... make him eat his words. ... max, of course, is the ... of her man in a hilarious mate scene.

The "Dead End Kids" in "On Dress Parade" is the other ... double bill.

IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT IN LONDON!

It was a foggy night . . . Unsafe for travel . . . the hotel was crowded so —reckless, beautiful "Lady X" stole the handsome stranger's bed . . . book, pyjamas and — his heart! . . . Then vanished without even telling him her name!

CAPITOL

SYLT STRAFERS WELCOMED HOME

Standing on the wings of their huge bombing plane shortly after returning to an undisclosed airport in England, this quartet of daring fliers gives eyewitnesses accounts of the air raid upon the Nazi air and naval bases on the Isle of Sylt. According to official British reports, almost 1,000 bombs were dropped during the seven-hour raid, badly wrecking hangars, slipways (ramps) and other military objectives.

DICTATORSHIP ON THE HOME FRONT

An Editorial in the Globe & Mail, Toronto

April 29, 1940

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S assault on the Oil Companies is another step on the road to State Socialism if not, indeed, on the road to totalitarianism. By a decree of the Coal and Petroleum Control Board of British Columbia a creature of the Provincial Government, the Oil Companies have been ordered to sell gasoline at prices they claim to be less than cost. It is true the legislation the Provincial authorities have invoked has been held constitutional by the Supreme Court of Canada, but constitutional or not, the principle of price-fixing by the Provincial Governments is rank. It is vicious when prices are fixed at less than the cost of production and distribution.

When first issued, eighteen months ago, the order of the Coal and Petroleum Control Board required the sale of gasoline in British Columbia for less than the then prevailing cost and at prices actually lower than in the California oil fields and elsewhere on the United States Pacific Coast. Subsequently costs to the British Columbia petroleum industry were increased by exchange, by high war water transportation rates and by other war conditions. In view of the war-increased costs to the industry, the order to set prices that the Coal and Petroleum Board arrived at are now more onerous and confiscatory than ever.

If the Government of British Columbia can get away with price-fixing in the oil business, and the Government of Alberta can tell farmers and other producers how much they may charge for their products and regulate the volume of production and the quantity that may be placed on the market, what is to hinder the Government of Ontario from dictating the prices of manufactured articles? If the disease spreads into Eastern Canada business is going to be in a fine pickle. We doubt that the people of this Dominion are ready and willing to goose-step to the tune of a dictator.

This sort of thing may be all right in Germany and Russia and Italy where ordinary folk cannot call their souls their own, but it is all wrong in a democratic country like Canada where we still cherish British liberty and justice. There are ways of dealing with injustices here without political dictatorship. But prevention of profiteering in the necessaries of life and the munitions of war can be defended in war time and the Federal Government has done a good job in regulating the supply and prices of the necessaries of life. But when a Provincial Government runs amok and attempts to tell farmers and manufacturers what they may do and what they may not do in the matter of prices and production, it is time to call a halt. Disregard of economic laws will destroy the very foundations of democratic freedom. What is the use of fighting totalitarianism abroad if we are going to permit it to rear up its ugly head in Canada?
