OTTAWA, (CP) — Rev. J. H. Mathews, C.C.F. member for Kootenay East, told the House of Commons last night that the federal government should make national parks more readily accessible to "rich and poor alike."

Persons living in the neighborhood of Banff and Yoho National Parks, said Mathews, were forbidden to truck their agricultural produce over federal roads.

HEROINE OF VALDEZ FIRE

VALDEZ, Alaska—Mrs. William E. Schmidt, the town's only nurse, was acclaimed as the heroine of a $50,000 fire which destroyed an orphanage and the only hospital in this area.

Sixty-four children were made homeless by the blaze which killed one elderly patient.

Witnesses said Mrs. Schmidt risked her life several times to carry bed-ridden patients from the burning hospital in 14 degree below zero temperatures. Aided by a patient and a visitor at the hospital, Mrs. Schmidt succeeded in evacuating 16 of the 17 patients in the hospital. One elderly patient died of suffocation.

Clarifying Seal Cove Base Deal

The federal Department of Transport plans to retain control of a portion of the Seal Cove seaplane base until civic authorities here decide whether or not they want the base as a civic airport, according to William Lawson, departmental district inspector of western airways.

Mr. Lawson, who has been interviewing city officials and businessmen here in regard to having the base taken over for civilian flying, believes that such a course would be in the best interests of long term flying policy.

"I think it would be very short-sighted policy to let the base go," he declared. "I have been flying this coast since 1933 and know how badly a base was needed here."

Since the city received its original offer to take the base over from the Transport Department last year, officials have been trying to find out how much it would cost to maintain under the proffered agreement which would allow the city to take over the base for a nominal sum providing it paid insurance on 25 per cent of the construction value of the building.

So far this information has not been made available by Ottawa despite continued correspondence seeking it.

Mr. Lawson said that he will wire Ottawa immediately to see if the information could not be speeded up.

Several of the city aldermen and the Chamber of Commerce have gone on record as favoring having the base as an operating civilian enterprise and suggestions have also been made that airlines and oil companies join in taking it over.

BASE HERE IMPORTANT

Prime interest of the Western Airways division of the Department of Transport, according to Mr. Lawson, is maintaining bases for the safety and convenience of fliers. He thinks that a base here is important to that end.

"I think that since the Americans have now discovered Alaska there is going to be a lot of private flying on the coast," he said. "Tourists and business men will be going north by plane in increasing numbers."

Mr. Lawson said that he was surprised at the attitude of pessimism he has encountered in certain quarters of the town.

Mr. Lawson is on an extended visit to Prince Rupert. He left his plane at Terrace several days ago and came by train to Prince Rupert. When rail service is available he will return to Terrace.

UNION LINE SKIPPER DIES

Captain J. L. Malcolmson Expires Aboard His Ship—Well Known Here

Two well known employees of Union Steamships died in the south on Tuesday, according to sketchy reports reaching here. They were Capt. John L. Malcolmson, who dropped dead aboard one of the company's southern boats which he commanded, and Sing, Chinese veteran chef on the Catala, who died in hospital after falling down a companionway shortly before the boat left Vancouver on its northern trip.

Capt. Malcolmson was well known on the coast having been chief officer on the Catala for many years. He also made occasional trips as skipper of the Catala and the Cardena.

Sing, the Catala's chef, held that position for many years and was largely responsible for the popularity of the cuisine on that vessel.

POLICE BOAT ATTEMPT TO REACH BODIES

Held up by ice floes which blocked the mouth of the Skeena River, the provincial police boat P.M.L. 15 this afternoon made a second attempt to cross to the southern shore of the river to Point Lambert to pick up the bodies of three of seven native victims of a gillnet boat tragedy last week.

The bodies, discovered Thursday afternoon on the beach at Point Lambert, five miles below Port Essington, had to be left on the beach after an attempt by the police boat and other vessels to reach the spot had been frustrated by drifting ice.

The bodies are those of Peter Spalding, operator of the wrecked gillnetter, and his two small children. The other four bodies had not been found up to early afternoon today.

The P.M.L. 15, Capt. Reg Good, was forced to turn back to Sunnyside Cannery on the north shore after it attempted to reach Point Lambert and Port Essington Thursday night. It remained at Sunnyside this morning, waiting for the incoming tide to push the ice up-river.

Report of the bodies being found was made by James Bolton, a Port Essington native, who said that he found them on the beach at the tide-ripped point which is described as the worst navigating spot on the lower Skeena.

The search for the other bodies is being kept up by residents of Port Essington.

The village of Port Essington today was relieved of a food supply shortage by the first cargo of supplies to reach there in more than 10 days. A boat carrying A. Bean of Brown's store crossed the river on this morning's high tide and came to Prince Rupert. It left, laden with supplies, shortly after noon, catching the second high tide on the river on its return to the isolated village.

Bread, meat, fuel and other essentials had run out when the boat made its crossing this morning.

Some housesolders were forced to burn fences and discarded furniture to keep fires going.

The temperature rose to 56 below zero yesterday.

Aircraft are all grounded and food supplies are running low.

Millions Being Thrown Out of Work as Attlee Gov't Halts Industries

LONDON (CP)—Fuel Minister Shinwell announced today that Great Britain's electrical supply to domestic consumers will be cut to five hours daily starting next week and admitted that the United Kingdom's overstrained electric power system may break down shortly because of the fuel shortage aggrevated by winter weather.

Shinwell spoke in the House of Commons after Anthony Eden declared that Britain faces the greatest industrial crisis in twenty years and accused the government of misjudging the situation by taking too optimistic a view of supplies.

The fuel minister announced that, starting next Monday, no electricity will be supplied to any industrial consumer in London and the southeastern area of England or in the industrial Midlands and northwestern district's service to domestic consumers would also be cut off.

More snow fell on chilly Britain today and thousands more workers were made idle by closing fuel short factories. Coal shortages have forced more than 100,000 workers into idleness.

It is estimated that between four and five million industrial workers will be thrown out of employment next week.

Now completing trials, the motor vessel is expected to leave the Pacific Coast later this month on her maiden voyage with cargo and passengers for British West Indies ports after which she returns to Halifax. Captain Wallace, in active service with the R.C.N.R. from 1939 to 1945 and naval officer in charge at Prince Rupert for a time, joined the Canadian National Steamships at Montreal in 19..1, at the age of 17. TRAIN MAY LEAVE CITY SATURDAY

Normal train service out of Prince Rupert is not anticipated before Saturday night at the earliest, according to the latest word from the office of Divisional Superintendent C. A. Berner. A snowplow which left here several days ago for Terrace was expected to arrive there at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Shunning over-confidence, railway officials say that, if the snowplow is able to get back to Prince Rupert within the following 24 hours, a consolidated freight train, containing accumulated supplies, will follow it westward.

It would be the first train into the city in more than nine days.

Greatest trouble being experienced by the snowplow has been snowbanks caving in behind it, causing delay while the workers shovel the track clear behind the plow.

On its way westward from Terrace, the plow must clear two large snowslides from the track west of Kwinitsa. Railway officials feel that this may be possible by Saturday.

THE AIR BASE

IT IS SATISFACTORY TO KNOW from an official of the Department of Transport who is here in connection with the disposition of the Seal Cove air base which is now in the hands of the Department of Transport and the War Assets Corporation that the intention of the Department of Transport is to retain intact sufficient of the facilities to ensure the maintenance of a permanent air station here for the use and convenience of aircraft operating in commercial and civilian flying on the coast. The hope of the Department is that the city or private interests will eventually take over but, meantime, it will be held by the Department so that it may be available for flying and servicing purposes here.

While there may be some issue as to whether the air base should be publicly or privately operated, the important thing is that there should be adequate landing and servicing facilities maintained at Prince Rupert. The government appreciates the importance of this in withholding the whole establishment from immediate disposal by War Assets. Meantime, the city will have to make up its mind as to what, if anything, it desires or is able to do in keeping the facilities permanently in public control. Failing that, other interests—either commercial aviation concerns or servicing companies—might assume control.

Acquire a Hobby

AS ALWAYS, there are those who become bored because of the strain imposed by the performance of certain duties. One of the ways by which nervousness and ill temper can be overcome for many persons is the acquisition of some hobby. It is the cultivation of a hobby that has made is possible for many to enjoy the diversity of thought that prevents the brain from becoming sluggish and provides an outlet for the strenuous work of the average citizen.

The development of a hobby or an outside interest entirely separate from that of the daily task may serve as a sort of escape. It does not really matter what the hobby may be, provided it is interesting to the person concerned. It may, or may not, be expensive; it may, or may not, be elevating.

A person who finds some channel for the creative energy is happy. Nobody with a hobby is ever lonely for a long time.

If you aren't interested in a hobby of material form, then why not start a mental hobby? Have something interesting on your mind. The handsomest man will soon be dull without an active interest in something outside of himself. The prettiest woman has an empty face that cannot hold attention long unless she has an active continuity of interest in your mind.

LIQUOR OR LIGHT SO PEOPLE OF KITIMAAT SETTLED UPON LATTER

The spirit of enterprise being shown by the native people in their attempts to advance spiritually and materially was particularly noted by Rev. Peter Kelly who used Kitimaat as an example. Mr. Kelly spoke at the United Church Presbytery here yesterday. The people of that native village decided they should have modern lighting in their homes but how to finance such a project was the subject of many discussions. To lay worker Timothy Starr, himself a native of the village, the problem was not insurmountable. If the money usually spent on liquor and potlaches was diverted to a sinking fund they would soon have enough capital to invest in the needed electrical equipment. To Mr Starr the question was simply—liquor or lights. With the choice squarely before them many able young men and women followed Mr. Starr's lead and today thanks largely to this energetic group Kitimaat has more members in the church and more dollars in the sinking fund.

Rev. W. P. Bunt, superintendent of Home Missions in British Columbia, added a sequel to Rev. Kelly's story when he related how Mr. Starr convinced his followers that, only through closer relations with the church, could they hope to maintain the determination that would enable them to build a better life in Kitimaat.

A number of other cases where natives were taking the initiative in an effort to help themselves were cited by Mr. Bunt. He also commented on the very good work being done by ministers, teachers, hospital staffs and laymen in missions throughout the whole Presbytery.

At the conclusion of his report on Home Missions, Mr. Kelly announced the impending retirement of Rev. R. Wilding of Port Simpson and Rev. T. W. Johnson of Bella Bella. Rev. Bunt, Rev. Kelly and Rev. More each paid tribute to the fine work done by these two men and wished them good luck and good health in the years to come.

A question evoking considerable discussion among the delegates involved the status of ministers in the native missions. General feeling among the members indicated that special consideration must be given to the questions of salary, length of service, holidays, schooling for the missionarys' children, accommodations for families and the isolation of some missions if qualified workers are expected to seek work in the native fields.

Optimism was in the air as delegates of the Prince Rupert Presbytery of the United Church ticked off the last items on their lengthy agenda late yesterday afternoon and prepared to return to their various charges.

Upon adjournment of the business meeting, members and visitors to the Presbytery joined the delegates to the Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society at a dinner in a downtown cafe. Later members of both organizations held a joint concecration service in the Manse.

LETTERBOX

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Editor, Daily News:

I would like to write a few lines after seeing an item in the local paper concerning old age pensions and the plight of those over 70. It is too bad for we old fellows who have been useful for the best part of our lives but for whom the present system of society has no use because we are too old. I think it would be a good thing if, when we get to be a burden on the country after having given good service, we were taken out and done away with like old horses. Maybe they could make some money out of our carcasses. At least they might do for fertilizer.

Members of our government can raise their salaries $2000 a year without the consent of the people but they cannot give the old age pensioners a little more to help them along in their declining years. Then there is also all kinds of money spent on men and women holding down jobs at big salaries who retire on a big pension and don't have to be 70 either.

Of course, we can go to the Pioneers' Home and get good treatment but I see the city council wants the Salvation Army to take charge of that.

O yes, we are living in a great age. It's hard enough to get along on the miserable pension but they try to make it even more miserable. I would like to ask some of these people if they could feed and clothe themselves and pay rent on $30 a month.

A little while ago they put a notice on the door of my shack saying that, if I did not get out by a certain date, they would put the law on me. Maybe that's what they call freedom and democracy.

Now you can see the old timers waiting for their pension checks The last ones they received were before Christmas. That is the way they treat the old fellows. Maybe the Communists had something to do with this. They get the blame for almost everything. They may be called a menace to society but, to my idea, they like to see people live as they should live—not in misery and poverty.

Thanking you for valuable space,

ROBERT KYDD
Old Age Pensioner.

TO CONSIDER AIR SERVICE

Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce will endeavour to be represented at Vancouver on February 25 when a hearing of the Air Transport Board will be held to consider applications which have been made by Trans-Canada Airlines and Queen Charlotte Airlines for licence to operate scheduled airline service between Vancouver and Prince Rupert. A number of applications for other scheduled and non-scheduled air lines services will be dealt with at the same meeting.

The local Chamber has already made representations to the Air Transport Board in support of a licence being granted for a scheduled service between here and Vancouver.

GRUNTERS HERE FOR WRESTLING SHOW TONIGHT

Everything points to a full house tonight at the Civic Centre for the big wrestling show between Jack McLauglin, present holder of the Canadian middleweight wrestling crown and claimant of that same title for the whole universe, and Gil Pearson, one of the roughest and toughest men in the business. McLaughlin arrived on the Camosun this afternoon and after a brisk canter to loosen himself up a little claimed he wasn't going out on a limb when he predicted a win for himself.

Pearson met Mr. McLaughlin in Vancouver a few weeks ago but the bout ended in such an uproar that both men were disqualified and it is doubtful if promoters in the south wish to stage the return bout. When it was decided by the Civic Centre Association that a professional wrestling show should be included in the program of sports for the winter it was at once planned to try to bring these two men together here.

In no sport under the sun does the man with the rule book mean so much to the state of affairs existing at the moment than in the professional wrestling game. These poor and usually mammoth chaps are subjected to the most unfair treatment by the participants and simply because they don't just seem to know when the boys want to be left alone.

Tonight a native son will be the third man in the ring and, somehow there is reason to believe he will be able and willing to get in there and straighten things out to suit what rules there are.

The "native son" is George Howe who admits he first saw the light of day in Merrie Olde England but headed this way as soon as he could read a compass. He has played every game on the Canadian calendar and played them for keeps. When joshed a little today regarding the seriousness of his duties tonight and also the danger of getting all mixed up with things in general he casually admitted that wrestling was the sport he loved while a boy and, if he has to step back tonight it'll be the champion that'll be the cause of it. Said George: "All they can do is tie me in a knot and leave me there" but there was intent in his voice and that intention no doubt was that it will take two to tie the knot.

In summary it will definitely be a show on the must list for those that enjoy thrills, the thrills hatched from the beating of man by man.

In the game of professional wrestling where few holds are barred, it is reasonable to understand that it flourished all over the continent and plays to packed houses in all the large centres but this is the first attempt the Civic Centre Association has made to sell it to fans here and the guess is that it will be a tremendous success.

SHORT SPORT

New Zealand is experiencing a sports boom which may break all previous records. The demobilization of thousands of thousands of men from the forces and the greater leisure given by the practically universal 40-hour week have combined to give all branches of sport a greater impetus than they have known for years. Racing continues to draw the largest crowds. Huge gatherings thronged racing and trotting meetings throughout the Dominion over the Christmas and New Year holidays. At nine meetings on Boxing Day $2,051,200 were wagered on the totalizators. This included $888,640 at the Auckland Racing Club's meeting, which is a New Zealand record in betting at a single day's racing. Total betting during the day was $300,000 higher than the previous year.

Cricket is the most popular summer game in New Zealand. There is almost as much interest in England-Australia cricket tests as there is in the two countries chiefly concerned. Although their size is still greatly restricted, newspapers all carry at least two full columns each day on the tests, including long commentaries by former cricket stars.

Yachting has had a notable revival with the recommissioning of many boats that were laid up during the war. Dozens of excellent harbors and hundreds of sheltered inlets around the coast offer fine cruising grounds. Races are held for all classes from large ocean-going yachts to small sailing dinghies.

Boxing, dirt-track motocycle and midget car racing, and cycle racing are all booming. Lawn bowling is by far the most popular sport with older men in the Dominion. A large number of greens are in use both winter and summer in all cities and towns and the numbers playing are steadily increasing. Golf in New Zealand is chiefly a winter sport as the links get too hard and fast in summer. However, some enthusiasts play the year round.

YANKS START SOUTH TOUR

Larry McPhail Taking Club to Central and South America

NEW YORK, — Larry MacPhail's Yankee flying circus, with about 33 performers, takes off February 14 for a month-long stand in Central and South America before opening training at St. Petersburg, Florida, March 12.

The main objective of Manager Bucky Harris on the tour through Puerto Rico, Venezuela and Cuba will be, the new pilot said at a press conference, to "study the pitchers, with whose work I am somewhat unfamiliar."

About the only regulars he left behind, Harris said, are pitchers Spud Chandler and Randy Gumpert, who will report with the rest of the Yankee squad at St. Petersburg February 20. "I know what they can do," Harris explained.

ALTITUDE MAY SLOW UP LOUIS

MEXICO CITY— Heavyweight champion Joe Louis is sure Mexico City's mile and a half altitude won't bother him in the first four rounds of his 10-round exhibition Friday with Arturo Godoy, but he is afraid "it might get me winded later." Louis, in a radio broadcast after visiting President Miguel Aleman, said his weight was down four pounds to 214 but still above his best fighting poundage of 208.

Overwhelming Score of 8 to 2 in National Hockey League Game Last Night

MONTREAL, (CP) — Montreal Canadiens took a commanding five-point lead in the National Hockey League last night by overwhelming the Toronto Maple Leafs 8 to 2. There was no doubt of the issue from start to finish as the slump continued for the Maple Leafs.

Tomorrow night the Leafs will be at home to the Boston Bruins at Maple Leaf Gardens while the Deroit Red Wings will be at the Forum in Montreal to meet the Canadiens.

The American section will be in action Sunday night with New York at Detroit and Boston at Chicago.
