Bared Girl's Heart

London, July 27.—A despatch from Pistoria, Italy, declares that Dr. Vannucci, chief surgeon of the hospital there, has accomplished a marvel of surgery. He operated on a girl named Maria Tondia to remove a needle accidentally run into her body to the heart, which in its action, came in contact with the point of the needle. The surgeon, holding the girl's heart in his hand, found that the pulsations, violent at first, gradually ceased. "It is all over," he exclaimed, but as a last hope, he started to massage the heart. Little by little its activity was stimulated, and the operation was successfully finished.
