Time was when the film exchanges of Vancouver considered any old thing good enough for Prince Rupert. The town was small and far away and the leading features were sidetracked long before they could be sent up here. But things have changed. The very best is now none too good for this city, as witness the long list of high class metropolitan attractions shown this winter at the Westholme opera house. Carmen, Thanhouer, Moths, the Lion and the Mouse and many others of the very first rank are to be followed tonight by Capt. F. E. Kleinschmidt's great Arctic Hunt pictures, series of 1913. This is perhaps the greatest of all features so far shown. It is highly educational, and at the same time intensely interesting and exciting. That this creditable enterprise on the part of the Westholme management is appreciated is shown nightly by the crowded houses continually in evidence at this theatre. The Arctic Hunt pictures will be repeated tomorrow night.
