It's interesting to know when reading the Daily News that the people of the whole district are doing the same.

PREMIER PATTULLO

ized had been thrown upon the provinces to take care of. Nevertheless, British Columbia had done much in meeting this situation.

"I don't think I need to defend my own patriotism from attacks of my political opponents," declared Mr. Pattullo "but there are certain criticisms which I cannot allow my opponents to get away with. To those who say this government has done nothing, let me say that they do not know what the government has done or, if they do know, the truth is not in them." Mr. Pattullo then proceeded to detail some of the many ways in which British Columbia was collaborating generally and through its various departments in the war effort.

Keep B. C. Strong

Mr. Pattullo believed that the best way to develop a strong Canada was to build a strong British Columbia. It was desirable that standards of the province should be maintained as high as possible although, if sacrifices in view of the war became necessary, they should willingly be made.

Speaking of highways, Mr. Pattullo stated that the international joint defence board had declared that the first road which should be built from a defence standpoint in British Columbia was that from Jasper to Prince Rupert. He had thought that this road might be started even before this but he still had reason to believe it would be before long. In any case, he would insist that it, as well as the Alaska highway, if not now, be eventually built under some form of federal collaboration, if not entirely by the Dominion. Meantime, the provincial government would go ahead with roads as far as war conditions and finances would permit.

In regard to the local road situation, Mr. Pattullo said that the existing road would be kept in good shape but he could not and would not make any promise of larger sums being spent next year. This year, the Premier said, some $40,000 or $50,000 was being spent converting the Tiell-Port Clements road from a plank affair to a dirt road. Another $50,000 would be required to finish it but he could not promise that this would be done next year.

Premier Pattullo stated that a local delegation had met him during the day asking for the establishment of a health centre unit here. He had requested that the necessary information be given and assured the project of his sympathy.

"You know," said Mr. Pattullo in conclusion, "what has been the record of this government and what you may expect from it in future. You know the trend of this administration has consistently been the formulation of measures looking to the benefit of the people. That is what you may expect in future."

Mr. Pattullo admitted that he was particularly anxious to be re-elected at this time in view of pressing major problems which were now in process of being dealt with.

Helped Prince Rupert

Mr. Pattullo felt that it was but fair that he should be permitted to refer to some of the ways in which he had been instrumental in assisting Prince Rupert of which he had played some part in laying. A member of the first city council, he had had something to do with the municipal public works policy which was still proving its benefits and usefulness. He had been instrumental in protecting the water supply of the city and had been identified with the first telephone service. Then there had been the obtaining of the Salt Lake and McClymont Park for the city. He had insisted upon the building of the provincial government buildings which were an asset to the city and were serving a valuable purpose. He had also been able to assist Olof Hanson in obtaining the new federal building. There had never been a time when he had not endeavored to carry out functions for this city in justice to the rest of the province.

In addition to himself, Mr. Pattullo said he was desirous of seeing the re-election of his colleagues in the north—Asselstine in Atlin, Kenney in Skeena, Connolly in Omineca, Perry in Fort George, and Braden in Peace River.

Healthy Interest

The chairman, T. W. Brown, in opening the meeting, expressed gratification at the size of the audience. It was a healthy sign to see such interest. In spite of the all-absorbing and all-important matter of war, ordinary business of government must be carried on. He mentioned that this was the seventh occasion on which Mr. Pattullo was offering himself to the electors here. It was almost constitutional, though it might run on for five years, for British Columbia governments to appeal to the electors every four years.

Leonard Cripps was called upon to lead the audience in the singing of "O Canada" at the opening of the meeting which closed with the singing of "God Save the King." Miss Frances Moore, A.T.C.M., presided at the piano to accompany the singing.

HELPING WIN WAR

war loans. The province has assumed the Dominion's share of unemployment relief. It has also pegged its revenue from income tax for the duration of the war and has safeguarded men in His Majesty's services from having their property sold at tax sale.

"Fisheries Department—

"Has taken steps to increase the supply of sea foods to meet the shortage in Great Britain.

"Lands Department—

"Has set aside sites for airdrome purposes and dock sites. It has carried out topographical surveys essential for national defence, made operational maps for the armed forces, conducted training classes in map reading, instituted war-time timber control measures and established enemy aircraft detective service.

"Labor Department—

"Has endeavored to meet war-time needs, giving special attention to the minimizing of labor disputes, while youth training courses have been established to fit men for war industry and the armed forces.

Department— "Mines

"New production areas have been opened up and essential war metals discovered and made accessible. Endeavor has been made to build up foreign exchange to assist in the financing of Canada's war effort.

"Municipal Department—

"Through co-operation with the various municipalities, unnecessary capital expenditures have been eliminated, thus directing funds to financing the war. The department is also planning for post-war work.

"Provincial Secretary's Department—

"A great deal of statistical work has been carried out for the three armed forces. Homes have been found for evacuee children. All laboratory facilities have been freely loaned to the Department of National Defence and medical examination aid given.

"Public Works Department—

"Military roads have been widened and improved, bridges strengthened and replaced to withstand heavy military transports.

"In the construction of airports and air fields, public works equipment such as graders, bulldozers, tractors, trucks and so forth have been loaned to the Dominion authorities. Skilled men have also been loaned to the federal authorities.

"We have turned over to the military authorities camps and field hospitals, including all equipment such as bedding, kitchen units, water and sewage disposal systems and electric light plants.

"Trades and Industry Department—

"Has co-operated with industry in mobilization to the full for war effort, and through the Tourist Bureau has done much to increase the supply of foreign exchange.

"For the benefit of British Columbia men serving overseas, the B. C. Overseas Tobacco Fund was established through which medium some eight million cigarettes have been sent overseas."

Union steamer Catala, Capt. Ernest Sheppard, arrived in port at 7 o'clock this morning from the south and sailed at 9:30 a.m. for Stewart and other northern points whence she will return here tomorrow afternoon southbound.
