REPORTS GREAT OIL SHOWING ON QUEEN CHARLOTTE ISLANDS

WEST COAST OF GRAHAM ISLAND SCENE OF ACTIVE DRILLING OPERATIONS—BIG EXCITEMENT IN THE OIL STOCKS IS PREDICTED

"It looks as if the Calgary oil boom had struck Vancouver," remarked J. W. Couvert, C. E., M. E., in conversation with the Vancouver Sun last week. "I am glad to see it, for it will doubtless lead to an interesting being taken in our own oil resources in this province."

Mr. Couvert has recently visited Graham island, where he investigated and reported upon the oil fields of Blue creek, surrounding Otard bay.

"If the people of Vancouver knew as much about those oil fields as they do about the Calgary oil fields even now, there would be a rush for them."

"I have," he went on to say, "seen a good many oil fields in the raw, but never have I seen stronger indications of oil or better conditions for exploring and developing an oil field than I found at Otard bay. The showings extend from Otard bay north to Frederick island, about 23 miles. The field, on account of the absence of overburden or gravel, is very easy to explore and trace, as the shales are right at the top. This makes the selection of a well site a very simple matter, as the anticlines, folds, etc., in the geology are plainly visible.

Geologically speaking, the country has never been disturbed. This means that the oil originally deposited in the cavities, folds and pores of the rock is still there. Either by heat at the surface or from pressure below, oil has found its way into the softer calcite seams which cross the formation and it has come to the surface, saturating the shales and leaving seams of bitumen and asphaltum. The character of the oil is easily shown by the frequent occurrence on the surface of big lumps of pure paraffin wax. Some of these, weighing thirty and forty pounds, have been found. The wax is just as pure as any you will find in a wax candle. The fact that this oil undoubtedly has a paraffin base makes the discovery of great interest, as such an oil is many times more valuable than the California fuel oil. Paraffin oil contains over 240 byproducts which give it great value.

"It is little less than a crime of negligence that those fields have not been proven before now," continued Mr. Couvert. "One company has been struggling along for several years trying to raise capital to finish their well. They are now down 850 feet and the surface indications have been fully corroborated by the log of the well showing the various strata through which the drill has passed. It is estimated that 450 feet more at a cost of a few thousand dollars will tap the oil. Between 600 and 700 feet hot water was encountered. In the Texas oil fields that was a sure sign of a gusher. While I do not say a gusher will be found at Otard bay, there is no reason why one should not be found. The pressure upon the oil is evidently very great, judging by the way it has been forced up through the soft calcite seams. At the outcrops of those seams the oil evaporated, leaving a seal of asphalt or bitumen or wax."

The company to which Mr. Couvert referred is a private corporation which a couple of years ago began to drill for oil. They had had luck with their first hole, losing their tools, an accident which not infrequently happens in boring operations. However, their second attempt has been successful, and the hole is now down more than two-thirds of the distance to the oil. The drill plant is intact, as are all the necessary buildings just as they were when the company ceased operations, less than a year ago, from lack of funds.

So impregnated are the surface rocks with oil that four ounces of oil was recently distilled from three pounds of rock. That in itself would make the mining of the rock a paying proposition.

Everything seems to be in favor of the Otard oil fields. Otard bay is an excellent sheltered harbor with water so deep that the biggest ocean liners can tie up alongside the shore rocks. There is plenty of timber and the climatic conditions are entirely satisfactory for oil operations.

"The development of that field would mean a big thing for Vancouver," said Mr. Couvert. "The people of this city should get busy on both Graham island and other oil fields in this province, for there is every reason to believe there are as large deposits and much higher grade oil than those found in Alberta. Vancouver has a great opportunity here and investors need take but little risk as the amount required to finish proving the field is not more than $8,000 or $10,000 at the outside, and perhaps as low as $5,000. The completion of the well at Otard bay will prove the field and that sum is all that is required to do it. When it is proved you will have the basis of as good an oil boom in Vancouver as Calgary is now enjoying," he said in conclusion.

BITS OF HUMOR

"You ought to be contented and not fret for your old home," said the mistress as she looked into the dim eyes of her young Swedish maid. "You are earning good wages, your work is light every one is kind to you, and you have plenty of friends here." "Yas'm," said the girl, "but it is not the place where I do be that makes me vera homesick; it is the place where I don't be."

The dealer in antiques was an old violin to a probable buyer. "Yes," he said, "that is the identical fiddle Nero played while Rome was burning!" "Oh, that is a myth." The dealer agreed, saying: "Yes, it is; and Myth's name was on it, but it has got worn off."

Senator William Hughes of New Jersey told a story in demonstrating that when a man wants to lucidly express himself he cannot be too careful in picking out the right brand of language. The parson of a small church in one of the back counties tenderly announced that he had received a call from another field. At the conclusion of the service the parson was approached by one of the deacons. "I have been thinking about the announcement you made parson," said the deacon. "Are they offering you any more money in that new field?" "Oh, yes, brother," was the prompt rejoinder of the parson, "three hundred dollars." "Well, I don't know as I blame you, parson," thoughtfully returned the deacon, "but in making the announcement you didn't use the right term. That isn't a 'call,' it's a 'raise'."
