As Others See Us

The following clipping from the Scotsman shows what the old country thinks of Rupert:

"Mr. Alexander Ogilvie, B.Sc., presided at a meeting of the Royal Scottish Society of Arts, held at 117 George street, Edinburgh, last night, when Mr. H. M. Cadell, B.Sc., F.R.S.E., of Grange, gave an account of a visit he had paid to the seaward terminus of the Canadian Grand Trunk Pacific railway. Prince Rupert, named after the distinguished first president of the Hudson's Bay company, was, he said, only about four years old, and had now a population of 6,000 and a debt of £300,000 to boast of, which would soon be doubled if all the proposed schemes of municipal development were carried. The city was situated on an island, most of which was mountainous, and the town site was on a shelf of rocky ground at the foot of the steep mountain slope. The area available for building was about 2,000 acres, and this was being levelled up and down on a tremendous scale, and at great expense. There was a splendid natural harbor, and water for the largest vessels. The city would be a commercial centre of great importance to Canada before long, as it had many natural advantages to attract industry and traffic."

WORKING OUT DREAM OF GOLD MINE SITE

Spokane Contractor, With Faith in British Columbia, Believes Dream Will Come True

Nelson, April 1.—C. Olsen, a Spokane contractor, dreamed of the location of a mine near Nelson, later staked the claim, carried out development work, and will continue operations in order to bring the workings to the stage in which, in his dream, he discovered a vein of wondrous wealth, says Mayor John J. Malone of Nelson, who recently inspected for Mr. Nelson the Dream mine near Hall Siding.

Years ago, the story runs, Mr. Olsen, before he visited this section, one night dreamed that he was operating a mine developed by a shaft. He saw the surrounding scenery in such detail that it was stamped on his memory and toward the end of the dream he began to shovel out ore rich in gold.

A year or so after the dream he came to Nelson to inspect some timber limits and was surprised to recognize a spot on Hall creek as that which had opened before him in his dream. The timber, the creek, the contour of the mountains, the size and condition of the trees and all other conditions, he told Mayor Malone, coincided exactly with what he had seen in his sleep. He looked around and located the spot on which, in his dream, he had seen the shaft, at the bottom of which he had dug out the rich ore and around it he located what is now known as the Dream mine.

Placing men to work, he sunk a shaft ninety feet. In his dream he looked down the shaft and was just about able to see a candle glimmer on a shovel, and it is estimated that the depth at which he would be able to see such a light would be about 100 feet, and he has now decided to sink the tunnel further, in the belief that he will surely uncover the vein.

"The property is a prospect, but I never laugh at any ideas of a man who is mining, no matter how strange they may appear. Gold, you know, is where you find it," said Mayor Malone.

TWENTY-TWO YEARS OUT OF CIVILIZATION

Father Guoy Reaches Edmonton After Long Period at Fort Smith

Edmonton, April 1.—"It seems good to be in civilization again after twenty-two years of voluntary exile among the Indians of the north."

The speaker was the Rev. Pierre Edouard Guoy, father superior of St. Esadore mission at Fort Smith, who arrived in Edmonton recently after being away from the city for nearly a quarter of a century.

"I saw at Athabasca an automobile for the first time," said Father Guoy. "Such things were not dreamed of when, as a young man of 25, I left for the north to work among the Cree Indians. Edmonton was then but a village. Of course I have kept track of its growth through the newspapers, although we received papers only during the summer by canoe and an occasional steamboat, the winter mail carriers by dog teams confining themselves to letters."

Father Guoy will rest in Edmonton a few days and then, after a short trip to St. Albert, he will start for Nantes, France, where he will visit his aged parents. On his return to Edmonton next September, he will go once more to Fort Smith—perhaps to spend the remainder of his life in his self-sacrificing labors for the education and uplifting of the Indians.

A contrivance built like a bottle, with a fuse coming out of the neck, wound with cord and covered with gelatine, was found hidden in one of the city water pipes lying on Fulton street. It was taken to the police station, where it is locked upon with grave suspicion. It being April 1 the city clerk took it as a souvenir.

The Poor Man's University

"JONES knows more about motor cars than any other man I know," said a man to his friend. "He has obtained his knowledge chiefly from motor car advertisements, and the catalogues and booklets circulated through them."

"All I know about photography," declared a well-known amateur, "I have learned from the men who advertise cameras, plates, papers and films."

Advertisements have been well called "The Poor Man's University," but other than poor men have been schooled thereby.

Much of what the average individual knows concerning personal and domestic hygiene, modern office methods, books and authors, electricity, precious stones, investments, and almost everything else, he has learned from advertisements.

Advertisements have stimulated our intelligence, added enormously to our knowledge, and given us aspirations which have raised us to higher levels of thinking and living. Advertising is indeed "The Poor Man's University."

If you are doing a local business talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

Dentist Broke Patient's Neck

London, April 2.—Bertram G. Darby died while having some teeth extracted at a dentist's in Kentish Town, and at the inquest it was stated that his demise was due to a broken neck. Dr. Spilsbury said there was tubercular disease of the upper part of the neck and skull. "Owing to their soft condition and the disease of the bones," he added, "any slight jerk or force would cause a fracture." The jury returned a verdict of "death by misadventure."

To Make Toronto Dry

Toronto, April 1.—The application of the Scott Act to Toronto and the abolition of liquor licenses is the object of a resolution which is to be introduced in the city council.

INTELLIGENT

The Daily News goes into nearly every home in Prince Rupert. It is the popular newspaper of the city because it is clean and reliable. It has all the news of the city, and keeps in touch with events and topics interesting to Northern British Columbia. It treats these subjects with moderate optimism and reliability. The Daily News is the most valuable paper to advertisers because it is read by the buying public. It has a bigger circulation than any other paper in the city. It is read by the class of people the advertisers want to talk to.
