Canadian Pacific Should Not Freight Into British Columbia, Says Tom Reid

Ottawa Talks Differential

Province Penalized Because Bad Grade Chosen

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway should not be allowed to haul freight into British Columbia, Thomas Reid, Liberal, New Westminster, contended today before the House of Commons committee on railways and shipping. He told members that he was "taking this stand" in an effort to end a situation which "penalized" British Columbia because "the C.P.R. took a wrong grade" when it built its line to the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Reid's words brought up in the committee the thorny question of mountain differential rates which bear heavily on the traffic rolling through the Rockies into the Pacific coastal province.

'Vital Poll' Went Off Tranquilly

Early Returns Favor Government—Better Idea Tomorrow

ROME (CP) — First final tabulation of votes in the Italian general election Sunday and today tonight indicated a substantial victory for the Christian Democrat government party—in the Senate at least. Two of Rome's 183 senatorial elections—including Premier Alcide de Gasperi's own section—gave the Christian Democrats 71 percent to the Communist led Popular Front's fifteen percent. Later trend was more than two to one for the Christian Democrats, this being the lead in first scattered returns.

The all-important lower house results will not be known until tomorrow.

Italy ended her fateful national elections today after turning out a tremendous vote which looked like a bad omen for the communists.

The polls closed after twenty-one hours of voting which is regarded as being full of meaning for the future of Europe and possibly, for the peace of the world.

Officials estimated that ninety percent of 29,000,000 eligible voters cast ballots.

This may be a world record for a free election and a heavy vote was generally interpreted as favoring the anti-communists.

Counting began immediately after the polls closed at noon today. Voting was by proportional representation and early returns were expected late tonight.

First returns on the 574 seats in the Chamber are due tomorrow.

A grim tug-of-war in Italy between Russia and the West was reflected in a bitter and often violent campaign and accounted for the heavy turn-out of voters.

Threat of violence, which hung over the two-day voting, never materialized. The government had 330,000 armed watchers on duty. Heavy police detachments guarded the streets. Some of the soldiers actually acted as baby sitters while mothers went out to vote.

Two attacks on army ammunition dumps in the Milan area were reported but government spokesman minimized the importance of them. He called one a false alarm. There was some gunfire around the ammunition dumps but government officials said the outbursts were not actually connected with the voting.

The proposed resolution reads: "no anarchist, communist or fascist, avowed or proved, shall be permited to become or remain a member, nor shall any person who advocates destruction of organized government in Canada by force."

FIVE PROVINCES VOTING IN 1948

OTTAWA— Five provinces of Canada are expected to have provincial elections this year. They are Ontario, date for the election in which province has been announced for June 7, Quebec, New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Premier Drew, in announcing the Ontario election, said that the $600,000,000 development program for the province-owned electrical system would be the chief issue.

The announcement fulfilled persistent rumors but the date was a surprise. The fall had been anticipated.

The Liberal leader said the electrical development issue was an "excuse" and not a "reason" for an election. There was no good reason why an election should be held now.

The C.C.F. has announced it will contest every seat in the province.

dge Speaks of Jail John L. Lewis

ASHINGTON (CP)—Justice T. A. Goldsgh today held John L. Lewis guilty of criminal mpt of court for not sending striking coal miners to the pits when ordered to do so by the courts. udge announced he would pronounce sentence tomorrow.

Judge Goldsborough, before adjourning the court, hinted that he was at least considering a jail term for Lewis this time. He said that he did not think, because of the seriousness of the case, that it could be decided on a basis of "expediency."

Goldsborough is the same judge who fined Lewis $10,000 and the United Mine Workers $3,500,000 for disregarding a court "stop strike' order in 1948.

NEW T.C.A. SKY FLEET

Will be on Run Across Canada June 1

WINNIPEG — Canada will have in effect a brand new airline on June 1.

It became known here today that the last of TransCanada Air Lines $15,000,000 fleet of North Star aircraft will be off the Montreal assembly line by that date, a result of the improved supply situation.

G. R. McGregor, T.C.A. president, promptly moved up the date set for the introduction of the new fleet into Canadian service by 30 days. By the end of next month the country will be flying faster and with more seats available between coast and coast than ever before.

Winnipeggers, for example, will reach Toronto in four hours. Vancouver will be only two and a half hours from Calgary. Toronto and Montreal are 355 air miles apart, yet only 100 minutes will separate them on June 1.

Mr. McGregor described the new fleet today as one that Canadians could view with pride. He said its appearance in the skies across Canada would mark the culmination of two years of planning and training. It was a major goal achieved in T.C.A.'s post-war program.

BRAUND IS CONDEMNED

"He Hasn't Got a Thing," Says Vancouver Woman Returning From Australia

VANCOUVER (AP)—Three Vancouver cancer sufferers, first of eight Canadians to receive treatment from John Braund, 79-year-old Sydney, Australia, layman, returned here by air Saturday.

Only comment from any of the three—Mrs. Ruth McIntyre, Mrs. Anna Northam and Harold Evans—came from Mrs. Northam. "He hasn't got a thing," she said, referring to Braund's treatments.

Braund, who claims to be able to cure cancer, was recently termed a "fraud and a charlatan" by an Australian government investigating committee.

Cunningham Collection of Totem Poles May Be Sold

CITY MUSEUM MAY LOSE VALUABLE PIECES OF NATIVE ART

The fabulous Cunningham collection of carved slate totem poles, which has been described as the "heart" of the Museum of Northern British Columbia to which it has been on loan for many years, may be sold to the highest bidder.

So valuable is this collection that its creator, 82-year-old George Cunningham, who began gathering it on the Queen Charlotte Islands more than 60 years ago, has been resisting four-figure bids for its sale since before the First World War.

Instead, he preferred to have it exhibited in Prince Rupert, centre of the area in which Indian craftsmen made the exquisitely carved figures of native lore.

"I promised the two native artists that I would never commercialize on it," Mr. Cunningham said Saturday as he prepared to sail for Vancouver for medical attention. "But they are dead now so I think the promise has been fulfilled. I could use the money, too," he added.

Report that the collection of 39 pieces has at last been placed for sale has had a disturbing effect on the directors of the Museum of Northern British Columbia who are in no position to purchase it. They are wrestling with plans to save it for the regional museum.

So far, they see no way of meeting any price that would be reasonable for the collection. The National Museum at Ottawa, through its curator, Dr. Marius Barbeau, and an unnamed group at Victoria is reported to be hot on its trail.

At present, the collection is reposing in the museum here, and the Board has plans to place it in a larger display case where it can be shown to better advantage.

The collection, product of a lifetime of loving appreciation of fine handicraft, was begun by Mr. Cunningham, when, as a boy he sailed to the Queen Charlotte Island villages with his trader-father from their home at Port Essington. Its pieces are examples of an art that once flourished on the Islands, but which now is practically extinct.

"The Haidas used to spend their winters carving nephrite slate into totem poles and other figures," Mr. Cunningham recalled. "There were some fine artists among them but there were two who exceeded all the rest."

These two were Chief Charlie Edenshaw of Massett who died in 1919 and a lame slave boy who had been captured by the Haidas from one of the mainland tribes around Bella Bella. His name was Chapman.

"At times at our store at Port Essington, we had literally tons of nephrite poles which we had taken in trade. I kept only the best. I have always considered it interesting that the finest work should have come from a high chief and a humble slave boy."

Something in the nature of a carving competition seemed to have existed between the Chief and the crippled boy. The Chief held himself above recognizing the poor, alien lad and was never known to speak to him. Great as their kinship as artists should have been, it was not great enough to overcome the Haida chief's pride.

Mr. Cunningham would not say what recent offers have have been received for the collection but it is generally recognized of having a value of around $5,000. Years ago, he turned down an offer of $8,000, he said.

Mr. Cunningham, who has lived in the city fo rthe last several months after coming from Port Essingtos, still takes a buoyant interest in life despite his 82 years. However, his eyesight and hearing is failing. He has turned much of his remaining interests over to his nephew, Donald McAllister, who arrived here last year from England.

WINNIPEG MAN PUT TO DEATH

WINNIPEG (AP)—Lawrence Deacon, aged 35, was hanged for murder early Friday despite appeals for commutation of his sentence by 14,000 private citizens, the Department of Justice refusing to intervene. Deacon had been twice convicted of the iron bolt slaying of a taxi driver, Rohann Johnson, in March 1946. The defence insisted that the verdict was unjustified because the evidence was circumstantial.

Sowing the Wind

A GROWING SOBERNESS is marking the warnings of the men in power. War is no longer a distant and all but impossible eventuality. It is something that is brooding over a world with a dreadful imminence. There are some indications that Russia is becoming more conscious of this possibility and that her leaders, as far as they may do without losing the face that is so vital to them, are attempting to minimize the threat.

No one wants war. No one is ready for it. The stern methods of containing Russia, evidenced in the five-power military defence pact, the arraigning of Russia before the U.N. Security Council for her part in the coup in Czechoslovakia, and in President Truman's request for the necessary force to counteract Russian expansion, may influence Russian policy without doing more than qualify the threat.

The danger now is not so much from an open breach between principals, but that some of the minor actors in the world drama may have absorbed Russia's teachings too literally. It might easily be that a minor incident might plunge an unwilling world into a new catastrophe. It happened at Sarajevo in 1914 and started the First World War. It could happen again.

That is the danger of arrogant and irresponsible minorities that have grown drunk with seeming power. It is the judgment on those who would encourage minorities to usurp power. They cannot always be controlled. It is something for our own agitators and our own people to remember. Aggressive minorities may acquire a power for evil quite out of proportion to their own merits or influence. No subversive minority is free of the potential for harm. The murder of a none too important Austrian Archduke plunged the world into one world war. Some minor incident in a puppet state today might easily mean that history would repeat itself. Though you sow only the wind, you may still reap the whirlwind.

WELCOME HOME, CHAMPS

PRINCE RUPERT all-star basketball players are returning home this afternoon after bringing honor and glory to themselves and the old home town by winning the provincial senior B championship at Port Alberni. Like the rest of folks we are glad to join in saluting them.

They played not only proficiently and skilfully but as gentlemen and good sportsmen. More important than the victory, unprecedented and satisfactory as it may be to their hometown friends and supporters, is the fact that they carried the name abroad of being a good, square-shooting group of fellows who were out for the game rather than the name. But winning as they did and in the way they did, they also got the fame.

So, champs, welcome home and congratulations on your achievement!

A WONDERFUL SHOW

A THOUSAND Prince Rupert people on Friday and Saturday evenings saw practical demonstration at Rup-Rec's annual mass display of what might well be considered the most valuable and far-reaching of the myrial of functions that are going on at Prince Rupert's Civic Centre. It is only too bad that the rest of Prince Rupert's nine thousand or so people could not also have seen.

It is appropriate that Neil Ross and Miss Margaret Slinn, the directors of these activities at Civic Centre, should be heartily congratulated and commended not only on the display itself but on the season of careful organization, hard-working effort and finely co-ordinated instruction and drill that led up to the impressive show.

Of course, it should not be necessary to remind the people of this community that, without their civic centre, all this would have been impossible. These hundreds of people of all ages would not have been able to have the benefits and pleasures to be derived from such activity—an activity which it is only a wonder hundreds of others are not striving to participate in.

It makes us wonder again, as we have done before, just how Prince Rupert ever got along before without its Civic Centre and how it could possibly do without one again.

And the physical and recreation educational training which the existence of the Civic Centre and its facilities make possible, while most important, is only one of so many activities, too numerous to mention, and, in some way or other, affecting beneficially practically every citizen of Prince Rupert.

FINAL RITES FOR PIONEER MISSIONARY

Tribute to the long life of missionary service of the late Rev. William Henry Pierce, who died in the city last week at the age of 91, was paid Saturday afternoon by scores of friends who filled First United Church to attend his funeral.

Men and women who had known deceased during his more than half-century as a Methodist and United Church missionary were present as Rev. R. A. Wilson recounted his exploits of the spirit which made him beloved and respected among the white and native population.

Taking part in the service was Rev. Canon W. F. Rushbrook, himself a retired missionary, whose association with Mr. Pierce went back almost to the turn of the century and who had labored with him in the same cause although with a different church.

Canon Rushbrook delivered the benediction for his old friend.

In his eulogy, Rev. R. A. Wilson said that the passing of the pioneer missionary was cause for rejoicing rather than for grief because his work had been completed and his record was one of triumph.

"We should rejoice at his life of service and in the knowledge that he will be remembered in many places by those who first heard the Gospel from his lips. His graphic speech and sincerity of heart will not be forgotten," Mr. Wilson said.

There should be rejoicing, Mr. Wilson declared, because of the grace that God had shown in calling Mr. Pierce to his work and for the guidance given by the early figures in the coast missionary field — Father Duncan, Rev. Thomas Crosby and Rev. C. M. Tate.

"He was a man of great devotion, to whom prayer was a very real experience and we should rejoice in the knowledge that he has gone to join those great friends in a better life."

During the service, the congregation sang the hymns "Let Christian Faith and Hope Dispell," "Jesus, the Very Thought of Thee" and "For All the Saints." Miss Rose-Marie Hartwig was organist.

The large number of floral tributes indicated the respect that Mr. Pierce was held both in the city and along the coast. Telegrams of respect were received from the president of the British Columbia Conference of the United Church and from the president of the Board of Home Missions under which he had served duming much of his active life.

Interment took place in Fairview Cemetery. Acting as pallbearers were Dr. R. G. Large, J. S. Wilson, Staff Sergeant G. A. Johnson, James Bolton (Port Essington), Edward Clifton (Hartley Bay), Louis Starr (Port Essington).

BLUEY'S BRIDE ENDS LONG JOURNEY—Within 56 hours of her leaving Australia, Amana Matilda flew the length of the Pacific to meet a Trans-Canada Air Line craft at Vancouver and across half the continent to Toronto Airport. Presented by the Sydney Journalists' Club to the Toronto Men's and Women's Press Clubs, the distinguished traveller was met at the airport by Miss Dorothy McCallum, representing her father, Mayor H. E. McCallum of Toronto, and members of the board of control and representatives of the press clubs. The photograph shows T.C.A. stewardess Jean Johnson introducing Amena Matilda to Miss McCallum. The bouquet of carrots presented to Amana Matilda interested her much more than the official welcome. Amana Matilda will be a mate for Bluey, the kangaroo who made the headlines last year when it was sent over from Australia for the Byline Ball. Amana was officially introduced to club members at the Press Club's April 10 Byline Ball in Royal York Hotel.

The present church elders are Joseph Wesley, president; Edward Wesley, Alfred McDames and Peter Mark ,elders.

INDUSTRY MAY BE CURTAILED

Four families from the Juskatla logging camp in Massett Inlet near Port Clements arrived in the city on the Coquitlam yesterday morning on their way to Vancouver. According to word from the Islands there is to be a curtailment of logging operations in at least some of the camps. In view of high prices, lumber demand, it is said, is slowing up and stocks of lumber and logs are accumulating. Increased freight rates and new wage increase demands are also, it is said, complicating the situation.

PUBLIC ASKED TO CO-OPERATE IN ARTS SHOW

Public co-operation will play a large part in the success of the arts and hobby show which is to be held in the Civic Centre here April 28 to May 1. Visitors as well as exhibitors will have a stake in the display of craftsmanship.

In addition, a large group of volunteer helpers will be needed and will be allowed the choice of assignments among the jobs on hand. Men and boys will be required to set up tables on Saturday, April 24, while teachers from the city schools are setting up class exhibits.

On Monday, another group will be needed to cover the tables and arrange exhibits. On Wednesday the "finishing touches" will be put on the displays.

Between Wednesday and Saturday, while the show is in progress, other helpers will be needed to station themselves throughout the building to watch the exhibits and to offer information concerning them.

Mrs. J. T. Harvey and Mrs. William Cruikshank are receiving names of volunteer helpers.

All exhibits are to be brought in on the afternoon or evening of Monday, April 26.

HOW CAN I ? ? ?
By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I prevent dust from getting between the picture frame and the glass, and soiling the picture?

A. A piece of paper should me pasted around the edges on the back of the frame. If this paper comes off or becomes torn paste on another piece immediately. It is the only way to prevent dust from getting in.

Q. How can I stop hiccoughs?

A. Hiccoughs can usually be stopped by drinking hot, strong coffee.

Q. How can I prevent fish from sticking to the pan while frying?

A. Put a teaspoonful of salt in the pan and rub thoroughly with waxed paper.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS CABIN

Charles H. Kallstrom, about 60, occupant of a cabin at the fishermen's floats, east of the dry dock, was found dead at 4:50 Saturday afternoon after he had collapsed across the stove in the kitchen of the small cottage where he lived alone.

His body was discovered by John Eklund, a neighbor, who had become apprehensive after seeing no sign of movement about Kalstrom's cabin for a couple of hours. Eklund said that he had last seen Kallstrom at the front of his cabin at 3 o'clock and that he had appeared normal.

Mr. Eklund called the city ambulance and attendants Percy Camero nand John McLean who found Kallstrom dead on their arrival. They called Corporal Archie Taylor of the city police.

Mr. Kallstrom was born in Sweden and had lived in Prince Rupert for more than 30 years. At one time he was a fisherman but later he retired from that occupation and was employed by a shoe repair shop on Fulton Street. He was unmarried and apparently had no relatives in Canada.

JAPANESE CHERRY TREES GROWING

Years ago a couple of dozen young Japanese cherry trees were presented to the city and these were planted on each side of the cinder pathway leading toward the railway station. The little trees, which blossom but do not bear fruit, made a pretty fair start but, in course of time, most of them disappeared. Today, four are left. They stand on the harbor side of the pathway and have a healthy, growing appearance, although they look is if sometime, they had been pulled to one side or efforts had been made to do some uprooting.

LEGION W.A. AT TERRACE IS BUSY

SHORT SPORT

Promotion of healthful recreation and stimulation of sports activities for the youth of the country is advocated by Thomas J. Keen, former deputy superintendent of Headingly jail, in Manitoba, as a 'sure-fire" antidote in the batlte against crime. "It is remarkable how few of those in Headingly jail have any active interest in sport," he said. "If they had spent more time in such activities they would probably not have ended up in prison."

Since he first entered the service as a prison guard 32 years ago, Mr. Keen has witnessed progressive improvement in prison cinditions. The advance has been particularly noticeable, ne said, in the higher standard of food provided, along with better library and recreational facilities. "Today the men are allowed to listen to radio programs, broadcast through the wards by a public address system. Broadcasts of swing music, hockey games and prize fights are the big favorites."

SHIPS AND WATERFRONT

SECOND SHOW DRAWS CROWD

Second Capacity Audience Expresses Appreciation of Rup-Rec

Another admiring full house audience gathered at the Civic Centre gymnasium Saturday night to applaud with amazed enthusiasm the second night's presentation of Rup-Rec's annual mass display of accomplishment in physical and recreational education by all age groups from tiny tots and mature adults. Three hundred persons in all took part in the play which was under the direction of the two staff instructors, Neil Ross and Miss Margaret Slinn.

The display was formally opened from the floor by Dr. R. G. Large, president of the Civic Centre Association of Prince Rupert who congratulated Mr. Ross and Miss Slinn and their assistants on the splendid success of their work. It was a striking revelation of the usefulness of the Civic Centre. During the program Civic Centre Director Don Forward spok ebriefly to also thank the leaders and the participants and to bespeak public support of the service clubs and other organizations which had definite projects for community betterment. He also referred to the honor which Prince Rupert basketballers had brought to Prince Rupert in winning the provincial championship. Had it not been for the facilities and service of the Civic Centre this might not have been possible. At the close of the proceedings Neil Ross thanked and congratulated all those who had taken on the show and the various others on the oustide whose assistance had been a contributing factor.

The leaders were Mr. and Mrs. William Collins, Mrs. Ken Yelland, Mrs. Don McKay, Miss Jean Faught, Emil Blain, John Thompson, Ted Parkhouse.

Accompanists were Miss Frances Moore, Miss Eleanor Moxley, Mrs. J. M. Black and Miss Barbara Teng.

Announcer was R. G. Moore.

Clothes For Royal Tour

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—What the King and Queen and Princess Margaret Rose will wear during their tour of Australia and New Zealand early in 1949 is already a live topic at Buckingham Palace.

It is probable that, in view of the need for national economy, the Queen and Princess Margaret will decide to "make do" with their South African clothes but some alterations will be necessary to conform with recent trends of fashion.

As the clothes made for South Africa were suitable for every type of climate, the choice will be fairly wide, and length will be no problem as the Queen and Princess have never worn very short skirts.

"The lengths in vogue in South Africa when we went there in 1947 were the same as those now being sponsored in Britain," a member of the Royal entourage said. "The three state gowns worn by the Queen will never be affected by any change in fashion. They were designed for history."

MARGARET GROWS UP

It is expected that the clothes Princess Margaret will wear in Australia will be the most formal and sophisticated she has yet had. For then the Princess will be well on the way to her 19th birthday whereas in South Africa she was of schoolgirl age, still regarded as the younger sister.

Talks with her dressmakers will not begin for some months yet, but simple pastel-colored summer day and evening dresses, with lightweight suits and hats, are expected to predominate.

When Senator John Armstrong, minister in charge of the Australian tour, visits Buckingham Palace next July, he will confer with the King and Queen and their advisers concerning the proposed itinerary. The time of their departure from England — probably next February—will also be decided.

One of a number of Royal broadcasts to be made during the visit will include one by Princess Margaret Rose to young Australians and New Zealanders.

Plans for welcoming the Royal Family are already being discussed throughout the two countries. One proposal is that hostels should be erected in towns and cities to accomodate visitors from rural areas.

An official of the Australian House said arrangements for the tour would probably follow similar lines to those made for the South African tour and the Royal visit to Canada in 1939.

Reminiscences and Reflections
By W.J.

There is this to be said of Prince Rupert. One thought of it the other morning when broadcasts were telling about headaches and high water along the Ohio and other rivers bringing the usual spring floods. Here, as a rule, is an abundance of excellent water. It is above reproach, yet never shows above the door step. Nor is it ever seen creeping upstairs. Utilizing canoes or boats is always restricted to the harbor.

Winston Churchill has sold his story of the Second Great War to a United States magazine at, one may easily suspect, a good round figure. It will appear in six different issues. No editor is going to flourish any blue pencil over that copy.

Rousing indeed should be the welcome home to the winning basketball team back from Alberni this afternoon. "Nothing succeeds like success," and "ain't that the truth?" Incidentally, the reception could lack much without a band but there is one and it will arise to the occasion. Without it, there could be the flatness of a flapjack.

It's just as well to postpone praising primroses and speak with caution of sulphur and molasses, when two men, a sleigh and two cases of beer go through the ice of Francois Lake. And it is with immense pleasure one is able to report no lives or property, excluding beer — was last, and that the community has recovered its poise. Meanwhile spring continues to be on the way.
