BATTLE NEW PHASE

British Forces Being Effectively Co-ordinated To Hurl Axis Out Of Libya

CAIRO, Nov. 26: — Successive waves of British motorized infantry, supported by artillery, are now being hurled against the Axis forces in the fierce battle south of Tobruk following the tank bout in which both sides lost heavily, the British, however, being in a position to provide reinforcements which the Axis is not.

The central Mediterranean fleet of the Royal Navy sank two more loaded supply ships bound for Libya today. Italian warships, acting as a convoy, made their escape.

Meantime British land, navy and air forces, all in superiority over the enemy, are co-ordinating their strength effectively to drive the Axis out of Libya.

Owing to the British sea control, the only means of reinforcing now available to the Axis is the very uncertain method of air transport.

Furious entrapped German armored units have taken the offensive.

British fliers are operating far behind the German lines, doing damage to their communications and supply lines. Hundreds of planes are ceaselessly in battle vying for air supremacy.

Big Battle Expected

The Germans have rushed up reinforcements to Rezegn, ten miles south of Tobruk, and a heavy battle is expected there momentarily, the British High Command announced today. A communique said that the British had wiped out a third of the tanks in a German column attempting to divert attention from the main battle by a thrust eastward across the frontier while the Tobruk garrison penetrated farther east into the encircling line of Axis troops.

Considerable British tank reserves have now reached the forward battle areas.

MINISTER PASSES IN MONTREAL

Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe Died This Morning—Funeral In Quebec

MONTREAL, Nov. 26:—Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, died this morning at 5:15 (Pacific Standard Time) in Notre Dame Hospital. Prior to death he had been conscious at intervals. A physician's bulletin last night said "still critical condition, no improvement." He gradually sank during the night until the end came. He had shown remarkable resistance in view of hopeless condition during the past few days but his heart in the end gave way to the strain. The body is being taken to Quebec where it will lie in state pending burial.

Death came to the great statesman of French-Canada in the ninth day of a grave illness during which a series of attacks shook his rugged frame. Attending doctors said that death was caused by "cancer of the pancreas complicated by a pulmonary affection."

An unbroken tenure of more than 35 years in the House of Commons, bold qualities of leadership and a charming personality, made Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe a Canadian institution. Few Canadian public men ever enjoyed a greater measure of personal popularity in every section of Canada than did the tall, genial representative of the constituency of Quebec East.

Mr. Lapointe's position in Canadian public life was unique. In a sense he inherited Sir Wilfrid Laurier's position as the outstanding spokesman of French-speaking Canada but he also, in practice if not in fact, was almost a co-prime minister during the years Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King headed a Liberal government.

He occupied the key portfolio of justice, vitally important in a federal state such as Canada with questions of conflicting jurisdiction between the federal parliament and the legislatures of the provinces.

In the imperial and international spheres he was frequently spokesman and representative for Canada and he was a pioneer in the developments in Empire relations which resulted in Canada and the other dominions assuming a status of complete sovereignty and equality with the United Kingdom. He was the signer for Canada of the first treaty made by this country on its own account. It was an agreement for the protection of Pacific Coast fisheries made with the United States and signed by Mr. Lapointe under full powers from the King.

SUPPORT PATTULLO

Meeting of Prince Rupert Liberal Association Sends Delegates to Convention at Vancouver.

The Prince Rupert Liberal Association last night went on record as unanimously supporting the continued leadership of Hon. T. D. Pattullo and appointed delegates to the meeting of the British Columbia Liberal Association to be held in Vancouver next week. There were several speakers who strongly urged support of the Prince Rupert member as the only possible course to take and none demurred.

Delegates chosen were S. E. Parker, Jack Judge, W. O. Fulton, Harry Menzie, Robert Gordon, J. A. Lindsay, A. Iversen and H. F. Pullen. In addition to these will be George Mitchell and Arthur Brooksbank, president and secretary of the district association who are ex-officio members of the provincial association.

As a number of the delegates may not be able to make the trip south for the meeting, most of them will give their proxies to Mr. Brooksbank, who outlined the course he planned to take in supporting Mr. Pattullo and his reasons for so doing. He was the only person present who was sure he could be present at the convention.

SO. AFRICA DOES WELL

Fighting Force Is Honor to General Smuts.

CAPE TOWN, Nov. 26: (AP) — In spite of political squabbles which have divided the country, South Africa in two years has forged a war machine of impressive strength, a machine already proved by its achievements in the Abyssinian campaign.

Nazi Fifth Column efforts to keep the Union out of the war broke down when Gen. (now field marshal) J. C. Smuts, South African prime minister, led the nation into the struggle alongside Great Britain and all the Commonwealth except Eire. It involved a split between Smuts and Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog who went to the opposition with his followers.

South Africa's racial problem came to the fore when the main opposition party, led by Hertzog and the nationalist leader, Dr. D. F. Malan, split. In 1940 the two had formed the Reunited Nationalist or Peoples' Party (Herenigde party in Afrikaans) on a strict neutrality policy. But when Malan started working for an Afrikaans republic they fell out. His more moderate ally Hertzog wanted equal rights for the English and the Afrikaans-speaking people.

Opposition Splits

Hertzog quit the Nationalists and formed his own Afrikander party, standing for an independent South Africa but with equal rights for both tongues. Quarrels also broke out between Malan and the Ossewabrandwag, (Ox-wagon Guard) cultural and semi-military organization.

When the Ossewabrandwag went into politics and drafted a republican constitution, Malan accused it of "deliberate aggression and sabotage." There was trouble over overtures by the Ossewabrandwag towards Oswald Pirow, former minister of defence, heading a small group which advoated a national-socialistic republic.

Gen. Smuts acknowledged the existence of these racial and political quarrels in a speech at Queenstown. "We have a divided people," he said, but he added "it will not always remain so.

"The time is coming—I shall not see it and I do not know whether any of you will see it—but the time will come when this will be a united people and there will be a united national will."

Urged Hope and Trust

The prime minister charged the opposition group with "violent hostility" to the government but asserted "among those people who talk about a united Afrikanderdom, meaning the Afrikaans speaking section, there are more divisions and disunity than ever before."

It was historically essential, he contended, that the races should come together and a successful prosperous country be built up when co-operation between the two races had been firmly established.

Smuts declared "I call on men of both races and all colors to abandon the policies of the past and have faith, have hope and have trust in each other and move forward to the destiny which is yours."

BIG QUAKE REGISTERED

Seismographic Instruments At West Bromwich Thrown Completely Out Of Gear

LONDON, Nov. 26:— So strong was an earthquake shock recorded by the seismographic at West Bromwich last night that it threw the mechanism completely out of gear, making it impossible to immediately determine the location or distance of the centre of the disturbance which was later indicated to have been centred in mid-Atlantic, possibly about 500 miles off the coast of Africa. Pendulum and levers were thrown out of gear and the graph was dislocated from its sockets. It was the largest quake ever to be recorded by the observatory.

Spain reported a rather heavy shock but there were no immediate reports of damage. Lisbon in Portugal was also heavily shaken. Portugese peasants working in the fields started praying.

REDS DRIVE NAZIS BACK

Counter-Offensive Around Rostov And Leningrad Effective—Moscow Hard Pressed

MOSCOW, Nov. 26:— Vigorous new counter-offensives by the Red Army around Rostov and Leningrad have driven the Nazis back many miles. At the same time, the Germans continue their great drive upon Moscow, fifty miles northwest of which an important Nazi break-through is admitted to have been made by the enemy, taking then on to a main highway to the capital. Pushing past Tula, the enemy are within 60 miles of Moscow on the east.

The Russians today acknowledged serious new German gains on the northern and southern flanks of Moscow's defence arc but declared the Red Army counter-attacks in the Ukraine had thrown the Nazis back six miles northwest of Rostov-on-Don in a sector where the Germans have lost from thirty-seven to sixty miles.

The Vichy radio, quoting German reports, said Nazi mechanized forces had slashed through Red Army defences to a point within less than sixteen miles of Moscow, their closest approach since the Moscow drive started on October 2. There was no confirmation elsewhere of the Vichy report.

Expects Revival . . .

General Charles DeGaulle has made the position of the Free French very clear. He expects that following the terrible crisis through which France is passing a tremendous revival will emerge for the French nation. Outlining the war aims recently he stated them briefly as follows:

1. "Make war . . . give the greatest possible extension and the greatest possible power to the French effort in the conflict;

2. "Let the people speak for themselves as soon as events once more allow them to make known freely what they want;

3. "Bring about conditions in the postwar France which will permit 'every Frenchman to live, think, work and act in dignity and security.' "

Suez Canal Importance . . .

Just now when fighting is going on in the neighborhood of Egypt it is very important to understand something about the importance of the Suez Canal. It was opened to traffic 72 years ago after ten years of constant contruction work and the work of building has been going on since. Since the war started it has been bombed fifty times but not once has it been put out of business, although repairs have proved necessary and are still being carried out. It is just a big ditch, two hundred feet wide and being less than 500 miles from Crete should prove very vulnerable yet all kinds of ships continue to make it a highway. Obstacles have had to be removed to allow free passage of the larger craft but any delays have been very slight.

The canal is owned by a private company representing French, British, Egyptian and the Dutch. For years Turkey acted as guarantor for the company but of late Britain has seen that the canal has been open to all countries on equal terms.

The canal is vital as a commercial lane, and no matter how the war ends, will continue to be a very busy road, for Europe will keep on trading with Asia. Boats from Norway, Sweden, Germany, the Netherlands, England, France, Italy and Greece will continue to stream through this ditch, making an onlooker think of a caravan of stage ships moving through a desert.

Politically, control of the Suez Canal is of extreme importance for the way in which men and women will live in the future, says a writer in the Christian Science Monitor. If Great Britain maintains its hold upon it, it will be able to preserve its empire and a sort of balanced security will continue in the world. If Britain loses it, the empire might decline to an inferior position, much or all of Africa might pass into Nazi hands and serve the Reich as a base for striking eastward and westward. Seizure of the canal along with Egypt, Arabia, and the rest of the Middle East would create a completely new world situation for America.

During the 72 years that have elapsed since the canal was opened, the world has changed greatly. It has made an unprecedented advance toward freedom, democracy, and international co-operation. During this period, practically all adult men of the western world won the franchise, and most women also. Japan was modernized. China became a republic, and the machine age moved to its apogee.

During most of that time most of the world lived in peace, imperial denomination gave way to international understanding, pirating was superseded by freedom of the seas, and all nations began to co-operate at Geneva. The ships of all nations, passing unhindered from all lands through Suez to all lands, were heralds of a new way of living. The continuation of that way depends on future control of the Suez and of its sister canal at Panama.

MINISTER PASSES

on Canada's entry into the Second Great War. Leaving to the prime minister and others the task of discussing issues at stake in the war, he set out to show two things—that Canada could not remain neutral, and could not have conscription.

Rather than see conscription in Canada he declared that he and all the Quebec ministers would leave the cabinet. Neutrality would mean civil war because Canadians would not stand for the obligations of neutrality, obligations to intern British soldiers, to stop enlistment in British forces, Mr. Lapointe said.

He ended by quoting Queen Elizabeth's words as she left Canada after the royal tour of 1939: "Que Dieu Benisse Canada." That was a sentimental touch that brought tears to the eyes of veteran parliamentarians who had just listen to what might have been a coldly logical oration.

"Yes, God bless Canada," he said. "God save Canada. God save Canada's honor, Canada's soul, Canada's dignity, Canada's conscience. God give Canadians the light which will indicate to them where their duty lies in this hour of trial so that our children and our children's children may inherit a land where freedom and peace shall prevail, where our social, political and religious institutions may be secure and from which the tyrannical doctrines of naziism and communism are forever banished. Yes, God bless Canada. God bless our Queen. God bless our King."

M.P. in 1904

Although Mr. Lapointe in 1904 entered the House of Commons with but a slight knowledge of the English language, he became in time one of the ablest and most eloquent of speakers in English as well as in French. His accent never lost its unmistakable French influence but whether expounding a nice point of constitutional law in the House of Commons or mixing in the rough and tumble debate of election campaigns he was both lucid and entertaining.

Mr. Lapointe was born on a farm at St. Eloi, Temiscouata county, Quebec, Oct. 6, 1876, and was educated at Rimouski College and Laval University. He was called to the bar and began his practice in the county town of Riviere du Loup. In 1904 he was elected to parliament for Kamouraska and represented that seat until Sir Wilfrid Laurier's death in 1919.

Then he had established a law practice in Quebec city and so distinguished himself among the French-speaking Liberals that it was considered fitting he should succeed Sir Wilfrid as member for Quebec East, the old chieftain's constituency. He was elected at a by-election Oct. 27, 1919, in Quebec East and held the seat in six succeeding general elections, 1921-1940.

At the national Liberal convention in 1919 Mr. Lapointe threw his support to Mackenzie King although he might, had he wished, have been a strong contender for the leadership himself.

"I cannot think of an occasion when he (Mr. Lapointe) and I, with respect to any public question in Canada, have ever materially disagreed," said Mr. King on an occasion several years later.

Entered Cabinet

When the Liberal party came into power in 1921 Lapointe was appointed minister of marine and fisheries. Sir Lomer Gouin, for many years prime minister of Quebec, was the senior Quebec minister but when he resigned as minister of justice in 1924 Mr. Lapointe took over the post.

From then on, literally as well as figuratively, he was Mr. King's right-hand man. He shared a desk with him and sat at his right hand in the house. He led the house in Mr. King's absence and served as acting prime minister. He was one of the most powerful spokesmen for the Liberal party at election time both in Quebec and the English-speaking provinces.

During the difficult session of 1926 when the Liberal party lacked a working majority in the house and Mr. King was without a seat Lapointe proved his parliamentry ability by leading the government until Mr. King obtained a seat at a by-election.

Perhaps the greatest test of Mr. Lapointe's leadership came in the fall of 1939, shortly after the outbreak of the Second Great War. Then Maurice Duplessis, union nationale premier of Quebec, called a provincial election and challenged the soundness of the federal government's policy of leading Canada unreservedly into the war.

Challenge To Victory

Mr. Lapointe answered the challenge by announcing that if Mr. Duplessis won the election he and other Quebec members of the King government would resign. He threw himself into the provincial campaign in support of Adelard Godbout, leader of the provincial Liberal party. The result was the overwhelming defeat o fthe Duplessis government, an event construed in other parts of Canada and abroad as a demonstration of the unity of French-speaking Quebec with the English-speaking provinces in favor of full participation in the war.

Mr. Lapointe was regarded as the hero of the victory. In the federal general election which followed a few months later the Liberal party made almost a clean sweep of Quebec constituencies.

In the 1940 Dominion election Mr. Lapointe's only son, Hugues, was elected to sit with his father in the House. The minister's former private secretary, Pierre Picard, also won a seat.

Mr. Lapointe was married to Emma Pratte of Riviere du Loup in 1904. A daughter, Odette, prior to her marriage to Roger Ouimet, was a leader in the 20th Century Liberal Club movement.

BURNS LAKE, Nov. 26: — Rev. Adam Crisp, United Church minister at Burns Lake, had a remarkable escape from death Sunday night as he was returning from services at Wistaria by way of the new Nadina-Francois Lake road. His car failed to make one of the worst turns owing to the slippery condition of the road and shot over the bank and landed on one side among the trees and rocks below without serious damage to either car or driver.

SPORT CHAT

Even a movie scenario writer couldn't have improved on the meteoric rise to glory of Bob Barnett, the lanky country boy from Albany, Ga., who captains Duke's undefeated and untied Blue Devils of United States football. It started back in 1939, when Duke was playing Georgia Tech in Atlanta. Bulky Bob was a fourth-string centre then, a gangling 195-pound sophomore with hands like hams and feet to match.

Duke had a 7—6 lead, but when Georgia Tech started running wild in the last period, the one-point margin looked mighty shaky.

Then a groan went up from the Duke supporters. Their first-string centre was hurt and had to be helped from the field.

You know how it goes in the movies. Well, that's exactly what happened. Coach Wallace Wade looked over his substitutes. There was Bob with that "put-me-in coach" determination written all over his pan. Wade walked over to him, whispered something in his ear, and slapped him on the ample seat of his trousers. If Barnett was scared, he didn't show it. He spit on his hands and took his place backing up the line. Almost single-handed he halted the Tech running game. Then he put the contest on ice for the Blue Devils by coming in to intercept a pass which looked like a sure touchdown.

When Bob left the dressing room after the game his name was in the headlines of the sports extras. It's been there ever since. He's one of those tanks who like it best when the going is tough. He's as quick as a scatback at passes, and the way he backs up the line is positively brutal. He earned all-Southern honors last year, and the climax to his scenario-like career came when he was elected captain this year.

BASKETBALL UNDER WAY

High School Beats Dry Dock In Fine Intermediate Game

The Prince Rupert Basketball League got off to a fine start last night before a good sized crowd at the Exhibition building

In the curtain raiser the Fraser Street quintette, sparked by the sharpshooting of Winslow and Baird, won over the never-say-die High School squad 15 to 8. The High School girls show great promise and it was just inexperience that beat them last night. Payne and Yamanaka shared the honors for High School in scoring, while Currie and Clapp looked good at guard. For Fraser Street Teslie and Murray were also good.

In the second game of the evening the high - powered High School squad eked out a 36 to 28 victory over a hard-working Dry Dock quintette but only in the dying moments of the game. The shipbuilders seemed to have the game well in hand at half-time, leading 14 to 11. The reason for this was that they had High School's key men, Arney and Santerbane, practically blanketed. However, in the second half and especially the third quarter the campus boys seemed to really start rolling. They shook forward Arney loose and he went on a rampage for 11 points in this half. The game, after the start of the second half, began to be a nip and tuck affair up until the last quarter when High School put on its last minute bid for victory. Both sides seemed to lose their tempers quite frequently and fouls were plentiful. It is to be hoped this will not always go to the extent it did last night. There seems to be quite a rivalry between the two teams and this will tend to make the games more interesting.

For High School Arney and MacDonald were outstanding. For Dry Dock Bill and Montesano were good at guard, with all the Dock boys having a share in the scoring.

Dominic Montesano handled the whistle in the Intermediate game and Alex Bill refereed the ladies.

Teams and individual scoring were:

Ladies League

Fraser Street—Hingston, Winslow 7, T. Burgone, Teslie, Postuk, Baird 8, McKay, T. Burgone, Murray. Total, 15.

High School— Payne 4, Clapp, Currie, Yamanaka 4, Sherman, Owens, Skinner, Armstrong. Total, 8.

Intermediate

Dry Dock—Montesano 6, Bill 6, Knutson 6, Pavlikis 6, Eastman 2, Sheddon 2, Brown. Total 28.

High School—MacDonald 7, Santerbane 5, Teng 3, Arney 17, Gurvich 2, Tee 2, Alexander, Vuckovich. Total, 36.

Next games will be played on Saturday night.

THRIFT IN BUYING IS REAL ART

With So Many Foods In Cans And Packages Housewife Should Study Markings

OTTAWA, Nov. 26: (CP) — Miss Laura Tepper, chief of the consumer service section of the Department of Agriculture, says the "wise and thrifty" homemaker is keeping a sharp eye on the labels on canned and packaged goods these days.

She is also paying attention to grade markings so she buys "quality of food which suits her purpose and her purse," Miss Pepper said. While all food sold to consumers in Canada must be fit for human consumption, modern housewives should realize there is the difference in the food value of any one product but that each grade is suitable to a different method of preparation.

"For example," she said, "it is no economy to buy fancy grade canned peaches for use in a brown Betty pudding. It would be better to use standard quality both in the pudding and serve the fancy variety as they are."

Marketing regulations enforced by the Dominion Department of Agriculture provide the consumer with facts of value in buying food. "Make use of these aids," Canadians are advised in a pamphlet "Food Facts."

Eggs, poultry, canned fruits and vegetables, honey, butter, fresh fruits, vegetables and beef are all sold by grade in Canada. Some of these grades apply only if the product is shipped out of the province of its origin, others are optional but still others are compulsory in all parts of Canada. Maple syrup and maple sugar are not sold by grade although standards have been established for both these products.

Show Grade Mark

Labelling of foodstuffs is another point the consumer must understand in order to be a wise buyer, the pamphlet says. The labels of all graded foods must show the grade mark in a prominent place to make the labels a real help to the housewife.

Here are a few examples:

1. The label on a can of powdered milk must show whether the product is made from skim-milk or whole milk.

2. If dairy butter is mixed with creamery butter it must be labelled as dairy butter and all advertising must show this fact.

3. In labelling eggs, either on the end of the crate or carton, or on the placard, the only eggs which may be described as "fresh eggs" are the grades "A" and "A-1." The words "new laid" may be used with grade "A-1" only.

4. Labels on all canned goods—milk, meat, fruits and vegetables—must be approved the the department. Those for meats must give a description of the product, list of ingredients, net weight and the inspection label which identifies the particular packing plant and shows the product was packed under sanitary conditions from wholesome foods.

Weights and Sizes

Canned fruit and vegetable labels also show the weight of the contents of the can in fluid ounces, grade of the product and the packer's name and address. If the fruit is packed without sugar, this must be marked, otherwise the percentage of sugar used in the syrup or the type of syrup must be shown.

Sizes, too, have been standardized for fruits and vegetables and thus the array of baskets and boxes that formerly bewildered the consumer has been almost eliminated. No fruit or vegetable may be sold in more than six sizes.

OFFICIAL WASHINGTON TURNS OUT IN FORCE FOR SOVIET ANNIVERSARY PARTY

Official Washington gathered in force to attend the Soviet embassy's party to celebrate the 24th anniversary of the Russian revolution. In former years the embassy's party was ignored by official personages, but with Russia now fighting on the side of the democracies, the party was the high spot of the social season. Sir Ronald Campbell, British minister to Washington, is pictured at left, arriving at the embassy. Lord Halifax, at present on a tour of the U.S., was unable to attend. A general view of the scene in front of the embassy is shown, centre. Japanese ambassador, Admiral Nomura, is pictured, right, arriving at the party.

LEARN OF BAGPIPES

Novel Program At Borden Street School Yesterday

The pupils and staff of the Borden Street School had a special treat yesterday when, through the courtesy of Major John MacGregor, V.C., M.C., D.C.M., second in command of the Second Battalion Canadian Scottish, Pipe Major Ian Duncan, Lance-Corporal Pipe Oliphant and Drummer Lahmer visited the school.

An enjoyable and informative program included a talk on the history of the bagpipes, an explanation of their construction and a demonstration of the parts played by the drones and chanter in the instrument. This was given by Pipe Major Duncan. Under his direction Corporal Oliphant then played several Scottish airs showing the various types of music generally played and some variations. Drummer Lahmer gave demonstrations of different rhythms on the drums and, as well, accompanied Corporal Oliphant for the piping.

On behalf of the pupils and the staff, Principal J. S. Wilson thanked the visitors for their splendid program and extended through them the best wishes of the school for good luck to the officers and men of the unit. Three cheers and a tiger were given with a vim that left the pipers in no doubt as to their popularity with the children.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26: (CP)—It is pointed out here that the Nazi submarine total of 10 U.S. ships lost with 115 lives compares with 10 lost with 226 lives when this country entered the First Great War in 1917.

KITKATLA WEDDING

Miss Stella Spencer Becomes Bride Of Luke Brown

Amid glorious sunshine of an autumn day, the wedding took place at St. Peter's Anglican Church, Kitkatla, on Friday afternoon last, with Rev. B. Shearman officiating, when Stella, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Spencer, and grand-daughter of the late Chief Job Spencer, became the bride of Luke Brown, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Douglas of Hartley Bay.

The bride was very prettily attired in white satin with bridal veil and matching accessories. She was given in marriage by her cousin, William Gladstone, her matron-of-honor being Mrs. Ambrose Brown. Little Edith Robinson, niece of the bride, acted as flower girl while Thelma Lewis, niece of the bridegroom, was train bearer. All were daintily dressed.

Cecil Lewis performed the duties of groomsman.

The Kitkatla Band was in attendance and escorted the bride and groom to and from the church.

A reception was held afterwards in the Agnes Hall with the whole village as invited guests. The bride's table was centred with flowers and a beautiful four tier wedding cake. During the afternoon the bride and groom received hearty congratulations from their many friends and speeches were made by the chiefs of the village.

In the evening a very enjoyable dance was held to the music of Chester Nelson's Orchestra.

WHAT THE WELL-DRESSED WAR-DOG WILL WEAR

Latest innovation in dogwear made its debut with the opening of the Los Angeles Kennel Club Dog Show. This new apparel for defence dogs consists of a harness-pack, housing radio receiving equipment and head-phones. Invented by Carl Spitz, trainer of dogs, the equipment with its companion short wave broadcasting unit, enables remote control of war-dogs under fire. At present dogs can be controlled with a radius of three miles under adverse battlefield conditions with this equipment.

Whifflets From The Waterfront

Johnny Moser Through With Hunting Salmon From Alaska to Prince Rupert.

Johnny Moser, that once great hunter of geese and ducks, is through. He has had enough of this hunting business. To implement his resolve his friends are telling that he has already decided to get rid of his guns and his equipment as a nimrod. Maybe he has already done so. It appears that Johnny and a party of friends, who are telling the sad story now, had a hunting trip down the coast as far as Hartley Bay and Giltees over the past week-end. Evidently the going was a little tough—even for Johnny who likes his hunting the smooth way—not the way that Milt McLean furnished him with transportation on this delightful little jaunt. If that's what they have to go through to get a little hunting in these parts, Johnny just hasn't got what it takes and his friends say that even he admits it. In any case the party on this expedition consisted of Moser, McLean, Bill Fulton, Joe Scott, Clarence Thomson, J. Bacon, P. Wingham and C. Lundquist. Some of them made the trip on Skipper Lundquist's Ingrid H. but Moser and Fulton chose to take it the hard way on McLean's Inez F. which is no easy riding surf boat but a real pizzicato-cutter. There are various stories as to the degree of roughness, some of the more bland old sea hawks saying, as usual, that there was nothing to it. Stories as to the size of the bag also differ—from four geese to 150 which we will admit is some range. For the benefit of the game warden, about whom some hunters apparently forget, we would express the opinion that four was probably nearer the mark—and the birds were probably as fishy as the whole yarn.

With Capt. H. E. Nedden, the popular skipper, making his farewell voyage before retirement as commodore of the fleet, C.N.R. steamer Prince George arrived in port at 10:30 this morning from Vancouver, Powell River and Ocean Falls and will return there tomorrow night southbound. Many friends are taking the opportunity to say good-bye to Capt. Nedden who, however, expects this will be by no means his last visit to Prince Rupert.

"Seiners were compensated by soaring prices as canners and freezers bid against each other for scant supplies and there was also competition from two Canadian buyers, most active of whom was Nelson Bros. cannery at Prince Rupert," says Canadian Fisherman in reviewing the Alaska fall fishing season. "The prices were the highest ever paid for chums in Alaska. How much fish was obtained by the Canadians is unknown but it is believed to have been a very substantial part of the catch and their activities in Alaska aroused some resentment among local canners. Large quantities of troll fish were taken from West Coast of Prince of Wales Island to Prince Rupert."

Union steamer Catala, Capt. Ernest Sheppard, arrived in port at midnight last night from Stewart and other northern points, sailing early this morning for Vancouver.

Lyle A. Swain of the Prince Rupert Fisheries Experimental Station is the author of an interesting article in the latest issue of Pacific Fisherman—"The History of the Pacific Coast Halibut Liver Oil Industry."

Needs Sedatives, All Else At Hand

Australia Working To Meet Its Own Wants In Drugs

OTTAWA, Nov. 25: (CP)—Australian medical experts believe that if the overseas imports of drugs were cut off, Australia would be able to produce its own drugs from materials available in the country, Frederick Palmer, Canadian Trade Commissioner reported.

Australia already has attempted to become self-sufficient in production of drugs and medicines by obtaining them from plants and trees by experimental cultivation of such plants, he said.

The physiology department of Melbourne University has been working on manufacture of sedatives—the only other commodity needed to ensure Australia's self-sufficiency in drugs.

Following a report that certain local anaesthetics might soon be unobtainable in the country, a university professor developed two methods of obtaining them from substances available at home.

Herbs for root drugs have been grown mainly in the Balkans, Spain, India and the Dutch East Indies, he said, and supplies have been greatly restricted since the outbreak of war. Most of the processing to refine these root drugs has been done in European countries, in England and the United States.
