Salmon Tendermen Seek Vote On Whether To Strike Plants

U.S. Steel Mills Set For Strike

Negotiators Still Talking

NEW YORK (AP) — Weary negotiators meet again today in a final effort to avert a country-wide steel strike at midnight.

Meanwhile, furnaces grew cold and silent as mills throughout the United States prepared for the threatened walkout by 650,000 steelworkers.

Representatives of the United Steelworkers of America and companies producing more than 90 per cent of the steel in the U.S. began talks more than a month ago to forge a new contract. The old one expires at midnight tonight.

But the negotiators were still stumped late Friday night with no progress reported.

DIFFER ON LENGTH

The steel companies have insisted on a five-year agreement to succeed the present two-year pact. The union says it cannot bind the steelworkers to so long a contract.

The company later cut it demands to four years and four months.

The steelworkers are "hot—really hot" against acceptance of the industry offer, union president David J. McDonald said on Friday.

The Eisenhower administration, meanwhile, took a hands-off attitude toward the negotiations for the moment.

ACTRESS MARILYN MONROE, (shown above in a July 4 Independence Day cheesecake pose,) and playwright Arthur Miller were married Friday night in a quiet ceremony in the city hall of White Plains, N. Y. Judge Seymour Robinowitz presided. Miller made a prediction come true when he said the world would know about their wedding only after it happened. Morton A. and Florence J. Miller, cousins of the groom and Milton Greene, business associate of Miss Monroe were witnesses. Marilyn wore a skirt and cardigan sweater and Miller was tieless in a blue linen suit.

Stalin's Dismissal Urged in Lenin Will

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Lenin's will in which the founder of the Soviet Union urged Stalin's dismissal as Communist party secretary, was published today after being suppressed for 33 years.

The will, which described Stalin as "rude" and "capricious," was published by the Communist party in its magazine Kommunist.

The will consisted of a letter from Lenin to the 13th Communist party congress dated December 23 and December 24, 1922. It had a postscript dated January 4, 1923, in which Lenin recommended the congress replace Stalin with someone "more patient, more loyal, more polite and more attentive to comrades, less capricious . . ."

The letter aso contained a number of favorable as well as critical references to Trotsky.

This is the first time any praise of Trotsky—who had been Lenin's close associate—has been published in the Soviet Union since he was exiled by Stalin in 1927.

FEARFUL OF POWER

In his letter, a form of last testament written a year before his death, Lenin said that bad relations between Stalin and Trotsky "make up the greater part" of the danger of a split in the party which he feared.

In his estimation of Stalin's character, he said:

"Comrade Stalin, having become general secretary, has concentrated in his hands immense power and I am not sure whether he will always be able to exercise sufficient care in using this power."

Trotsky, on the other hand, although "the most capable member of the present central committe" was "excessively self-confident and carried away by the purely administrative side of problems."

Lenin said: "These two qualities of the outstanding leaders of the present central committee are capable of leading inadvertently to a split, and if our party does not take steps to prevent it, a split could occur unexpectedly."

HOPED FOR CHANGE

Kommunist in a foreword to the documents, explained the circumstances in which Lenin's recommendation that Stalin should be dismissed was rejected by the party congress held three months after Lenin's will had been written.

Kommunist said: "This letter according to the wish of V. I. Lenin was communicated to the delegations to the 13th party congress, which discussed the question of the replacement of Stalin in the post of general secretary. The congress delegation supported the retention of J. V. Stalin in the post of general secretary, bearing in mind that he would take account of Lenin's critical remarks and would be able to correct his shortcomings."

The testament was in fact never read out to the congress as Lenin has wished.

Kommunist said that after Lenin's death, the Communist party "ideologically defeated the Trotskyites, the Zinovievites and Bukharinites" and "insured the building of socialism in our country."

ONLY PRINCE RUPERT GIRL to ever win coveted Miss PNE title, currently being sought by eight candidates in Elks Dominion day celebrations, Miss Prince Rupert contest Monday, is Mrs. Vernon Ciccone, above. As 17-year-old Margaret Brain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Brain, Mrs. Ciccone won Miss Prince Rupert contest here eight years ago, went down to Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver, captured the title of "Miss PNE of 1948" and as "the most beautiful girl in British Columbia" was sent on a trip to Hollywood. (See Pictures of 1956 candidates on Page 6).

Group May Join Storage Workers

About 800 B.C. salmon tendermen have threatened to join 700 fresh fish and cold storage workers in a strike against coastal fishing companies in July, it was learned from Vancouver today.

Homer Stevens, secretary of United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, said the tendermen have applied for a government-supervised strike vote.

He said the men "overwhelmingly" rejected conciliation board recommendations in their dispute with 13 packing companies.

Fresh fish and cold storage workers will take a strike vote July 6 and have fixed July 14 as a tentative strike deadline. The vote will be conducted simultaneously in fish plants scattered from Vancouver to Prince Rupert.

The conciliation board recommended wage increases of $14 to $20 monthly for this year and $7.50 and $10 next year in a two year contract.

The union demand was for a $40 monthly increase under a one-year contract and a minimum of $50 or 18 per cent for a two-year contract.

Other union demands were for more days off, compulsory check-off, and a maximum 12-hour day on ship.

Prince Rupert tendermen desiring to vote on the conciliation board report are asked to get in touch with Thomas Parkin, UFAWU northern representative at the Metropolis Hall, Third Avenue.

Gyro Club Backs Move For Qualified Lifeguard

The Gyro club of Prince Rupert today pledged its support toward sending a Prince Rupert swimming pool supervisor to a Canadian Red Cross Society Swimming and Water Safety course at Trail, B.C.

The money for the supervisor's fare will be taken from the Gyro Apple Day fund, a Gyro spokesman said today.

Going on the course Monday is Stanley Fielding, a supervisor at the Gyro pool in McClymont park and holder of The Daily News annual swimming gala trophy. He will take a four-day course in life-saving, artificial respiration and general water safety practices.

The move, instigated by Parks supervisor Rusty Thain, will give Prince Rupert the opportunity of having a qualified instructor to train future lifeguards at the local pool.

Establishment of classes here for swimming instructors will mean that the Red Cross Society will send an examiner to Prince Rupert next year so that pool supervisors can be qualified as fully-fledged lifeguards.

Already this year, according to water safety director Max Howell, instructor schools have been held at Prince George, Burns Lake, Courtenay and Kelowna. The course at Trail starts July 5.

Miss Thain, who wired Mr. Howell, to see if Mr. Fielding could be admitted to the course at this late date, received a telegram from the water safety director today saying 'Candidate welcome.'

Already on his way to a course is Sgt. Edward Turcotte who left Wednesday by train to take a senior leader's course at Camp Borden, Ont.

NO CIVIC RECEPTION SLATED FOR MASSEY, MAYOR INFORMED

No civic celebration will be held here when Governor-General Vincent Massey passes through Prince Rupert July 13 and July 16 on his way to and from the Queen Charlotte islands, Mayor George E. Hills announced this morning.

Mayor Hills said he had been notified by Mr. Massey's secretary that as the Governor-General had paid an official visit to the city in 1953, it was customary to hold no civic reception or other activity in connection with subsequent visits. Mr. Massey's secretary said that the Governor-General extended an invitation to the city's Chief Magistrate to visit him at his railway car on July 16, Mayor Hills said.

Monaco Heir Report Not Denied

NEW YORK (AP)—Rev. Francis Tucker said Friday he had "no reason to disbelieve" reports that Princess Grace of Monaco, the former actress Grace Kelly, is expecting a child. The Roman Catholic chaplain to Prince Rainier III of Monaco and a leading figure in the romance of the prince and film actress, said "I have heard the good news and I share the hopes of the Monacan people for the birth of a boy." There has been no direct word from the couple that they expect a child.

Mr. Montchal died Tuesday at the age of 70. He is survived by his widow Madge in Prince Rupert and two sons in Eastern Canada.

At the service conducted by Canon Basil S. Proctor the hymns "Breathe on Me Breath of God" and "Onward Christian Soldiers" were sung.

All Ready For Big Day On Monday

Weather permitting Prince Rupert will celebrate Canada's 89th birthday as a nation in grand style Monday.

No official word could be obtained from the Elks lodge by press time, as to what arrangements have been made should it rain, but it is presumed that plans for the gala Elks lodge Dominion Day celebrations are complete.

Starting at 10 a.m. there will be a parade of decorated cars, floats, bicycles and doll carriages from First Avenue to Algoma Park. Eight candidates for the Miss Prince Rupert contest will ride their sponsors floats and be introduced to the public at Algoma park.

Also at the park there will be children's sports, women's sports, a children's zoo, a tug-of-war and greasy pole contest and a barbecue.

Hugo Kraupner, parks commissioner and member of the Elks who has donated 250 pounds of beef for the barbecue said that conditions of the park had made it impossible to dig a proper barbecue pit. He said the meat would be processed at a locker plant, pre-cooked at a restaurant and weather permitting would be placed over a small pit similar to a barbecue in Algoma Park. If it rains, he said, the beef will be served in sandwiches at the two grand windup dances in the Civic Centre Monday night.

At 3 o'clock in Roosevelt Park the third game of a Rupert All-Stars-Ketchikan series will be played.

In the evening, outside the Civic Centre on the Centre's portable stage, the eight beauty queens will be introduced to the public by Canadian Broadcasting Corporation commentator Eileen Laurie. Also slated for the outdoor show is a jitterbug contest and a square dancing exhibition.

At 10 p.m. before the start of the modern and oldtime dances in the auditorium and gymnasium respectively, the winner of the Miss Prince Rupert contest will be announced in the auditorium. The two dances will complete the day's festivities.

HONG KONG (AP)—Peiping radio said Nationalist Chinese artillery on Quemoy Island shelled the Amoy area for nearly five hours Thursday but was silenced at noon by Red Army guns. The broadcast said four civilians were killed, three injured, and two small ships sunk.

Missing Boy Found in Lake

NELSON (AP)—The body of Albert Van Ruyskensvelde, aged 9, was recovered from Kootenay Lake here Thursday after a six-hour search.

The boy was last seen Wednesday walking toward the lake. The search began after his fishing rod was found under a boathouse.

Highway, Not Corridor Said Wanted by North

VANCOUVER (CP)—The idea of a corridor from northern British Columbia through the Alaska Panhandle to the Pacific Ocean "is a dream of some journalist," says Vancouver Alderman Halford Wilson.

"It is not what the people of Northern B. C. or Alaska want," he told a meeting of the B. C. Automobile association.

Mr. Wilson said that what is really needed is a highway from Hazelton to the Yukon that connects with the Alaska highway. Hazelton is about 550 miles north of Vancouver and 130 miles northeast of Prince Rupert.

The highway, to be known as Route "A," would connect with the B. C. coast and the panhandle through a series of access roads.

"The untapped riches of the north, plus a great influx of Canadian and American tourists would flow along all these roads," Mr. Wilson said.

He urged the automobile association to support the Associated Boards of Trade of Central B.C. which last week decided to press for the highways system rather than a corridor through Alaska. The automobile group's Highways committee took the proposal under study.

The Weather

Mostly cloudy today and Sunday but with frequent sunny periods both afternoons. A little warmer. Winds northwesterly 15 in exposed areas otherwise light. Low tonight and high Sunday at Port Hardy and Sandspit 50 and 60; Prince Rupert, 50, and 63.

The big Chilco run is expected to arrive July 20 and continue to August 10.

City Taximan Fined $300 For Illegal Sale of Liquor

City taximan, Clifton H. Borge, 738 Fraser Street was found guilty Thursday in police court on a charge of keeping liquor for sale illegally June 2, and was fined $300 and costs, or in default sentenced to three months in jail.

Borge, who pleaded not guilty through counsel Willa Ray was charged after an RCMP Corporal ordered two bottles of rye whiskey from the accused by phone and had them delivered to his home.

Crown witness Corporal R. N. Milmine told the court he had taken delivery of the whiskey from Mrs. Ann Preus whom he had paid $16 with a $20 bill from which the serial number had been noted.

Subsequently, a search of the Fraser street residence by a squad of RCMP had brought to light five bottles of liquor, two of which had been hidden under a mattress, Cpl. Milmine said.

The marked $20 bill had been found with other money in a pocket of the accused's pants, the RCMP corporal said.

The defence attempted to prove that the liquor was the property of Mrs. Preus, who had pleaded guilty to illegal sale of liquor June 2 and was fined $300.

Make It A Date

THANKS to the hard-working Elks Lodge, a lively and entertaining Dominion Day celebration is in store for Prince Rupert. There seems to be something for everyone in the program the Elks have arranged and in the face of such a wholehearted effort to provide a good time, the weather is bound to co-operate.

But the Elks are doing more than making sure we have a pleasant holiday. Whether it is their conscious aim or not, they are awakening Prince Rupert to the need of stepping up its summer activities. Most communities of comparable size in B.C. have made a feature of staging at least one big event in the summer which has paid generously in publicity dividends. Okanagan communities in particular have won themselves a name for this—Vernon has its Pioneer Days, Penticton its Peach Festival and Kelowna its Regatta. These affairs not only provide amusement for residents of the towns and promote the feeling that they are in a good place to live, but they also attract the profitable interest of visitors.

It can be argued that Prince Rupert, being at the end of a rough line for travelling, is not in a position yet to undertake extravaganza of this sort. But the argument will not hold good for long. Sooner or later this city is going to have to match wits with Kitimat to prove that it is not asleep and as Highway 16 improves, the need to sharpen up will increase accordingly.

All this may be a little removed from a Dominion Day celebration. But if the weather is kind on Monday we are sure to see as we have in the past that Prince Rupert is not lacking in a sense of fun and has plenty of savvy, as will be demonstrated in this case by the Elks, when it comes to putting on a good show.

So let's make it a date.

Due Regard to Danny

ONE of the deepest of all chasms yawns across communication between maturity and youth. Yet is there anything more important to humanity than that this chasm be spanned and the bridges kept open?

Danny Kaye, beloved comedian, says it's easy for any adult, "particularly if he makes an idiot of himself." Stick your tongue out, says Danny, "make a grotesque face . . . and there's no barrier at all."

With the utmost regard for Mr. Kaye's unquestioned ability to communicate to children of all ages, from 3 to 90, we would comment that making an "idiot" of oneself is a marvelous technique for a parent—provided that parent is Danny Kaye or a better-than-reasonable facsimile thereof. Which is another way of saying: Provided the parent (or the teacher, for that matter) stays in character.

Possibly no more beguiling and deluding precept was ever devised than "Be a pal to your boy" (without defining what "pal" should mean as regards this boy and this man).

Youngsters yearn for confidence in their elders. To have confidence they must feel respect. To have respect they must look up to, not merely at or down upon, their parents or mentors. (They can do that with their contemporaries.) Youngsters respond to pensing youth in the man; they are confused by finding the man become a youth.

Bombs or Bathtubs?

IT MAY be mere coincidence, but several readers have written me lately about what will happen when the big boom bursts.

Can North America survive the economic dislocation which would follow drastic cuts in expenditure on armies and armaments?

As it happens, this is a question about which I have been thinking for more than 25 years, and on which I made scores of speeches and wrote dozens of articles about 22 years ago. Without threshing all the old straw over again, my answer is—yes, Canada can survive the outbreak of real peace between the big power blocs. We do not need to go on spending nearly $2 billion per year on "defence" in order to keep ourselves prosperous.

Generally speaking, we could spend, from the public treasury, the same amount of money on bathtubs that we now spend on bombs, and be the better for it.

When I say bathtubs, I am of course using that term figuratively, because there are literally hundreds or thousands of things in every nook and corner of Canada which need doing, but which we have not been able to afford so far. For years to come, Canada could spend all available money now wasted on armaments, on better sewer systems for our big cities, on slum clearance on new roads and railroads, and so on, ad infinitum.

IT IS quite true that there is a limit to the possible consumption of actual goods. Right now, the Americans are not able and willing to buy all of the automobiles which have been pouring out of their factories for months past. The same thing holds true for many other lines of goods. But it is a tragic mistake to say that, because we had scarcity in the midst of abundance 20 years ago, we ever need to have that same artificial famine again. All governments have learned a lot in 20 years, and Canada's government and government advisers have learned the lesson perhaps more clearly than most other governments in the western democracies.

HERE are some of the ways I would expect Canada to use the money which now goes for armies and armaments, if we were able to achieve in the world a firm and secure peace.

The first and most obvious benefit would be in tax cuts. The government would be able simply to quit collecting so much from every employed person in Canada. The first and most noticeable effect could be, and should be, reductions in income tax deductions.

The second, and most obvious way in which Canada could use more and more of the money now wasted on war preparations, would be for higher family allowances and for really adequate old age pensions.

It is surprising how much of our expenditure on defence is for personal services. That is, it is spent out to pay the wages of the people in the armed services, or for the civilians who work in the numerous factories which make planes, tanks, guns and the thousand and one other things which are necessary for modern defence.

The reason why no government has yet been able to cope with this problem of ending war expenditures, without bringing on a depression, is because no government has yet really tried to do so.

No government, not even in Canada, has yet set up a body of experts whose job it would be to devise ways and means of transferring expenditures from the present warfare state to the future welfare state.

It should be remembered that this will never happen with the suddenness of the explosion of an atomic bomb.

If and when any government finally decides to reduce its expenditures for warfare, and to increase its expenditures for human welfare, it will be able to do so on a stage by stage basis without hardship or dislocation to anybody, or to any established interest.

After all, the manufacturers would just as soon make their profit from bathtubs as from bombs!

All Aboard

Recently a distiller warned the public against vodka. That nasty Slavic potion makes you drunk. Worse still, nobody can smell it on your breath.

A young person might swig vodka all day, and his best friends wouldn't know until he drove his kiddy car through a plate glass window.

Apparently the distiller had no such worries about the effects of rye whisky or rum on the children, because those spirits leave a trade mark which can be detected by the nose.

Father merely has to sniff the children's breath as they come home from school, and he can tell at once if they have been carousing.

Vodka, on the other hand, does not announce its presence. The distiller found it painful to make and sell such a sneaky beverage; but he hoped that the public might stop asking for it.

He was in Vancouver when he issued his warning; and he found some comfort in the fact that the sale of vodka is illegal in B.C. Don't let them sell the stuff, he cautioned. It's dynamite.

His warning went all across Canada by Canadian Press. Thanks to that socially-conscious distiller, millions of people in provinces where the sale of vodka is legal have not been alerted to the dangers of the stuff, and they can rush down to the liquor store and buy some, to see if it is bad, the man says.

Hundreds of gallons must have been sold by now, in the interests of research.

By denouncing his own product as a menace to society, the distiller breaks a new commercial trail which may be followed by others.

Tomorrow, some wise automobile manufacturer may succeed in having the sale of his cars banned in one or more provinces.

Then he can issue a warning to the nation: "If you value your life and peace of mind, don't buy the new power-packed Coddyloop, with its feather-light and Cuso-matic drive. It is far too smooth, fast and flashy.

"This car will pass anything on the road. Don't let your son near the wheel of this car. He'll wrap it round a pole. Don't be tempted to go into another province and buy one. It will give you delusions of grandeur."

"Once and for all, friends, avoid this car. It is dangerous for you."

OTTAWA DIARY

By NORMAN M. MacLEOD

Witnesses to House of Commons proceedings had a prime example the other day of just how difficult it is for anyone of the three presiding officers of the house who have been subject to a great deal of criticism lately, to keep Parliamentary debate on the rails. The cross-fire we are reporting today, please remember, all took place in something like 300 seconds. You've got to be awfully fast on your feet to keep up with it.

C. E. Johnston (SC - Bow River) had the floor. In the course of an otherwise placid speech about the rising level of freight rates, he said, "Once again we (in Western Canada) are going to bear the burden. . ."

"Don't be foolish," said J. C. Van Horne (PC-Restigouche-Madawaska), who had just finished a speech of his own about New Brunswick problems.

"Did you hear him say anything about it," asked Johnston. "You were more concerned with your provincial political affairs than you were with national problems."

"You did not get very far in New Brunswick," Van Horne shot back, referring to Social Credit failure to win seats in the provincial election.

"We did not do the political graft and skullduggery that you did," said Johnston. "You were probably one of the ringleaders."

E.T. Applewhaite (L-Skeena) Assistant Deputy Speaker, was presiding. "A direct accusation of political graft addressed to member should be unequivocally withdrawn," he ruled.

"I did not say that he did," said Johnston. "I was saying there was political graft there, and the evidence is very clear."

"You said he was one of the ringleaders," chimed in Wilfrid Dufresne (PC-Quebec West).

"He probably was," said Johnston.

Applewhaite, the one presiding officer who has come through the last month's stormy debates virtually unscathed, ruled that Johnston "must make it clear that he did not . . . charge (Van Horne) with political bribery."

"And Skullduggery," someone added.

"I do not know whether the other term is unparliamentary," said Applewhaite.

"That is right," said Johnston. "I cannot say he did not give the loads of gravel, but there were lots given . . . I did not accuse (him) of driving those gravel trucks. I never saw him on them. I cannot say anything about political graft."

Van Horne jumped up on another "point of order."

"Were you on the gravel trucks?" Johnston demanded.

"I insist," said Van Horne, "that he withdraw this false accusation."

"The honorable member for Bow River should now proceed to make his speech," ruled Applewhaite.

And he did.

Divorce Laws, Said Barbarous

KELOWNA (CP)—Canada's divorce laws are "unrealistic, barbarously cruel, and contribute to juvenile delinquency," W. Kent Power of Calgary said Friday.

He is attending the Canadian Bar Association's B.C. convention in Kelowna.

Mr. Power, a 71-year-old widower with two children, said there are 50,000 deserted spouses in Canada who should be given release by a legal divorce.

He condemned Canada's law, which allows only adultery as a ground for divorce, and said he favors the English system where a spouse can obtain a divorce after three years' desertion by the partner.

"An isolated case of adultery as grounds for divorce is entirely wrong," Mr. Power said. "That leads to perjury, contempt for justice, and causes juvenile delinquency in cases where men and women unable to obtain divorces enter into irregular ones."

— MUSEUM BRIEFS —

This has been a very busy week with visitors, and also we have been changing exhibits around. We were very fortunate to receive a donation of a handsome show case from C. A. Clegg of the CNR, who was acting for Canada Railway News. We are very grateful for this very big donation as it means that we now have nearly all the valuable stone tools under glass, where they show to much better advantage and are safe.

During the week we also had another class from Annunciation School, accompanied by Sister Ambrosia. They were well behaved young people and we hope they enjoyed seeing the Museum.

Miss Joan Malloy of Borden Street School also brought her class to visit the Museum and these young students appeared appreciative and it was nice to have them come and see the displays. Some are most interested and come back again and again.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dawson of Boston, Mass., were guests during the week and were very interested in Prince Rupert and the Museum. Hiking and mountain climbing are two of their hobbies and they said they hope to return this way in the future.

O. A. Olson of Smithers was also a guest. He said he has some exhibits which he will donate to the Museum.

Saturday Sermon

REV. J. A. ROSKAM
First Baptist Church

THE ANSWER TO OUR PROBLEMS

Judge Philip B. Gilliam, of Denver's Juvenile Court, was a delegate of the U. S. Information Service, in India, at the same time Dr. Billy Graham was holding services there. The Judge sat in on a press conference conducted by the Evangelist, and also heard him preach.

Concerning the service, Judge Gilliam said:

"Dr. Graham didn't appeal to the emotions; but my wife and I sat there with tears in our eyes. We have been church members for years but I believe we will be better members after hearing him. I believe I will be a better judge when I return to Denver. As I sat there I couldn't help wishing that every juvenile delinquent who appeared before me in the last twenty years could have heard him. He has the answer to their problems."

The Christian Business Men's committee, of Sacramento, Calif., invited General William K. Harrison, the U. S. Army's Caribbean area commander to address them at a rally in the Governor's hall on the State fair grounds. He told the audience of more than 1,100 persons that mankind is in a state of futility and frustration because much of the world is trying to live independently of God.

The General asked what makes the difference between people who practice deceit and the five missionaries who were killed by primitive Ecuadorian Indians while trying to teach Christianity. He answered his own question by saying:

"Jesus Christ, that's all that makes the difference." He pointed out that men are not without hope. "The debt of sin was paid once for all by the Saviour on the cross. He paid with his life the wages of sin which is death." the General said. "But God raised His from the dead through Him. But the gift is and offers salvation full and free of no value unless we accept it."

Dr. Graham and General Harrison are in perfect agreement in saying that the answer to the problems of juveniles, as well as adults is found in the glorious person of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The reason for the agreement is that both men got the answer from the Word of God. This has been the answer to the world's problems down through the centuries. When Philip met the Ethiopian on his way back from Jerusalem and heard him reading from Isaiah 53, he began at that same Scripture and preached unto him. JESUS. When the Lord Jesus was on earth, no one coming to Him with problems was ever turned away without a solution to those problems. He still invited all to come to Him by faith. All who come are forgiven and are made new creatures in Him.

This is the testimony not only of Scripture but of experience.

Rev. Lawrence G. Sieber, pastor of First United church for the past seven years, left Prince Rupert today with his family to take up new duties as minister of the St. Andrew's United church in Mission City.

Born in Burk's Falls, Ontario in 1905, Mr. Sieber attended public school in North Bay, Ontario and Elk Lake, Ontario, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Sieber served during the First World War.

In 1924 he moved to Edmonton, Alberta, received his high school education at Strathcona school and then graduated from the University of Alberta in 1930 with a Bachelor of Arts degree. 7-Foot High Jump Mark Set

Two World Records Broken at Trials

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two world records, one of them sport's first seven-foot high jump, point up today the predictions that the U.S. Olympic track and field team will be the strongest ever.

Eight events were held in final Olympic trials at the Coliseum Friday night and only one failed to produce a record of one type or another. More are expected in today's final nine.

Charley Dumas, a 19-year-old from California's Compton Junior College, produced the greatest thrill when he cleared seven feet, ⅝ inches in the high jump.

The seven-foot barrier long had been compared with the four-minute mile and 60 feet for the shot put. It was the last to fall.

"I was too glad to do better," Dumas grinned when asked why he stopped jumping after his record jump. His leap goes into the record as seven feet, ½ inch because of the world record ruling that heights should be measured to the nearest quarter of an inch.

SIME COULDN'T FINISH

Ohio State sophomore Glenn Davis smashed the Russian-held record in the 400-metre hurdles when he sped the barriers in 49.5 seconds. The accepted world mark of 50.4 is held by Russia's Yuriy Lituyev. A University of Texas freshman, Eddie Southern, finishing second, also came under the world mark with a time of 49.7 and third-place Josh Culbreath of the U.S. Marines equalled it.

Sprint King Bobby Morrow of Abilene Christian won the 100-metres dash in 10.3 seconds but in the preliminaries he and two others equalled the world record time of 10.2.

O'BRIEN EQUALS RECORD

Oregon's Bill Dellinger broke the American record for the 5,000-metre run with a time of 14.26 for the distance of about 3.1 miles. The old mark was 14:26.8.

Parry O'Brien broke the meet shot put mark with a toss of 60 feet, 10 inches, equal to his accepted world record but six inches short of his best outdoor throw of this year which still awaits record recognition.

All-Stars Play Ship's Crew Tomorrow

Prince Rupert All-Stars will play an exhibition softball game tomorrow at 7 p.m. at Algoma park against a team from the CNSS Prince George, Mike Kutzak, Prince Rupert Senior Men's Softball Association president, said today.

At a meeting of the association Thursday, the league set a 10 a.m. deadline for notification by team managers of inability to field a team due to overtime work. No decision was reached on re-scheduling rained - out games Mr. Kutzak said.

The league made plans to send its all-star team to Terrace July 8 and has lined up a two, or possibly three-game series with Kitimat at Kitimat July 28 and 29.

G. R. Ford has accepted the position on the softball commission, the association was told. Other commissioners are C. P. Balagno and A. G. Simundson.

Mounties Shaded By Beavers

By The Canadian Press

Los Angeles lost its chance Friday night to overtake Seattle Rainiers at the top of the Pacific Coast League.

Seattle dumped Los Angeles 3-2, and moved two games up on the second-place Angeles.

Hollywood came up with a 4-3 decision over Sacramento Solons to move to within eight games of Seattle. Sacramento holds down fourth place.

Portland Beavers needed 12 innings before overcoming last-place Vancouver Mounties 6-5 in the Oregon City. San Diego had it easy in the start of its series with San Francisco, blasting the Seals 10-5.

The same tams knock it about tonight. Los Angeles is at Seattle, Vancouver at Portland, San Francisco at San Diego and Sacramento at Hollywood.

Toms Scatters Six Hits As Elks Win 7th Straight

Elks of the Prince Rupert Pony league kept their charmed win-streak going last night at Roosevelt park chalking up No. 7 as they combed two Moose pitchers for 11 hits and accepted 16 walks for a 15-6 triumph.

For Elk hurler Larry Toms it was his sixth straight win with no losses as the lodgemen kept their average at 1.000 with an eight-run second inning that sailed the fixture away.

STRIKES OUT 10

Toms scattered six hits, gave out seven walks and struck out 10 Moose batters while his teammates added four more runs in the third stanza and three in the fourth.

Moose took a 2-0 lead in the top of the second inning, but in the bottom of the second lefty Ted Careless suffered a fit of wildness that saw him walk eight batters and hit one man before he was replaced by righthander Jackie Mutch with eight runs home.

In going the rest of the way, Mutch was tagged for 10 hits and eight walks which accounted for seven runs. He struck out seven. Careless, in the inning he worked, allowed one hit and struck out one.

Takeout Double Advantages Far Outweigh Disadvantages

My mail indicates that many players consider the takeout double the most baffling department of the game. I agree that it is the most complex of all "bids." How much strength do you need to make such a double? What do you do when partner doubles and the next hand bids or redoubles?

How do you distinguish a takeout double from a penalty double? Let's look into the situation in the next few columns and see what makes the takeout double tick—or backfire, as the case may be.

MAIN REASONS

Here are the principal reasons why the takeout double and the response thereto are often difficult to handle. First, the simple fact that you have to double for

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
		3 ♦	3 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	All Pass

A takeout means your opponents have got the jump on you by opening the bidding.

They have already "announced" a possible line of defense to be used if your side plays the hand. And, having exchanged some information at the start, they are in a position to crowd the bidding so you may never find your right spot.

In today's hand, for example, Mr. Masters had to lose a diamond and three spades for down one, while 10 tricks were readily available at a contract of four hearts.

Nobody made any bidding errors and yet hearts were not even mentioned. There wasn't time. Of course, four hearts might not have been reached with Mr. Abel as the opening bidder, although it would have been more likely that way.

MAKE BID SPEAK

A good player likes to make each bid tell something about two features of his hand—how much high card strength he holds and where that strength is.

In today's deal Mr. Abel would like to have said, "I have a good hand, including a five-card heart suit," but unfortunately that wouldn't have been legal. A takeout double says only that the doubler has a good hand. It doesn't tell what his best suit is.

And yet the advantages of the takeout double far outweigh its disadvantages. In the next few days I want to suggest ways to use it for your maximum profit.

Two Pupils Share Award As Pioneer School Closes

Jane Sheppard and Allan Sieber shared the Miss S. M. Mills Memorial trophy, awarded annually at Borden Street Elementary school to the top student in the Grade 6 graduating class, it was announced at ceremonies held in the school Wednesday.

G. Douglas Frizzell, long-time sponsor of the award, honoring the former principal, was unable to attend, owing to a storm which delayed his return from a boat trip and principal John Steele, who officiated in his absence, said:

"There is nothing to choose between these two pupils, and they both merit the award.

"This last class to graduate from this old school is as fine as any that has left us," Mr. Steele said. "We are all confident that these children will be a credit to Borden Street school."

Mr. Frizzell, who came to the school next day, expressed his regrets at being unable to attend the earlier ceremonies.

After warmly congratulating the successful students, he told the class to remember the high ideals for which Miss Mills stood.

Next September pupils from the west end of the city will attend the new $243,000 Roosevelt Park school. Old school, built in 1914, is to to be demolished.

Hugh Watts Wins Sport Honors at Princeton

Hugh G. Watts of Prince Rupert is among 33 Princeton university athletes who have completed their undergraduate careers with honors in their major fields of study, it was learned here today, on receipt of an annual listing of honors men received from Registrar Howard W. Stepp.

Mr. Watts, son of Bishop Horace G. and Mrs. Watts, of 206 Fourth Avenue West, recently graduated from Princeton with honors and will continue his education at Harvard this fall for the past three years.

Princeton's Honor Athletes for 1956, representing 14 states and British Columbia, are headed by Franklin E. Agnew, 3rd, Pittsburgh, Pa., co-winner of the Tigers' top athletic award, the William Winston Roper Trophy, who was awarded high honors in the Department of Economic and Sociology. Agnew has been a football and baseball mainstay for the past three years.

The captains of both varsity crews, the championship 150-pound varsity, now training at Henley-on-Thames, England, and the heavyweight eight, were among the sports leaders honored. William W. Satterfield, Little Rock, Ark., the lightweight captain, was accorded honors in Economics and Sociology, while captain-coxswain Robert Haselkorn, Brooklyn, N. Y., was one of the five recipients of High Honors in the Department of Chemistry.

Among the other members of the Honors-winning contingent were five varsity hockey lettermen: Bevis Longstreth, Princeton, N. J., Charles W. Pratt, Concord, Mass., William D. Smith, Philadelphia, Pa., Hugh G. Watts Prince Rupert, B.C., and Gordon Wilson, 3rd, Lake Forest, Ill.
