About 20,000 Nazis are believed to be hemmed in against the Western Bug River with escape virtually impossible.

VERIGIN TOMB DYNAMITED AND GUARDS BEATEN

NELSON, B.C., July 29—The repeatedly threatened tomb of Peter Verigin I and Peter Verigin II was destroyed by a dynamite blast today at Brilliant, Doukhobor community, 20 miles west of here.

Three men overpowered two men guarding the tomb, just off the Nelson highway overlooking the turbulent Kootenay river and set off a blast that blew away a protective part of the tomb, revealing caskets in their resting place below the ground.

The guards were brutally beaten by attackers who escaped without being identified, Provincial Police stated.

Conflicting Doukhobor factions have long caused unrest in the West Kootenay, necessitating police intervention on numerous occasions.

COIFFURE PROTECTORS

When the designer of the peak khaki cap worn by girls of the Canadian Women's Army Corps created the headgear, it was styled in such a manner that a strip around the cap could be converted and pulled down over the ears in cold weather. However. C.W.A.C.'s stationed in Fort Osborne Barracks, Winnipeg, have discovered a dual purpose for the lugs on their caps. They are used to protect coiffures during visiting rains.

Blitzed British Want Safety Put Into Plans For Future

LONDON, July 29—While widespread haphazard destruction by flying bombs goes on day by day in London, the House of Commons has been planning the rebuilding of Britain.

The average Londoner, however, reading today of political party wranglings over questions of land ownership and valuation, is more concerned with putting first things first and is asking, "How are we going to prevent war?"

For if the new form of remote-controlled destruction now operating in the shape of German robots is not halted, then, the argument goes, the people's parliamentary representatives might as well start burrowing underground to build the cities of the future.

REACTION OF COMMON FOLK

This view is not just cynicism. It stands out here today as the practical, common-sense reaction of the ordinary folk who are bearing the brunt of this new development in warfare.

You hardly can fail to appreciate the lesson of the situation when you happen to be inspecting a new model of the prefabricated house of the future just at the time flying-bomb explosions intermittently shake its very foundations and clouds of black smoke on the near horizon indicate that still more homes have gone down in rubbled ruin.

The first and transcending task seems to be to insure through collective action by peace-seeking peoples that every corner of the earth — especially the vast undeveloped and hitherto unsupervised spaces of the globe — are safe-guarded from potential use as bases of long-range weapons which again might tempt aggressors.

The immediate impact of this new type of warfare is bad enough, as Londoners know. But its potentialities are far worse.

The hope is that the Germans themselves in the final stages of this war will prove to have set the world on the way to final banishment of war.

It is against this background that the House of Commons has been debating the Town-and-Country Planning bill which aims to pave the way for shaping the British cities and countryside of the future.

POST-WAR SHIPBUILDING

Prince Rupert is very much interested in the statement made at Vancouver that there should be considerable activity after the war in the building of passenger vessels for service on the British Columbia coast. Construction of such vessels would give a lift to our yards which will have slackened down by that time after the rush of wartime ship building which is already beginning to taper off. No doubt, Prince Rupert, with its own fine yard, would share in the work.

During the war British Columbia yards have fully demonstrated their ability to turn out quality ships. It is to be reasonably expected that capable yards on the coast where the ships are to be used would be employed in their construction. The Canadian National Railways plant at Prince Rupert is one of the plants which has proven its ability and is one that could reasonably be expected to play a substantial part in the building of post-war ships.

WHEN WILL IT BE OVER?

It is, in round figures, 700 miles from St. Lo to Berlin. It is a bit less from Livorno, and about 600 miles from Pinsk to Berlin. On these fronts German fighters continue to exact their toll for each advance. Only the Russians are making gains of the type that destroys armies and wins wars with suddenness.

And the Red Army is rapidly approaching the fortifications of East Prussia, which military men say present a somewhat different picture than anything the Russians have yet encountered.

All of which is just another way of stating the obvious: the war is not yet over. This does not detract from the brilliance of the present operations, or from the bravery and skill with which they are being executed. It does not deny that Allied victory is inevitable.

And it is only realistic to add that 600 or 700 miles on a map has less meaning in these days of air power. Germany had 55 refineries for natural and synthetic oil. Of these, 14 were devoted to 100 octane aviation fuel.

These plants are now at the top of the Allied air priority list and are daily being blasted. German tanks have been found out of gas. The Luftwaffe, indeed all German forces, are under strict oil conservation orders.

In any timetable of the present war, air power is the X quantity. —Christian Science Monitor.

Canadian Boxers Take Edge

TECHNICAL K.O. PUTS ENDING TO FOUR FIXTURES

Canadian fighters won four of seven boxing bouts sponsored Friday night at Acropolis Hill Stadium by U.S. Special Service and the U.S.O. for the entertainment of a large crowd of Allied servicemen and a sprinkling of civilians.

The two-hour card and the smart rhythms of U.S. band under the baton of T-Sgt. Allan Manning between bouts were well received.

Col. T. J. Weed, of the United States Army, at the end of the sixth bout presented medals to the winners: Pte. Alfred Torres, U.S.; Emil Porayko, Canadian Army; Pte. Admirl Morgan, U.S.; Jimmy O'Neill, Royal Canadian Navy; Benny Windle, Prince George; and Jerry Pittso, Canadian Army.

In what was heralded as a grudge match, Pte. W. Wallace, U.S., won an unanimous decision in four rounds over Art. Lamer aux. Both boys at 160 pounds fought to a draw on their previous meeting.

Pte. Wallace stalked Lameraux for most of the four rounds but received a fair share of stiff punches in return for his own hand-outs.

In the fourth round, Wallace knocked his opponent through the ropes, but doughty Lameraux quickly returned to throw more punches.

Four fights were won on technical knockouts. In the first round of the initial fight, Pts. Joe Pancho 168 pounds and Pte. Alfred Torres 165 pounds, both U.S. Army, mixed well until Pancho suffered a strained leg muscle.

Emil Porayko 175, Canadian Army, outslugged Pte. Johnnie Mason 174, U.S., to gain a technical K.O. at the end of the second round. Porayko knocked down Mason in the second, but his opponent was game and came up fighting.

Good footwork did Jackie Owens 140, Royal Canadian Navy, little good against solid Pte. Adriml Morgan 139, U.S., who rocked the young tar on repeated occasions. Owens apparently wore himself down with his fast movements about the ring.

The fourth bout exploded with action as soon as Paul Kichinko 154, U.S., and Jimmy O-Niell 160, Royal Canadian Navy, met. The Canadian smashed one to Kishinko's nose and started the blood. O'Neill, packing a terrific wallop, soon had his opponent groggy and, at one time, allowed an opportunity for a knockout to pass as his opponent bent over to clear his mouth of blood. This display of sportsmanship drew a hand from the crowd, while a number of fans called for the referee to stop the fight. A technical knockout was credited to O'Neill at the end of the first round.

Benny Windle 145, Prince George, won a 2-1 decision over Pte. Paulino Elverez 147, U.S. The American fighter exploded a series of punches in the first round, but Benny drove him around the ring in the second, and easily took the third round.

Jerry Pittao 163, Canadian Canadian Army, didn't have the style or confidence of Pte. Bunny Lester 160, U.S., but after taking much punishment for the first round and a half, turned the tables. He dropped Lester to the floor in the second round, his opponent being saved by the bell. In the third Lester showed a lot of fighting spirit but could not stand up to Pittao's punishing blows. His seconds threw in the towel.

Sweetness in defeat came to Lester as he moved off to his dressing room, however. It was a roar of applause from the crowd on learning from Pte. Waombach, the announcer with the three-man voice, that this fighter was a veteran of the South Pacific and New Guinea campaigns.

Referees for the night were Lieut. Herman Poster and Pte. Vincent "Zaff" Zaffarano.

Prince Rupert Yanks Win Alaskan Mainland Softball Championship

Softball fans of Prince Rupert have something else to crow about with the team from U. S. Headquarters Detachment striding north from Acropolis Hill to win the Alaskan Mainland softball championship. It was an imposing victory over nine other smart teams.

They beat Nome at Fort Richardson two out of three games, winning the last game 7-0 on Wednesday of a week ago to claim the title.

In an effort to add still further laurels to their fine record, the Yanks are now playing a Shemyu squad, winners of the Aleutian Islands championship. The series of three out of five games began July 27, but no results have been received here as yet.

GUARD WELL YOUR FREEDOM

Although containing less than 1% of the world's population, Canada ranked FIFTH in total trade in 1939 . . . per capita figures substantially exceeding those of the leading economic powers such as United States, United Kingdom and Germany . . ."
—Canada Year Book, 1942

IT is no mere accident that the highest standard of living and the widest distribution of goods and services are found in the United States and Canada.

With a home market only one-tenth that of the United States, how has Canada achieved this? The answer is by foreign trade.

In the year 1901, Canada's per capita foreign trade was only $66.00. Yet, by 1939, Canada led all the world's great economic powers with a per capita foreign trade of $148.00.

This rise was due largely to the development of industry, which enabled Canadians to convert their raw materials into manufactured form, multiplying their value and building up the payrolls that are the back-bone of our living standards.

British Columbia's lumber industry is typical. In the early days lumber exports were chiefly raw logs. By 1939, over 92% of our lumber exports were manufactured products such as plywood, doors, shingles, construction timber and pulp and paper.

No force, outside ourselves, drives Canada forward. Canadians have literally pulled themselves up by their own boot-straps. Both by temperament and physique, we have proven ourselves well able to meet the demands of world competition. Guided by exceptionally able and experienced men and women at the helm, Canada can make even greater strides. The ultimate success will depend upon the sincere co-operation of management and labour.

SMITHERS—

H. F. NOEL STORE CHANGES HANDS

A business deal of interest to the Smithers district was completed this week with the purchase of H. F. Noel's store by Mrs. Margaret Warner and Mrs. Marjorie Silver. Arrangements have been made for the new managers to take over the business as it stands, without any cessation of business.

Pete Eby was the recipient of a large trout weighing 12 pounds, and 31½ inches long. It was caught by Weldon Reid in Babine Lake.

Fire permit regulations will be strictly enforced in the Smithers district. B.C. Forest Department has pointed out there have been too many infractions of the burning regulations with consequent danger during the dry period.

Flt.-Lieut. Charles Botham, who has been taking special training at Seattle, arrived Wednesday to spend a two weeks' furlough with his wife and family in Smithers before reporting for duty in Edmonton.

The Trail Rangers camp at Babine Lake, supervised by Rev. C. E. Scott, was attended by 15 boys and much enjoyed. The boys have returned, and now the site is occupied by a girls' camp, organized by Mrs. Scott.

Mrs. Harley Lewis and young son John arrived last week from Prince Rupert, and are visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Lewis.

SOO-SUD NOTES

Begging their victim's pardon for disturbing him so late at night three young thugs slugged and robbed 53-year old William Adam of Sudbury, tying him up with window curtains. They ransacked his home and escaped with $100.

More than 1,200 children have passed through the Rotary Clinic for crippled children, held annually at the Sault General Hospital.

Sgt. Air Gunner James Alexander Calder, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Calder, Blucher st., has been reported killed in action overseas. He was flying a new type Lancaster bomber.

ACTIVITIES OF Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A.
(By Dorothy Garbutt)

I told you yesterday about my up at the K. of C. Well, today, phenomenal winnings at bridge it's the other side of the story. I played cribbage with Capt. Jimmy (Champ) James this morning and I was in what I laughingly call my winning mood—just knew I couldn't be beat. But for once my hunch failed and I was really taken to town. What I mean is he gave me a tremendous trimming. I won the first game, he won the next and the third and fourth game were skunks. What can you do with a chap who gets 21 and 28 in his last two hands? He's not human!.. But he is a crackerjack player, and it was fun.

Friday afternoon I had the pleasure of meeting Commander Adelaide Sinclair of the W.R.C.N.S. headquarters in Ottawa. Commander Sinclair has been making a trip through western Canada visiting the W.R.C.N.S. establishments. She won't believe that we have the traditional rainy weather in Rupert as the sun has poured down during her visit here. She was telling me of the Y.W.C.A. Leave Centre in Newfoundland and was particularly interested to hear that the new leave centre to which I am going in Winnipeg is directly opposite the Wrens' Barracks.

At this tea all the Wrens were in their summer blues and I told them they looked like a field of cornflowers. Poetic, what? But some objected to the corn part, and others to being classed as flowers, so what can you do to please a woman but say she looks pretty, and let it go at that?

If anyone sees me walking around with a script in my hand and muttering out loud and doing with gestures, as they used to say in the old elocution books, it's just because I'm getting ready for broadcasts I have to make in "Mirror for Women" over CBR next month. And they need plenty of private rehearsing. So bear with me.

Waterfront Whiffs

Large Catches Landed From Area No. 3—Springs and Cohoes Arriving

When halibut boats head for remote Area No. 3, their crews try their best to justify the long trips in the big boats by bringing in large catches. That they succeeded last week is indicated by the fact that seven of them brought in 423,000 pounds, roughly about half what is usually brought in by between 40 and 50 boats fishing in Area No. 2. The boats were out between 10 days and two weeks.

All boats arriving last week were American and their cargoes sold at the usual ceiling prices of 15 and 13½ cents.

Largest catch was brought in July 20 and was sold to B. C. Packers. It was the Martindale, with 90,000 pounds, which, incidentally, is the largest to be brought to port here this season. Other notable catches were the Republic with 65,000 pounds, and the Kanaga and Zenith, each with 60,000.

The Martindale went to Ketchikan from the fishing grounds but continued here to sell her cargo.

Total weight of halibut landed in Prince Rupert this season now stands at 6,403,300 pounds, of which 4,516,800 has been brought in by Canadian boats and 1,886,500 by American. This year Area Three fishing is expected to extend well into September.

An officially estimated average of about 20,000 pounds of salmon has been arriving in port every day this week and most of it is reported to be going to Cold Storage. The Co-op is said to be selling the biggest part of its intake to Cold Storage for fresh shipment to the east. Spring and coho salmon, with incidental humpback, are the type arriving.

"The Sullivans" Right Show For Entire Family

Five Rip-roaring Brothers Will Make You Roar With Laughter

Twentieth Century-Fox's widely acclaimed production of "The Sullivans" comes to the screen of the Capitol Theatre Monday and Tuesday with a cast headed by Anne Baxter and Thomas Mitchell with Selena Royle, Edward Ryan, Trudy Marshall, John Campbell, James Cardwell, John Alvin and George Offerman jr., also seen in featured roles.

The story of the lives of the five famous brothers is a Lloyd Bacon-directed story. It is a heart-warming tribute to the kind of North American family whose sons are so gallantly giving all in the cause of freedom.

When the youngest of the five Sullivans falls in love, it naturally becomes a co-operative affair with plenty of laughs. The brothers' robust horse-play nearly wrecks the romance.

Throughout the entire picture the brothers' sense of loyalty to each other is well portrayed.

It's a picture for the entire family to see.

Lieutenant Sue Ward Is Enthusiastic

Lieutenant Sue Ward, C.W.A.C., better known to Vancouverites as "Sunshine Susie" of radio and theatrical circles, is enthusiastic about her new posting to Prince Rupert.

Lieut. Ward, who joined the corp in 1942 conducted the first group of the C.W.A.C. to their basic training at Vermillion, Alberta. She received her commission in December 1943 and remained in the training centre until it closed last May. Since that time Miss Ward has been stationed in Calgary and Suffield.

Also happy to be back in British Columbia is "Blackie," Lieut. Ward's Labrador retriever. He has been the mascot of all C.W.A.'s wherever he goes. These three, Lieut. Ward, "Blackie" and the guitar that gained popularity for "Sunshine Sue" will be a welcome addition to No. 31 Coy.

LATIN ORIGIN

The white, or Irish potato is believed to have originated in South America.

Alberta Has More Voters

EDMONTON, July 29—It is estimated there will be 450,000 voters at the forthcoming provincial election in Alberta, an increase of 23,000 from the last election.

The principal reason for the increase is the lowering of the voting age from 21 to 19 years.
