SMITHSONIAN ACQUIRES AL CAPP DRAWINGS — Dr. Leonard Carmichael, Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, unveils two original Sunday drawings from Al Capp's "Li'l Abner" comic, which were presented to the institution for permanent display. The theme represents the mythical attempts of Smithsonian to obtain the mythical "monstrosaurus egg," through the efforts of Lonesome Polecat and Raving Dove. "Li'l Abner" runs every day in The Daily News.

Boy, Two Children Die As Fire Hits Cannery Worker's Home

Mother, Baby Flee Port Edward Blaze

A youth and two children died last night in a roaring 20-minute fire that swept a home in the midst of the Indian village adjacent to Nelson Brothers Fisheries Ltd., cannery at Port Edward.

A young mother and her child escaped the blaze which broke out when an oil stove blew up exploding a naptha gas lamp which turned the living quarters of the one-and-a-half storey dwelling into a sea of flame.

Dead are:

Barbara Catherine McNeil, 3, and Velma Reece, 12 months, adopted daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson, and Edward Johnson, 19, their son.

Rushing downstairs with her own five-month old infant in her arms, when the explosion occurred, was 18-year-old Dorothy Johnson, daughter-in-law of the Johnsons and wife of Stanley Johnson, 20, another son.

Both Stanley and Mr. Johnson senior, were on shift at the cannery's herring reduction plant when the fire broke out about 9 p.m.

The Nelson Brothers volunteer fire department rushed to the fire which occurred in duplex No. 45 and No. 47, one home in a long row of buildings which house the fish plant workers. The Prince Rupert fire department was called but Port Edward firefighters had the blaze out by the time city firemen arrived.

TRIED TO GET IN

Both volunteer firemen and neighbors tried to get into the blazing home to reach the children but were beaten back by the intense heat.

A charred baby buggy, in which the baby lay downstairs, was pulled out of the smoking ruins of the gutted home, too late. Prince Rupert firemen in removing the bodies, found the three-year-old girl across her bed upstairs. The youth, was found near the door which led upstairs and it is believed that he was on his way upstairs to try and reach Barbara when he was overcome with smoke.

Only prompt action of the Port Edward firemen prevented the fire from spreading to the other houses which are approximately four feet apart.

Mrs. Johnson senior was treated for shock by a doctor from Miller Bay hospital who arrived about 11 p.m.

INQUEST SET

An inquest was scheduled at Ferguson Funeral Home for 3 o'clock this afternoon with Coroner Larry Pruden of Terrace presiding but it was understood that Mr. Pruden had been delayed by a slide on Highway 16, and the inquest might be delayed.

Besides his parents, Edward Johnson is survived by four brothers, William Jr., Floyd, Robert and Stanley and a sister Alberta.

Unknown to them, the fire occurred while Robert and Floyd were playing basketball at the Civic Centre last night.

Crippled Fishboat Found Safe

Has Galley Fire After Arrival

The storm-battered fishing vessel Westview, which survived yesterday's blinding snowstorm despite engine and steering gear trouble, was dealt a further blow this afternoon when fire broke out aboard the boat.

The Westview, which arrived at Fairview floats early this morning accompanied by the packer Zodiac Light, was the object of a sea-search by several vessels at the height of the storm yesterday.

The Westview was moved up to the Imperial Oil Company dock this morning and at about 2 p.m. fire of undetermined origin broke out on the portside deck amidships. The motor of the Westview was started, it is reported, and put in gear before the crew members left her. The unattended ship crossed some 200 feet of water before ramming into the dock near the Albert and McCaffery offices at Cow Bay.

Onlookers kept the fire down by throwing snow on to the deck of the vessel, it is reported, until the arrival of the Prince Rupert fire department. Fire was soon brought under control.

Damage to the vessel was estimated by firemen to be slight.

The Westview was found safe at dusk yesterday after the storm abated 50 miles south of here alongside the Zodiac Light by the department of fisheries vessel Laurier which left here at 2 p.m. yesterday.

The Westview, owned and skippered by Milan Mexeich of Vancouver, radioed at noon yesterday that she had engine and steering gear trouble and was being battered by heavy seas.

The distress message received by Digby island radio station said the crippled vessel was drifting in a blinding snowstorm and was lost. Heavy seas smashed a pilot house window on the Westview and also stove in a lifeboat on the Zodiac Light, packer for the Prince Rupert Fishermen's Co-Operative association which located the drifting vessel off the northern end of Banks island.

Five other fishing boats which sought the Westview were earlier reported trapped along the north coast of rocky Banks island, but later were said to be making their way to shelter safely.

The 113-foot Laurier, skippered by Capt. Jamieson which arrived back in Prince Rupert at 9 p.m. yesterday made the hazardous trip despite the fact that her radar set was out of commission, it was reported this morning.

The Zodiac Light, skippered by Capt. Andrew Christenson, left again this morning for the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Herring Catch Sets New Record

British Columbia fishermen are harvesting the greatest herring catch ever recorded on the Pacific Coast according to a bulletin issued by the Department of fisheries.

Catch figures up until February 25 show 213,000 tons had been netted on the coast this season, or 2,000 tons more than the previous record herring catch in 1953-54.

By far the largest body of fish is in the Queen Charlotte islands where the total catch to date is 89,000 tons. Storm conditions prevented fishing yesterday in the non-quota QCL area, but four sets are in the water today.

In Prince Rupert harbor yesterday and Monday, some 567 tons of herring were taken, bringing the season total up to 10,653 tons on a quota of 30,000 tons.

Entire District 2 herring operations will close down March 10 until June 1 to allow herring to spawn.

Central sub-district was closed to herring fishing March 1 when quota of 50,000 tons was reached. Original quota for central sub-district of 40,000 tons was given a 10,000-ton extension late last year when a large body of good quality herring was discovered.

FISHERIES OFFICIALS MEET

Skeena Indians Ask Longer Fishing Season

A two-day meeting on salmon conservation between top Pacific coast department of fisheries officials and fishery inspectors from 13 district areas was held in Prince Rupert Monday and yesterday.

Fisheries inspectors reviewed and assessed the salmon situation in their respective areas to A. J. Whitmore, chief supervisor of fisheries and his assistant Thomas Taylor, Louis Houghton, administrative oficer and Capt. J. G. Hutchinson, marine supervisor for the fisheries department.

Presented to the chief fisheries supervisor was a brief from the Kitwancool and Skeena river fishermen which calls for a slackening of salmon regulations this year or the retention of 1955 regulations.

Invoking protective rights granted "by Royal proclamation under George III in 1763," the brief, presented by Peter Williams, president of Kitwancool asked the fisheries department to consider the following points:

- That sockeye salmon fishing be opened on July 15 this year.
- That the upper fishery boundary be retained at its "lawful situation" more than one mile away from the geographical mouth of the Skeena river.
- That the 1955 weekly closed period of fishing from 6 p.m. Thursdays to 6 p.m. Sunday remain in effect this year.
- The brief pointed out that any closure of the Skeena river would be "too drastic and calamitous."

The brief explained that gillnet fishing by Natives on the Skeena river was not the cause of a declining fish population and it suggested that the department of fisheries should reduce the number and type of fishing equipment used in offshore operations to allow a sufficient escapement.

The brief also urged that the Canadian government take steps to check what it called "the rapacious fishing operations of the Japanese on the high seas."

It added that section 32 of the Fisheries act allowing Natives to catch fish at any time "was sufficient" but asked that the limit of five fish per person per week be increased.

Mr. Whitmore assured the Kitwancool leader that consideration would be given the matters outlined in the brief.

Road Closed

Highway 16 between Prince Rupert and Terrace is closed again, R. S. Cunliffe, divisional engineer said today.

He said that a slide, plus two feet of fresh snow which fell yesterday afternoon and last night have made the highway impassable. The slide is at "The Hole-in-the-Wall" about a mile east of Salvus, 35 miles west of Terrace.

Highways department equipment has been dispatched from both Terrace and Prince Rupert to clear the road.

Saskatchewan Still Faces More Storms

EDMONTON (CP) — Blizzard warnings were issued today for Saskatchewan, still digging out of its latest storm this winter, a weekend blizzard.

The weather office at Edmonton said near-blizzard conditions would prevail in Saskatchewan this afternoon and tonight after striking northeastern Alberta earlier in the day.

Strong south winds will persist in Saskatchewan tonight but become light in Alberta late today.

As milder weather returned to western Alberta, south winds were increasing with drifting snow and bitterly cold temperatures in Saskatchewan.

GUSTS AT LETHBRIDGE

Strong winds prevailed in the "chinook" belt of southwestern Alberta with winds at Lethbridge 30 miles and hour and gusting to 40. Gusts of more than 50 were predicted for later in the day.

Bitter cold continued overnight in Saskatchewan where it was 37 below overnight at Prince Albert in the north and 25 below at Regina in the south.

Milder temperatures were recorded in Alberta with one above as the overnight low at Edmonton in the north and six below at Calgary in the south.

The weather office forecast maximums for today of 25 above at Edmonton, 30 at Calgary and 35 at Lethbridge and Medicine Hat.

Youth Given Two-Year Term

A 20-year-old youth was sentenced Monday in police court to two years in Oakalla prison farm on each of two charges arising out of a break-in at Third Avenue residences last Friday.

Electing summary trial and pleading guilty to charges of breaking, entry and theft and also possession of stolen goods was Louis Tobias Derrick.

Derrick was charged with theft in connection with a break-in at the apartment of Samuel Julian, 621½ Third Avenue and also with being in possession of clothing stolen from Joseph Cozart, 622 Third Avenue. Two-year term for being in possession of stolen property will run concurrently with the two-year sentence for theft.

Mining Firm Plans Tunnel

TORONTO (CP) — A mining company is considering construction of a 21-mile tunnel through coast mountain ranges to tidewater in northern British Columbia, it was announced Tuesday.

W. R. Bacon, B.C. Department of Mines geologist, said Grandue Mines Ltd., may construct the all-Canadian tunnel from its valuable copper discoveries four miles from the south eastern border of the Alaska panhandle to Stewart, B.C.

Mr. Bacon first mentioned plans for the tunnel at the annual convention of Prospectors and Developers association here Monday. He gave further details at an interview Tuesday.

He said a tunnel is the only feasible means of access to the property where company officials have discovered 25,000,000 tons of copper ore.

The company is still investigating the tunnel plan. It has already rejected as unfeasible a 45-mile railway to the coast. Seventy per cent of the area to be traversed is covered with ice. Mining trains smaller than the usual transcontinental freight trains, would carry men, equipment and ore between the 45-mere property and tidewater.

Mr. Bacon said the company is still developing the property and it will be some years before it is in production.

Grandue is equally owned by Granby Consolidated Mining Co., owners of the rich Copper Mountain mine near Princeton, B.C. and Newmont Mining Corp. of New York.

Pro-Segregation Student Assails University Head

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A 20-year-old sophomore at the University of Alabama has called for a top-to-bottom housecleaning at the school and challenged authorities to throw him out for his views in favor of segregation.

University officials had no immediate comment on Tuesday night's remarks by Leonard Wilson, a student from Selma, home of the first "Citizens' Council" in Alabama.

Wilson told a rally of the Association of Citizens' Councils of Alabama that the university's investigation of mob action which drove Negro co-ed Autherine Lucy from the campus was a "witch hunt" and an "inquisition."

The student quoted an Associated Press dispatch saying that Dr. Oliver Carmichael, president of the university, had said qualified Negro students might be admitted to the university if the board of trustees approved.

"DIDN'T HAVE COURAGE"

"He didn't have the courage to tell that to Alabama newspapers," Wilson declared.

The Associated Press story quoted dispatches from Birmingham to the New York Times and New York Herald-Tribune.

There were shouts from the 2,600 persons of "throw him out" and "impeach him." The yells were in direct reference to Carmichael.

Wilson's appearance was preceded by that of state Senator Jim Johnson of Arkansas, a leader in the fight to prevent integration in public schools in that state.

Johnson drew cheers when he told the crowd: "You are either with us or against us in this. There is no middle ground in this fight."

Chamber To Join TLC In One "Appeal" Study

A proposal that the Chamber of Commerce work with the Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council to see what can be done to co-ordinate all local financial appeals into one annual drive was approved at the Chamber's monthly meeting.

Speaking on a suggestion by T. B. Black that the Chamber consider the establishment of a Community Chest here, J. E. Taylor pointed out that the TLC had already approved the idea and that in Chicago a united appeal had been made effective which included the Red Cross, an organization which normally holds a separate drive.

Orme Stuart suggested that, to ensure its success, the scheme should operate on a payroll deduction basis and that an expert should be engaged to get it off to the right start. He said the difficulty of the present arrangement was not in reaching the financial objectives but in obtaining committee members to carry out the work.

"The killing thing about it is that a few men are doing all the work and canvassers are difficult to find," he said.

A committee will be appointed to approach the TLC on the matter.

R. K. Gervin Resigns TLC Position

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ronald K. Gervin, secretary of Vancouver Trades and Labor Council announced his resignation here Tuesday night at a meeting in the labor temple.

He gave no reason except to say he is moving "into a different position." He thanked delegates for their part in making his work in the council for the last 13 years "so enjoyable."

His resignation becomes effective Friday.

Herbert Doolan Heads Council At Kincolith

Herbert Doolan, sr., was elected to head the Kincolith village council for a two-year term at the village elections February 24, it has been learned here. He succeeds George Stewart.

Others elected to the council for two-year terms were William Stewart, treasurer; Solomon Doolan, secretary; Morris Haldane, John G. Moore, Cecil J. Barton and Benjamin Clayton, recording secretary.

Hearing Slated After Sinking

SEATTLE (AP) — A U.S. Coast Guard hearing has been set here for Wednesday on the breaking and sinking of the freighter Washington Mail in the north Pacific. It will be an open hearing. All of the 60 persons aboard the ship were rescued after the Saturday night sinking and several of them are expected to testify.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA SIGNS PACT FOR CANADIAN WHEAT, BARLEY

OTTAWA (CP) — Czechoslovakia today signed an agreement to buy between $5,000,000 and $17,000,000 worth of "middle-grade" Canadian wheat during the next year, Drahoslav Cerych, Czechoslovakian commercial attache in Montreal, said today.

He said the agreement was signed this morning by federal trade officials and members of a Czech trade mission now visiting Canada. It called for the purchase of at least 3,700,000 but not more than 11,040,000 bushels of wheat.

An official of the Czech trade delegation also said Tuesday night that Czechoslovakia has purchased 40,000 tons of Canadian barley — approximately 1,800,000 bushels. At current prices the sale would amount to roughly $2,052,000.

Firemen Attend Two Calls On Same Run

Prince Rupert fire department was called to two fires almost simultaneously late yesterday afternoon.

The first call saw them on the way to a chimney fire at the home of Allan Prevost, 1443 Piggott Avenue. While on the way there a call was radioed to the fire truck that there was a fire aboard the gillnetter Jiggs, owned by Titus Campbell at Cow Bay. The firemen turned around, went down to the Jiggs and extinguished the blaze with a dry chemical. Damage to the boat was estimated at about $150.

The firemen then went to attend to Mr. Prevost's chimney fire and extinguished it before any damage was done to the Prevost home.

Terrorists Defy British With Bombings

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters) — The noise of terrorist bomb explosions sounded during the night as Greek Cypriots defied intensified British measures to stamp out their campaign violence on this Mediterranean island.

A Greek Cypriot youth was fatally injured by a bomb splinter when terrorists hurled a grenade at a British army patrol car near Peyia, north of the west coast port of Paphos.

Terrorists, pressing Greek Cypriot demands for merger of Cyprus with Greece, also threw two bombs at a police station in Morphou, 25 miles west of Nicosia. The bombs caused damage but no casualties.

The outbreaks followed the biggest search carried out by British troops in Nicosia since the wave of violence reached its present pitch a year ago. Troops Tuesday night stopped cars all over this capital and carefully searched drivers and passengers. Other soldiers warily covered them with machine-guns from doorways.

Six Greek Cypriot youths were sentenced today to life imprisonment when they pleaded guilty to carrying arms and ammunition last December. They were arrested on a lonely country lane near where terrorists had attacked a police station the previous night and killed a British officer.

Digby and Sandspit, Too

AS REMARKED at the Chamber of Commerce meeting this week, it is a surprising fact that the federal transport department is soliciting tenders for work on the Sandspit airport just at a time when preliminaries are reported to be underway for construction of an airport on Digby Island.

According to the government's advertisement, the work will consist of clearing areas for a proposed east-west landing strip. Tenders are to be submitted within a period of two weeks, so it may be assumed that work will start this spring, which is the same time that a $50,000 engineering survey is expected to start on Digby Island.

At first glance the situation looks a little ominous. One might suspect that the Digby Island plans are foredoomed to fail and that to avoid wasting time while a survey is underway merely to satisfy a public whim, the government is directing its full attention to Sandspit.

However, an inspection of the facts does nothing to justify the suspicion. The truth is that the Digby Island survey is not being carried out to determine whether an airport there is feasible (previous surveys have shown that it is) but to settle details of construction and to see what must be done to provide auxiliary services such as a road and docking facilities.

In addition, it will probably be about three years before an airport on Digby Island can be made ready for service. Meanwhile Sandspit continues to be affected by hazardous cross-wind conditions which only another runway can correct.

Admittedly the government has made no firm promise yet that an airport on Digby Island will be built and, until construction crews are actually on the site, we will cast an uneasy eye on anything that looks as if it is intended to be a substitute. But the logic of Prince Rupert's case has been so clearly demonstrated, and so much initial work already has been done, that we are entitled to assume the government is making its plans for the project with serious intent.

If another runway is considered necessary for Sandspit, that is well and good. It merely emphasizes the growing importance of aviation in this part of the country, which is the point that advocates of the Digby Island airport have been making all along.

Their Dollars Just As Good

THE purchasing power of the negro population of the United States is roughly equal to the total income of Canada. This comparison helps to explain the consternation in the Southern States over the boycott of public transportation by colored residents of Montgomery, Alabama. The boycott (over treatment of negro passengers) has already caused serious loss to the bus company involved. Other firms have learned by experience that to practice discrimination is to throw away sales.

Both negroes and whites may be learning that the market-place is one spot where race doesn't count. One customer's dollar is as good as another's—and as necessary for the survival of a business operation. The much-maligned profit motive may turn out to be a first-rank ally in the struggle for better and saner race relations in North America.

CANADIAN ADVERTISING TOPS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada is conducting a better overseas advertising campaign than any other country, head of the National Film board said here in an interview Monday.

Dr. A. W. Truman, NFB chairman of Ottawa, said the bill Canadians pay to attract world-wide interest to Canada's life and customs amounts to $3,000,000 annually.

Here to inspect board offices in Vancouver and Victoria, Dr. Truman said Canadian films are favored abroad because there is an absence of propaganda in the pictures of all aspects of Canadian life.

How Free a Vote?

A READER of The Vancouver Sun has written the editor on my recent column on free and not-so-free votes in parliament.

He seems shocked that I admit, in plain print, that the Prime Minister would have to give permission for a "free" vote before any such free vote could take place.

There is, of course, nothing mysterious about it. We operate in Canada under the system of British responsible government. That means that the government must always be supported by a majority of MPs on all important votes, or get out.

But it is a very, very rare thing to find a beaten government merely resigning and vacating office to make way for some rival party or combination.

The almost invariable practice is for the beaten government to let the people decide by general election who is then to govern.

IT WOULD be literally impossible under the system we use in Canada to have all votes "free." We would soon find ourselves in a worse mess than France. The supporters of the government must uphold their own government's policies, for the most practical of all reasons, that if they don't, it will not remain the government—not be able to carry out the term of office for which the people elected it.

But that is not to say that the elected MP must tamely accept whatever the party leaders have decided, in advance. He can have his say in caucas, and if he can win enough support among his fellows, he can thereby persuade or even compel the government to change the policies he considers mistaken. He can help initiate policies the same way. He can also get the House to discuss his own resolutions, or bills.

Moreover, he can speak on the floor of the House in criticism of something that his own government is doing, or failing to do.

We have had many instances of this, in the present parliament. But it is quite a different thing to vote against your own leaders when the real question is confidence, or non-confidence in the government. That is a form of Hari-kiri not familiar to our way of life.

✣ ✣ ✣

THE decision by the British House of Commons to end, or suspend, capital punishment was by means of a "free" vote.

That is just another way of saying that the Prime Minister had announced, in advance, that he would not make the question a matter of non-confidence in the government.

Suppose that he had said he would consider a vote for abolition of hanging as one of non-confidence. It is unlikely that the vote would have gone quite as it did, for some of the more than 30 Conservatives who voted for abolition would certainly not have done so, if that had meant they were voting to throw their own government out and to bring on an immediate general election.

But what counts in the end is public opinion, and history shows plenty of instances of free votes in parliament, especially on moral issues.

A free parliament can always find means to get a free vote, by one means or another.

Marler Rejects Demands to Open Air Competition

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Marler has thrown cold water on opposition demands that air routes served exclusively by the publicly-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines be thrown open to competition.

He said in the Commons Tuesday he does not believe cheaper passenger and freight rates and better service would flow from TCA competition with private air carriers.

Widespread competition would result either in TCA operating losses or higher rates.

Demands that privately-owned airline companies be allowed to compete on TCA's cross-country routes came from both Progressive Conservatives and Social Credit ranks.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert) said there is no justification for continuing TCA's monopoly. TCA was well established, had surpluses year after year and operated to the limit of its equipment.

George Hahn (SC-New Westminster), said the CNR and TCA are bringing "the creeping paralysis of Socialism to Canada."

VICTORIA REPORT By J. K. Nesbitt

VICTORIA — The 1956 session of your Legislature was one of the most dramatic in all our history. I have seen dramatic sessions before — the session of 1953, for instance, when the Bennett minority government was defeated on the floor of the House.

But I never before saw anything like this year's session. It built up over weeks, the tension mounting and mounting — the opposition hammering away at Mr. Sommers, the Minister of Lands and Forests and Mines, the opposition demanding that he resign because of charges against him about issuance of forest management licences.

And then, one night late, Mr. Sommers resigned — right in the Legislature. Never before had a cabinet minister used this method of resignation. Cabinet ministers have resigned many times during the years, but always by letter to the Premier, privately, never before in public. I can find no record of any cabinet minister before having stood in his place in the House and resigned. The House was shaken as Mr. Sommers uttered his fateful words. The Premier sat stolidly, wooden-faced, white and drawn, and suddenly looking years older — though there's little doubt he knew what was coming. Of course he knew — indeed, one might suspect the Premier had forced this resignation, had been forcing it for many weeks.

And because he had to do what he considered his public duty, the Premier was personally hurt and pained and shocked — I could see that, and it was most evident during that long, momentous night — that night that lasted from 8:30 p.m. on a Thursday to 7:30 a.m. on a Friday, when the opposition hammered away and pounded and talked and talked and pounded and hammered; hour after hour, trying to get the Premier to say something, anything, about Mr. Sommers. But the Premier would not. He had made up his mind he would not talk about the Sommers case, and he didn't, he wouldn't. I don't think I ever before saw such a superb display of patience, and under tremendous provocation, as I looked down on the Premier from the Press Gallery I was fascinated — I saw his face twitch, and he put his hand several times to his eyes, and I wondered if he would break. There was a man sorely tried, if ever a man was — a man swept by emotion, as he heard one of his colleagues torn apart. I think the Premier kept silent because he would not trust himself, in his emotion, to speak, fearing he might say something against a man he had trusted. It was, you know, a wonderful display of loyalty — blind loyalty from the Premier. And strange, this loyalty from the Premier, because when he was a Conservative he was anything but loyal to his chief, Mr. Anscomb. But since he has been chief of the government his loyalty to his colleagues and his supporters has been tremendous.

The legislative oratory during that long, long night was quite splendid, superb, thrilling. There are times when we think legislative debate is dead. But back to life it came that night. CCF Mr. Harding of Kaslo-Slocan was never so magnificent. He was merciless, so merciless it was almost terrifying, but how beautifully he did it! The House held its breath as it listened to Mr. Harding. The Premier, shaken, could not look at Harding, as his voice rang into the rafters, and thrilled us all, for here, in Harding, was a true artist at work, as sure an artist as great symphony conductors and painters are artists. Harding is an artist with the spoken word, splendidly delivered, with no attempt at play-acting. His naturalness is what makes him perhaps the very finest legislative speaker in the near 20 years this column has been in the legislative press gallery.

Yes, a dramatic session, and while this column has from time to time scoffed at what goes on in the legislature, its admiration grew once more for the men and women who offer the public their services, and do their best, as they see it, for the public, in our legislative halls.

This is democracy, with all its foumblings and mistakes and pitfalls and human frailties — but democracy none the less, and who can offer a better system?

OTTAWA DIARY By NORMAN M. MacLEOD

Since its end result is to be the appointment of a special Parliamentary Committee on which the government will have its usual majority of MP's, the current research debate in the Commons could turn out to be one of the really important discussions of the session.

But its importance won't rest upon any of the things that the MP's have said in the course of the debate. From that point of view the discussion has been disappointingly sub-standard.

But the rumor is circulating among well-informed Parliament hill circles that the government proposes to use the special House Committee as the springboard for a policy of new boldness in research. And the possibility of such a radical departure from hitherto established practice are dramatic.

The significant background of the whole research situation as it confronts any government today is the movement away from diffusion of effort and towards concentration upon single, dramatic projects. The lesson was learned back in the Second World War when the Allied powers were trying desperately to be first in the race to produce atomic weapons. The late President Roosevelt conceived the idea of focussing all the major research facilities of the Western world upon the problem. Overnight the universities and government research agencies of the United States, Canada, and Great Britain dropped lesser problems to concentrate upon the urgent atomic project. The manner in which succeeded followed, with scientists from all three countries contributing separate pieces to the completed jigsaw of scientific achievement, now is history.

But since that one main effort, the tendency to diffusion of research effort has returned. Instead of one main attack being made upon a single dramatic peacetime problem of humanity — cancer, for example — an infinite variety of individual projects are occupying scientists and their laboratories.

The report in generally well-informed Parliamentary circles is that the government is intrigued with the possibilities of using the mass research technique which produced the atom bomb upon successive peacetime problems — with the strong probability of a start being made upon cancer in the event of the policy being approved.

The idea is one which well might depend for its adoption or its rejection upon the conclusion reached by the special Parliamentary Committee now being set up. It presumably will discuss the advantages and possibilities of mass research technique. And it is likely that the government will be guided by any recommendation it may make.

Help Nature To Fight Them Off

Medical Science denies there is any such thing as a cure for colds—only Nature herself can do it. So when baby's sniffles, or stuffy breathing warn you of a cold's presence—cooperate at once with Nature.

See that baby is kept warm, gets plenty of sleep and take extra care that the bowels are thoroughly cleared of harmful wastes. To do this without upsetting baby's whole system and further weakening it, try Baby's Own Tablets. Mild, yet act promptly in getting rid of irritating materials that make baby restless and feverish.

One Nova Scotia Mother says: "My baby of 9 months caught a nasty cold so I tried Baby's Own Tablets and she threw this cold off quicker than ever before. Report From PARLIAMENT

By F. T. APPLEWHAITE, MP Skeena

The Ottawa "Citizen" recently carried an article about Prince Rupert by Austin F. Cross, the famous columnist. Actually it was really about the excellent advertising of Prince Rupert turned out by Hugo Kraupner, in the form of his "dope" pills.

I have a bowl of these on my desk and they always attract attention and arouse curiosity. They impressed Cross so much that he wrote this article about them.

We were fortunate recently in having with us a very distinguished visitor — Sir Howard d'Egville who has long been associated with the Commonwealth Parliamentary association, and is now its general secretary.

It was fortunate that on his way home to the Old Country from meetings in Jamaica he should visit Ottawa, and we took the opportunity of calling a meeting of the Ottawa Branch of the association primarily for the purpose of hearing from him. It was with very great pleasure that Senator Robertson, our joint chairman, introduced Sir Howard to us.

Sir Howard said he felt it was a very great privilege to come here to offer what he called a few observations upon the work of the Commonwealth Parliamentary association with which he has been associated for so many years. He then gave us a very comprehensive outline of the work of the association over the past year. Few organizations are able to do so much for the strengthening of the Commonwealth or for mutual understanding between its members. I have never regretted my decision to join it.

Uncertainty is never a good thing either in policy or in politics and, apart altogether from the personal aspect of the situation, it is a very good thing that President Eisenhower has come to a decision. A man of his integrity had to feel sure that the job would not prove too much for him. Mr. Eisenhower's absence from the active world scene, for all the gallant efforts made by his aides, has been sorely felt. Now, as Mr. Eisenhower (if elected) would be the oldest man in history ever to hold the presidency, heart attack or no heart attack, more than ordinary prudence must be used in the selection of his running mate.

I received recently, a trial shipment of some fish products (not canned) by railway express. This shipment arrived in excellent condition and several friends among whom I distributed some of our smoked Alaska black cod, mild-cure salmon, crab-meat and sole fillets have been loud in their praise of these items.

Last Saturday my wife and I made our annual over-night excursion to see a hockey game at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto. Sitting there watching the game and glancing at Foster Hewitt's gondola, I got very homesick. I could picture Joe Scott, Bill Stone and other fans listening to the same game over the radio in Prince Rupert.

A few days ago, Hon. Roch Pinard, Secretary of State, informed the House that Her Majesty the Queen has approved the adoption, and use by the Government of Canada of a new Great Seal of Canada. The design of the new Great Seal which Her Majesty has approved is of a similar design to those of the past, with the bilingual inscription; "Elizabeth II, Queen of Canada — Reine du Canada." The design shows Her Majesty wearing the St. Edward's crown with which the Queen was crowned at Westminster, and this crown also surmounts the whole armorial bearings of Canada, in addition to being part of the crest.

Government Said Behind Health Scheme

VANCOUVER (CP) — Paul Martin, federal minister of health and welfare, said during an interview here, the Canadian government is solidly in favor of a national health scheme.

The federal government proposal to the provinces "offered technical and financial assistance to the provinces to enable them to embark on the second phase of a national health scheme," he said.

Mr. Martin, who arrived via Trans-Canada Air Lines, was to address the Vancouver Canadian Club today.

"The second phase," he said, "will consist of radiological diagnosis and hospital insurance proposals.

"We are now waiting replies from the provinces."

The proposed scheme will cost the Canadian taxpayers approximately $350,000,000 annually, he said.

He told interviewers at the airport he would deal more fully with the proposed plan in a press conference today.

Mr. Martin who leaves for Calgary Wednesday morning, declined to comment on "departmental business" he will attend to while in Vancouver, but said "something may develop before I leave."

While he is in Vancouver he will also address a Liberal meeting, speak to students at the University of B.C. and open a new wing at the Indian Hospital in Sardis, B.C., in the Fraser Valley.

Pakistan Wins Bid for Vote In Kashmir

KARACHI, Pakistan (CP)—Pakistan was reported today to have won her seven SEATO partners' 100-per-cent support for a demand that a United Nations-supervised plebiscite be held in the disputed Himalayan state of Kashmir.

Official sources said the other foreign minister attending the annual council meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization also gave the Karachi government total backing in its squabble with Afghanistan over the Pathan tribal area in West Pakistan.

The Soviet Union has backed both India's claim to Kashmir and the Afghan demand for creation of an independent "Pushtoonistan"—which Afghanistan would dominate—in the Pushtu-speaking Pathan area.

Consecration Rites Held For New Bishop

Most Rev. Fergus John O'Grady, former provincial of English speaking oblates in Ottawa, became titular bishop and vicar apostolic of Prince Rupert, B.C., in a consecration service in Vancouver today.

The service took place at St. Augustine's church, where he began his clerical career.

Consecrator was Most Rev. William Mark Duke, archbishop of Vancouver. Co-consecrators were Most Rev. Anthony Jordan, co-adjutor archbishop of Edmonton, and Most Rev. Quentin Jennings, bishop of Fort William, and former bishop of Kamloops in which diocese Bishop O'Grady spent 14 years of his missionary life.

The sermon was delivered by Most Rev. Philip Pocock, archbishop of Winnipeg where Bishop O'Grady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Grady live.

Following the consecration a dinner for bishops and clergy was given at the Hotel Vancouver, as a tribute to Bishop O'Grady for his work in Indian missions and the field of education, and as executive head of the English-language Oblates.

Bishop O'Grady will be installed in the Church of Annunciation in Prince Rupert next Wednesday. Most Rev. M. M. Johnson, co-adjutor archbishop of Vancouver will preside and the sermon will be given by Most Rev James Hill, bishop of Victoria.

Parents See Classrooms At Annunciation School

More than 75 per cent of the parents of students attending Annunciation school turned out to view the work and visit the classrooms of their children last night when the school held "open house" to mark Education week.

Principal Sister St. Martin received the parents and introduced them to the Grades 1 to 10 teachers.

Following the "open house" parents attended the Annunciation Home and School association's monthly meeting in the school hall.

President Mrs. Galbraith reported that the Junior Savings club has a membership of 85 children and in three weeks of operation the children had deposited $90.24.

"The executive is more than pleased with the response of the children and it is very encouraging to see how the students have taken to this new method of saving," Mrs. Galbraith said.

The project of the association will be to purchase a duplicator machine costing some $250 for the use of the teachers in the school.

The association volunteered to provide refreshments and servers for the parish reception March 15, for Bishop Fergus John O'Grady, who was consecrated in Vancouver today.

Mrs. Galbraith said the executive hoped to have a 100 per cent parent member him.

Guest speaker, Lt. James R. Johnston, RCN, in speaking on education said that in Catholic schools the emphasis was on general education as opposed to specialized education.

Father H. F. Tuney, speaking on behalf of Father O. P. Mohan, parish priest, reminded parents of their obligations to obtain for their children a good fundamental training both materially and spiritually.

Sister St. Martin thanked the parents for their co-operation and interest in the working of the school.

Refreshments concluded the evening.

Work Viewed By Parents At Conrad Street School

Two hundred and fifty parents yesterday visited classrooms at the Conrad Street school "open house" where displays of printing, arithmetic and art showed the progress of students during the term.

Ann Peterson, Margaret Pavich and Linda Des Ruis were in charge of the visitor's book while students Richard Barton and Robin Halliwell ushered the guests to the classrooms which were decorated in a St. Patrick's day motif.

In a variety program which followed the tour of the school Miss Norma Irving's Grade 1 class read "The Snowman's House" and sang "Six Little Ducks."

Mrs. Nanthan Cornfoot's Grade 2 class sang "The Snowflakes" and "Merry Mr. March Wind" followed by choral speaking selections, "The Elf Man" and "The Wind."

Miss Janet Wong's Grade 3 class presented a play "Poki-Huntess" and "Choosing Shoes," a choral speaking selection.

Miss Pernice Dyer's Grade 3 and 4 class presented a St. Patrick's Day version of the play, "Three Little Bears."

Mrs. Edward McFadden's Grade 5 class acted a play titled "Mr. Possum's Sick Spell."

Donald MacDonald's Grade 5 and 6 class performed two dances, the Virginia reel and the French minuet.

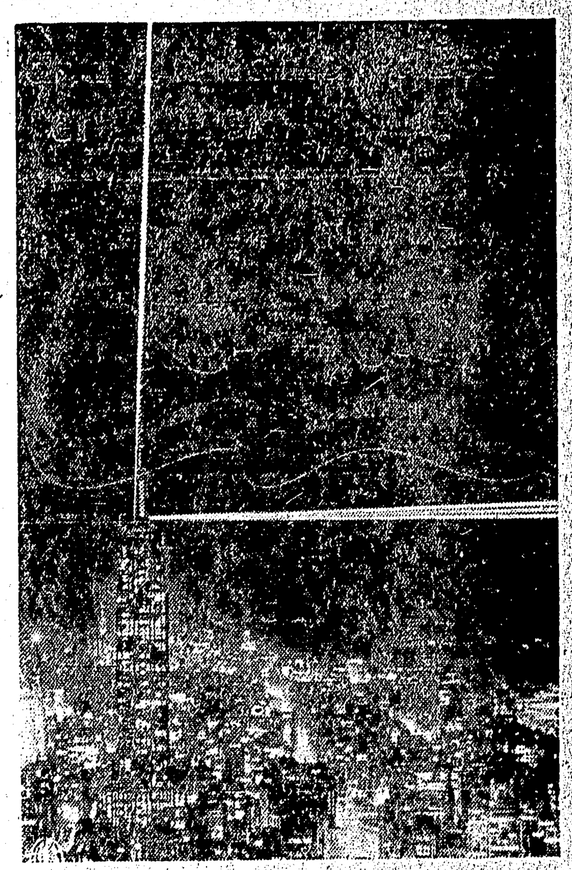
Principal T. G. Bateman's Grade 6 class held a round-table discussion on mental health.

Mrs. Henry Butt and Mrs. Victor Duplisse were tea room hostesses for the visitor's day tea which followed.

Assisting at the tables, centred with spring flowers, were Mrs. W. J. Bolam, Mrs. George Viereck, Mrs. George Turner, Mrs. G. W. Dockendorf, Mrs. Ronald Small, Mrs. S. L. Ballinger, Mrs. W. C. Paynter and Mrs. Wilfred Garbutt. Mrs. Marcel Girardet was cashier.

At Seal Cove school, Mrs. Margaret Russell's Grade 1 class held a reading lesson while Miss Norma McKelvie's Grade 2 class sang two action songs, "Little Peter Rabbit" and the "Finger Song."

Mr. Bateman, who is also principal of Seal Cove school, welcomed parents of students from both schools at the Conrad Street School tea.



TO GET NEW CROWN OF LIGHT — Photo shows how New York's famous Empire State Building, poking its way 1,472 feet into the nighttime sky, will look when its new beacon lights will have been installed. The lights, which are expected to be ready by Easter, will be four rotating beacons, five feet in diameter, and, combined, will generate almost two billion candlepower of light. Under proper atmospheric conditions, it is estimated the beacons will be visible about 300 miles away.

Playing With Sounds Aid To Clear Speech

By OLI DAUM
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Youngsters learning to talk will master clear speech quicker if parents, instead of criticizing, encourage the child to play with sounds, speech consultant Anthony Bowie says.

Mr. Bowie, consultant for seven years at the Hospital for Sick Children, said in an interview that children must get pleasure from talking.

"If through parents' criticism a child feels he is displeasing, speech becomes an unsatisfactory experience for him and he may stop trying altogether," Mr. Bowie said.

MUST EXERCISE CARE

The youngsters should never be directly corrected, told to speak more slowly or be interrupted for correction while talking.

"The most important factor in developing clear speech is the parents' example, perhaps indirectly pointed up by an occasional 'let's try that word again,' followed by praise for his effort, be it successful or not," Mr. Bowie said.

"Parents have gone a long way when they make a child believe it is their fault they cannot understand what the youngster is saying and that he can help them by speaking more clearly."

As well as encouraging the child to make sounds, parent should converse in front of him so that he can imitate but should also take time to listen to the child.

"Otherwise the youngster may feel if no one listens to his there is no use talking and again, he may stop trying."

Stuttering and lisping were perhaps the youngsters' most common speech defects. It was normal for a child to go through a repetitious or stuttering stage.

"This is just temporary nonfluency and should never be corrected," Mr. Bowie said. "His thoughts are simply moving faster than his muscles, but he'll work it out himself."

The "S" sound was hardest for a child to pronounce and frequently he substituted "th" sound.

"Rather than draw attention to this, parents should play with the child word games that emphasize the hissing sound," Mr. Bowie said. "The child will associate the "S" sound with pleasure and later, it will creep into his speech."

Talk should come to children naturally but development can be fostered by a harmonious atmosphere in the home.

"A child needs to be secure, to have parents at peace with themselves and with the world. He needs consistent, although not inflexible routine and stimulating activities so that he has something to talk about," Mr. Bowie said.

Children To See Movie Shorts

A selection of National Film Board shorts will be shown to the children at 4 p.m. tomorrow at the weekly Civic Centre Film program.

"Clouded Yellow" a suspense picture featuring Jean Simmons and Trevor Howard is the main feature for the adult show at 8 p.m.

Kimberley Quartet Suffers 2nd Defeat

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—A one-time diving champion and a civil servant match their curling skill today with the winner favored to capture the Canadian curling championship.

Ontario and Manitoba, only unconquered teams in the top bonspiel in the country, clash in the fifth round, a trial of the defeated behind them.

Leading the way was Alfie Phillips, 46-year-old water sportsman who skipped his Toronto Granite Club rink to four straight victories. Against him was Bill Walsh, whose Manitoba quartet won the crown four years ago.

The Manitoba foursome was unbeaten in three engagements. Walsh had a bye in the third round Tuesday.

Although there were still six rounds togo before the event winds up Friday, the winner of the Ontario-Manitoba duel was expected to take the works. Naturally, there's no telling when a darkhorse might upset things.

PHILLIPS' FIRST TIME

Phillips, leading an Ontario team into the Canadian championships for the first time, registered victories in the third and fourth rounds Tuesday. He defeated Quebec 9-8 and Northern Ontario 11-6.

Walsh, a pre-tournament favorite with possibly a stronger rink than he had in 1952, clobbered New Brunswick 16-3 Tuesday.

In other fifth-round games—starting at 11 a.m. MST today—Newfoundland was matched against Quebec, British Columbia against Saskatchewan, Alberta against Nova Scotia and Northern Ontario against Prince Edward Island.

New Brunswick, with two wins and two losses, got the bye.

The sixth round was scheduled for 5 p.m. tonight. The draw: Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia; Northern Ontario, Newfoundland; Manitoba, P.E.I.; Ontario, New Brunswick; B.C., Quebec; Alberta, bye.

WINS ON LAST ROCK

Phillips, Canadian diving champ who competed in the 1928 and 1932 Olympics, beat Walter Smith's rink from Thetford Golf and Curling Club in Quebec's Eastern townships on the last rock in the third round.

The score was deadlocked 8-8 and Quebec was lying two when the 32-year-old Smith was short with his last rock as he tried to place a close guard. Phillips slipped in behind him. Officials had to use tape measures to call the point. It was Ontario's by a few inches.

Other decisions Tuesday: Saskatchewan beat Prince Edward Island 15-6 in the third round and clobbered Newfoundland 22-4 in the fourth; Alberta beat Newfoundland 12-7 and headed British Columbia's Harold Jordan rink from Kimberley 7-6; Nova Scotia defeated B.C. 14-7 in the third and had a bye in the fourth; Northern Ontario lost to New Brunswick 15-8 in the third and Quebec beat Prince Edward Island 11-10 in the fourth.

Upset Victories Scored As Cage Semis Begin

The opening round of the best-of-three semi-finals in the senior and juvenile basketball leagues saw upsets scored in all three games at the Civic Centre last night.

Sunrise who ended in third place in the senior league standings edged out Frizzell's, second place finishers by a 31-30 score.

Orme's who managed a second-place tie for second spot in their last game of juvenile league play downed Fraser and Payne, runner - up tenants through the league 31-23.

Manson's, last place occupants throughout league play, handed league winning Annunciation a 21-17 defeat.

Despite less than 50 per cent accuracy at the foul line, free throws gave Sunrise the one-game edge in the senior fixture. The greenshirts failed to sink a field goal in the fourth quarter but made four points at the foul line to keep ahead up until the final buzzer.

John Newton with 17 points led the winners while Art Helin with a like amount paced Frizzell's.

Sunrise led 18-17 and 27-23 at the half and three quarter mark after trailing 9-7 at the quarter. The greenshirts had 20 tries at the foul line and sank nine of them while Frizzell's sank eight of 19 free throws.

Annunciation outscored Manson's 6-5 and 8-5 in the last two quarters but it was not enough to overcome the 11-3 lead the jewellers had built up at half time.

The other juvenile encounter saw the score tied 4-4 at the end of the first frame but Orme's moved out to a 14-9 lead over Fraser and Payne by half time and never looked back. Sheldon Wong with 13 points led the druggist attack while B. Johnson was top point-getter for Fraser and Payne with eight.

Podres Lost To Dodgers This Year

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Johnny Podres, star of Brooklyn Dodgers' World Series victory, admitted today he received his notice of induction into the army a month ago.

"But I didn't tell anybody about it," he said with a wry grin, "and I don't know how it got out. I didn't think they were supposed to tell these things."

He added that his notice called for him to report to Ticonderoga, N.Y., March 15 "and from there we take a bus for Albany for induction."

Podres, who had a mediocre 9-10 record for the regular season last year, became the toast of Brooklyn when he beat New York Yankees in the third and seventh games of the World Series last fall.

Soggy Field Threatens Vancouver Debut In PCL

VANCOUVER (CP) — A waterlogged field threatens to delay Vancouver Mounties' home debut in the Pacific Coast Baseball League.

City council and the new PCL entry were told Tuesday night by the parks board that the field at Capilano Stadium won't be fit for the April 27 opening unless some expensive work is done.

Phil Stroyan, parks superintendent, said it will cost an estimated $30,000 to get the surface in condition. He blamed a dozen football matches and generally bad weather.

"The field lies one-third under water," he said, "and unless improved drainage is put in, it will not be in condition for PCL games by the opening date."

HALF IMMEDIATELY

Mayor Fred Hume agreed that something will have to be done but added: "We certainly can't afford to spend $30,000."

Aldermen were told half the work will have to be done immediately. The rest could be postponed.

Cedric Tallis, general manager of the Mounties, said he believes "something will be worked out with city council in time."

Drainage will be studied by city engineer John Oliver, Alderman Earle Adams and Mr. Stroyan.

Tallis has announced an extra 2400 seats, financed under an arrangement with city council, will be built at the stadium. Capacity will be brought close to 10,000 by the addition.

Canucks Move Out Front

By The Canadian Press

Vancouver Canucks took a one-point lead in the Coast division of the Western Hockey League as they thundered past Victoria Cougars Tuesday night with three goals after two scoreless periods.

The 3-0 shutout at Victoria also moved Ray Mikulan closer to Cougar's Marcel Pelletier who leads the league goalies in averages.

At Winnipeg, Warriors strengthened their first-place hold in the Prairie section, defeating Edmonton Flyers 4-2.

George Ford, Les Lilley and Tom McCarthy broke the exciting deadlock in the third period at Victoria. Phil Maloney increased his lead in the individual scoring race to three points with assists on Canucks' last two goals.

After a flashy opener in Winnipeg, Warriors led 1-0, added two in the second while Edmonton notched a single and then finished matching another with Flyers in the final.

Eric Nesterenko, Mickey Keating, Eddie Mazure and Paul Masnick scored for Warriors. Billy Dea and Don Polle counted for Flyers.

Present-Day Group Of NHL Pucksters Effecting Major Change In Records

By The Canadian Press

The record books are undergoing one of the greatest wholesale changes in the history of the National Hockey League.

With 17 games remaining in the 210-game schedule eight league and 1 club marks have fallen.

Leading the parade of individual record-breakers is Jean Beliveau. The Montreal Canadien centre has two marks. He also has tied another and is aiming for a fourth. In addition, two club marks have been changed by Beliveau.

New York Rangers, picked to finish last this term, are conducting a general housecleaning on their team records. They have set five and individual players have erased another three.

Their most surprising is the record set by defenceman Lou Fontinato. He has 188 minutes in penalties and six games to go. The former league mark of 167 minutes was turned in 20 years ago by defenceman Red Horner of Toronto Maple Leafs.

Of the shattered league records, half are for penalties. Besides Fontinato's mark—it's also the most time ever spent in the penalty box by a defenceman—Beliveau and Ted Lindsay of Detroit Red Wings are holders of badman honors.

Beliveau's 137 minutes is the record for centres in a season and Lindsay has spent more time for a forward or left winger with 153 minutes.

Maurice Richard of Montreal Hockey's greatest scorer, sets a record everytime he scores a goal or gets an assist. His 458 goals and 792 points are league marks.

Beliveau's 44 goals tie him with Joe Malone, a former Canadien, as the highest goal-scoring centre in history. His 81 points erased Elmer Lach's total of 80. Malone fired 44 goals in 1917-18 and Lach set his record in 1944-45.

Beliveau is six goals from Richard's record 50 goals in a season.

League action resumes Thursday with Toronto at Montreal, Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks at St. Louis and Boston Bruins and Red Wings at Detroit.

CALGARY (CP)— The champs put six of the eight badminton trophies on the line today as Canadian championship play got under way.

Play in the senior events, which were to start at 10 a.m., were to be played through to quarter finals today. Junior events were to begin Thursday and were expected to advance to the finals Thursday afternoon. Quarter finals of the main events are scheduled for Thursday evening.

Defending two crowns is 17-year-old Jean Waring of Calgary, who won the women's and girls' championships in last year's play. Miss Waring was expected to face some of the toughest competition she has ever seen in tournament play.

But she was seeded ahead of Jean Miller of Montreal and Marj Shedd of Toronto, both of whom sidelined her in provincial play. She plays her first match in the women's event at 7 p.m. against Helen Armstrong of Saskatoon.

Miss Shedd and Joan Hennessy, a Toronto couple ranked first in the women's doubles play, also are defending the championship they won in the last two Canadian tourneys. They are favored over Kae Grant and Jean Miller of Montreal, Canadian champs in 1951 and 1953 and 1955 semi-finalists.

THOMPSON ON TWO TEAMS

A Vancouver couple, Bert Fergus and Daryl Thompson, are out again to recapture the men's doubles crown. They are favored over Bev Wystcott and Bill Purcell of Toronto, who have had outstanding doubles records with other partners and meet Eric Bodin of Kimberley and Eric Hines of Sussex, N.B., in their first match at 4:30 p.m.

Thompson also is a member of the team which is trying to retain the mixed doubles crown. He and Jean Bardsley of Vancouver, were seeded first in the event and play their first game against Ron Collie and Vera Edmanson of Calgary at 9:30 p.m.

Harold Moody of Montreal, favored in the boys' singles event will be defending his crown for the last time this year. Next year he will have passed the junior age bracket.

Dave McTaggart of Vancouver is seeded first in the men's singles event. He was to meet Jack Abra of Winnipeg at 10 a.m. for his first match.

VANCOUVER (CP) — High winds which battered the lower B.C. coast during the weekend took a heavy toll of cormorants, big seabirds which pursue their fish dinners deep into the ocean.

Bill Hughes, ornithology director of the Vancouver Natural History Society, reported finding 21 dead birds Sunday on a one-mile stretch of beach near Point Roberts.

Kitzelmann Top Celco Trundler

H. Kitzlemann of the Co-Op keglers topped Celco City League bowlers last Friday turning in an individual high game of 264 which took men's high single for the night.

Dick Wallin of the RCMP entry took men's high three with a 663 score.

M. Hiltz of Hurricanes won women's high single with her 247 game while Ivy Stewart of Checker Cabs took women's high three with a 625 three-game total.

Hurricanes with an 1163 high game and Neil Evans Transport with a 3185 three-game total took both team honors.

Standings: RCMP 51, Co-Op 48, Checker Cabs 47, Bulger's 42, Savoy 41, Hurricanes 36, Neil Evans 33, Pin Hitters 27.

MICHIGAN STATE'S Dave Kaiser looks proudly at the trophy prepared for him by the folks in his home town of Alpena, Mich. It's a plaque with the actual ball and shoe, both gold-plated, used by Kaiser to kick the 41-yard field goal in the final minutes of the 1956 Rose Bowl game. Goal gave MSU the winning three-point margin over UCLA.

Martin Attack On PCs "Silly" Says Finlayson

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dean Finlayson, provincial leader of the Progressive-Conservatives, Tuesday labelled as "childish and silly" an attack on his party by federal Health Minister Martin.

Mr. Martin, in a speech here Monday night, said the Conservative party is "bankrupt and completely non-existent."

"Mr. Martin belongs to a great party but his remarks indicate a pretty small, petty attitude," Mr. Finlayson said.

Cellulose Report Shows Operation Improvement

Special to The Daily News

MONTREAL—Substantial improvement in operations is shown in the annual report of Canadian Chemical and Cellulose Company Ltd., released today. Net sales were up by 32 per cent from $28,488,237 to $37,736,604, and operating profit margin increased from 16 to 24 per cent.

The financial result of the year's operations, after providing for all charges including $6,717,548 for depreciation and depletion of fixed assets and amortization of deferred expenses, was a net loss of $1,542,612. In the previous year, after depreciation charges of $5,716,420, the loss was $5,202,957, so that in 1955, the company's second full year of combined operations, cash earnings improved by $4,861,473, from $513,463 in 1954 to $5,174,936 in 1955.

Net additions to fixed assets amounted to $5,100,276, and sinking fund requirements on funded debt required $3,525,000. At December 31, working capital stood at $8,662,484.

Important developments during the year recorded in the report include the acquiring of an additional forest management licence in British Columbia by the company's wholly owned subsidiary, Celgar Limited, and the re-arrangement of the company's capital structure in July. At that time 825,000 out of the 4,000,000 common shares held by Celatino, S.A. a wholly owned subsidiary of Celanese Corporation of America, were surrendered to the company, and the 6 per cent preferred shares then outstanding, and also held by Celatino S.A., were changed into common shares.

The increase in net sales in 1955 represented advances in all divisions of the company. For the most part these were the result of increased tonnages and upgrading of product; price increases were not a major factor.

The report forecasts a continuing strong demand for the company's products, which include wood pulps, lumber, industrial chemicals, yarns and fibres. During the year a number of new chemicals were introduced; in 1956 additional types of specialty pulp are being offered. Consumer interest in Arnel has been most encouraging. The opinion is expressed that 1955 may be regarded as the turning point in the company's operations and that profitable operations can be anticipated in 1956.

DON'T FORGET ABOUT MISHAPS BECAUSE YOU HAVEN'T A CAR

You can't forget about traffic accidents, just because you don't own a car, according to the All-Canada Insurance Federation.

The federation, which represents more than 200 fire, automobile and casualty insurance companies, points out that 500 pedestrians will be killed this year and another 7,000 will be injured in traffic accidents. The toll is especially high in urban areas.

The federaton's safety experts recommend that pedestrians consider the following rules for safe walking, especially during the dangerous late winter and early spring season:

- Don't cut down your visibility with umbrellas, turned up collars and pulled down hats.
- Remain on the sidewalk while waiting for a bus to pull up. If the bus slides to the curb you won't be pinned.
- Be especially careful during twilight hours. Visibility it worse at this time.
- Consider the drivers' problems of stopping on ice or snow.
- Don't jaywalk; cross at intersections, or in pedestrian cross walks.
- Watch your step on icy streets and sidewalks. Falls can cause painful injuries.
- On highways, walk in the snow if there isn't room for both cars and pedestrians on the cleared portions.
- Always walk facing traffic if there are no sidewalks; carry a flashlight or an easily seen white object.

The tough and icy conditions make angling plenty difficult at Cloyah Creek, but MEL BUSSEY and PETE FERGUSON found ample evidence of one successful fish-catcher. A well defined trail comes out of the bush, crosses the pipe-line and heads straight for a hole in the frozen creek; some distance away the tracks emerge, but this time the fish-catcher has a large fish. This is eaten right there and in its entirety, only blood and a few scales remaining to tell the tale. So here we have a land otter at work, on one of his yearly trips to salt-water before he starts on his polygamous mating run. The she-otter is less likely to wander so far, and will keep her spring born cubs with her in a nest-hole along a river-bank until they are almost a year old.

The predation of our comparatively few otter are of little consequence, for Nature demands a certain amount of natural kill, and the rare glimpse of an otter in the wild state should make a tourists holiday complete. The otter prefers to roam by night, can run fast as a fox for a short distance, will climb a tree if necessary, and is quite the most adaptable member of the weasel tribe. Ask any trapper how long it took him to capture his first! The pelack is unmistakable, for the feet are webbed, the tail drags in a deep, sharp, straight cut, and he does not turn aside for ordinary obstacles any more than a bear. If you see him, leave him alone, and count yourself lucky to have sighted one of the loveliest fur coats you will ever see.

ART DAVEY finally received the reward of his perseverance. Almost low slack at Fairview on Sunday, and using six-pound mono-filament spinning tackle, Art got a strike on a No. 2 TEE SPINNER. After 40 minutes of wonderfully worrisome work, he decked a prime 27-pound spring salmon; an excellent piece of angling, and don't you ever believe that Art intends to quit fishing for golf!!

Any B.C. prospector, or any other woods walker who can prove a definite and bona fide interest in locating minerals, may obtain a set consisting of 60 identified specimens of rocks and minerals on payment of only $2.10 (which includes sales tax) and applying to the Chief of the Mineralogical Branch, Department of Mines, Victoria, B.C. This goes for teachers and school boards too. The specimens are each about one inch square, but the localities from which the specimens were taken is not given.

Now that our increased population is making a much larger use of our easily reached fishing waters, the more ardent and financially capable angler is flying in to hitherto inaccessible lakes and streams. This means a definite and continued depletion of waters that once might have been considered as a reserve for some future day. The Game Commission has no aircraft to police these back-country places nor can they be restocked by the usual methods, therefore it behooves all users of such waters to behave in a sportsmanlike manner, to do their own policing, and to make any necessary reports of unfair depredations that they may chance to observe. The woods and waters are for all licensed persons to enjoy, and we should be foolish to permit offenses against our own enjoyment to go unchecked, no matter whether the offender is one of our own, or a guest from some other land.

BIG HAILSTONES

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (AP) — A hailstorm here, where February is late in the summer, bombarded the city with hailstones more than an inch across. Two boys struck by them were taken to hospital with concussion and many persons were bruised.

WHEN THE FIRST SHIPMENTS of British pipe destined for the Peace River natural gas line passed through Prince George, Northern Freightways Ltd., trucks carried the slogan "Land of Opportunity." This photo shows the truckers taking over from the PGE at Prince George for the run to Little Prairie. Carriers stand to increase their revenues through the construction of Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. gas line running from the Peace River to the Fraser Valley. The PGE is hauling 2,000 carloads of pipe, and the freight revenue on that job will run about $2,000,000. The CPR is hauling pipe in the Fraser Valley, the Coquihalla Canyon and the interior. The CNR is hauling in the Hope-Chilliwack region; and the northern Alberta Railways haul into Dawson Creek.

BLACKWOOD on BRIDGE

By EASLEY BLACKWOOD

Mr. Muzzy Soon Learns a Very Expensive Lesson

While this hand was being dealt Mr. Heinsite was giving Mr. Muzzy a free lecture on the subject of the holdup play. He thought it was free, anyway. Actually, it cost him plenty.

He pointed out the advantages of refusing to win until one opponent had been exhausted of a dangerous suit, so as to cut communications between the defenders' hands. For a change, Mr. Muzzy listened attentively. This was not good.

Against the three no trump bid, Mr. Dale led the deuce of hearts. Now, Mr. Muzzy could have made his contract by winning with the ace and promptly taking a club finesse.

The finesse would have lost but then the defenders could have won only three heart tricks. This is all the hearts they figured to be able to win as the lead of the deuce strongly indicated that Mr. Dale held only four cards in the suit. Mr. Muzzy could have claimed the balance of the tricks.

However, when Mr. Muzzy played the jack of hearts from dummy at the first trick and saw it covered by the queen he "knew" this was the spot for a holdup play. Nodding wisely he played low from his hand.

Analyzing the situation correctly, Mrs. Keen realized the hand could not be defeated in the heart suit alone. At trick two she made a good and fortunate shift to the four of diamonds.

Mr. Muzzy played the six of hearts. "No diamonds, partner?" snapped Mr. Heinsite.

Mr. Muzzy looked confused. "Who led a diamond?" he asked.

"I did," answered Mrs. Keen.

Mr. Muzzy didn't like this at all. He had expected a heart return. He had the air of a man who thinks he has been cheated. He picked up the heart and played a low diamond.

Well, if it's good to duck in one suit, it must be twice as good to duck in two suits. So Mr. Muzzy let Mr. Dale's ten of diamonds hold. On came the jack of diamonds and it, too, was permitted to win.

Mr. Dale then went back to hearts and Mr. Muzzy, apparently fearing the opponents would make a slam if he didn't step in soon, won with the ace.

He finessed clubs, losing to the king, and the defenders then cashed two more heart tricks—down two.

EDUCATION EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Realm Of Books Offers Children Distinct Advantage Over Others

By ELVA I. LANE
Librarian at Booth Memorial High School

Many people think of education—when they take time out to think about it—as a preparation for useful citizenship. Others are, perhaps, seriously concerned about a more basic concept. Every living human being has undetermined potentialities which may or may not be realized through the education he receives.

One of the tenets of the theory of democracy is that equal opportunities shall be afforded to all for the development of individual potentialities. Underlying this is, of course, the hope that only those which are considered socially desirable, or at least do not negate our democratic philosophy, will be developed. Who are responsible for implementing such a seemingly impossible ideal? Dare we even feign disinterest or evade responsibility for the education of our children by telling ourselves that the teachers in our schools are responsible for this task? They are indeed. But their most arduous efforts to fulfill their tremendous responsibilities may not achieve the desired ends unless we as parents shoulder our share.

Sometimes our attitude towards education in general is conditioned by circumstances which limited our own formal education. We want our children to be better educated than we are but we do not always make it our business to understand and take an interest in the opportunities at hand for continuing our own education while sharing in that of our children. One of these is through reading.

In this day and age we are heirs to the accumulated knowledge of more than 2,000 years. Tied, as most of us are, to the routines necessary to the maintenance of our families and ourselves we can't travel to the far-away places of the world. Nor is it possible to go into research laboratories and watch new and fascinating realities evolving. We may not have an opportunity to become acquainted with the many different kinds of people whose patterns of living are a part of the design of Canada's culture and of today's civilization. But we can read what others have written about their travels, research and adventures.

PATTERNS CHANGE

There are the days when the sciences, the arts, the humanities (and inhumanities) are racing with each other at tempos no other age has known. The patterns of civilization are changing rapidly. We may not like some of the changes but how can we justly complain if we have not made at least some effort to learn through reading something of the probable causes and effects of these changes? We may be startled to discover that today's news is not really so unusual or unexpected as it might seem.

Today's program of education is progressive in its provision for instruction in many fields which a century ago would not have been considered the school's responsibility. In thus broadening its scope and relieving the parents of the task of teaching their children home crafts such as cooking, sewing and woodwork, to mention just three, may not the school be offering the parents opportunities to participate in the intellectual and cultural aspects of their children's development?

Certainly, in the time allotted for many of the courses, the teachers cannot possibly present all the interesting and relevant facets of the subjects they teach. They do, however, suggest additional material which the student may find for himself in either the school library or the public library. Do we as parents take sufficient interest in these reading assignments? If occasionally, at dinner or afterwards, there were lively discussions on the topics the children are studying, both parents and children might find them a pleasant change from the usual conversations about the neighbors or the weather.

Children whose parents do a fair amount of discriminating reading have a distinct advantage over those whose home environment does not encourage them to explore the realm of books. Their progress at school is accelerated and their actual academic standing is higher. Moreover they find new interests in the pursuit of which hitherto unrecognized potentialities are developed. The child who reads is the child who leads.

It is our privilege as well as our responsibility to participate in the education of our children in every way possible. It is important to be interested in their sports, their industrial arts, their extra curricular activities. It is equally (if not more) important to take an active interest in what they are reading and learning in those fields which will not only develop their capacities for clear thinking but increase their understanding of today's world and enable them to make their own maximum contribution.

We in Prince Rupert are fortunate in having a good public library. We are also fortunate in having worth - while books brought to our attention by reviews in the newspaper and on radio programs. There is every encouragement to continue our own education while participating in that of our children.
