"THE CURSE OF GREED"

Draws Big House at the Westholme Last Night

A capacity house turned out to see the big five reel feature production "The Curse of Greed" at the Westholme Opera House and the verdict of those present was one of unanimous approval.

These pictures are without doubt among the very best ever seen here or anywhere for that matter. The story is exceedingly interesting and plausible, and some of the sunset and water scenes, particularly the great storm scene showing a real storm at sea with lightning and immense wind-swept waves, are absolutely marvelous and photographically perfect. This feature will be repeated tonight.

White Horse Bumped

On her last trip down the river to Dawson the steamer White Horse had her house on the port side badly damaged by striking while passing through Five Fingers. While about thirty feet of the house was smashed, no damage was done the body of the vessel which continued on her way and returned from Dawson to this place where she is now being repaired. The accident was due to the remarkably high water which, in passing through the Fingers, is a raging torrent. At last reports, the water at that point was rapidly falling.—White Horse Star.
