

REAL ESTATE is just as good an investment in Prince Rupert today as it was when the market was active and the speculators were making a quick turn. No man who holds any bulk property here anticipates or expects a slump. The big owners have perfect confidence in the city in the real estate. They are improving their property and getting good revenues. That is where a small owner is handicapped during the period of inactivity. He has not enough money to improve property and get a revenue. If he pooled his available means with the savings of others, the whole would make a good working capital. That is where the Prince Rupert Building and Investment Co. helping the small capitalist to do good. This company improves its property and has an income. It has been one of the most successful organizations in the city. It has paid an average of SEVEN PER CENT in dividends in the past three years. We have a limited amount of stock offered for sale.
