BRITAIN'S PRESS BUREAU SCORES SACK OF LOUVAIN

"UNPARDONABLE ACT OF BARBARISM AND VANDALISM" DE-NOUNCED—THERE WAS NO EXCUSE—EVERYONE HAD SURRENDERED.

London, Sept. 10.—England was aghast last week over the details of the destruction of Louvain. The complete wiping out of the entire city has exercised all high government officials and, following a conference with Premier Asquith, the official press bureau issued a lengthy denunciation of the deed.

"The destruction of this ancient city was an unpardonable act of barbarism and vandalism," said the bureau. "It was a deliberate act in complete violation of the law of nations. It is indeed a crime for which there can be no atonement. The German contention that it was an act justified by war and a proper reprisal because the inhabitants had fired on the German troops is utterly without warrant. It has already been plainly proven that when Louvain was surrendered to the Germans everyone gave up their arms. Even the city civil guard was disarmed by order of the burgomeister. Now for Germany to contend that these unarmed residents fired on German troops is absolutely beyond credence."

"The assumption of the German commander was, under the circumstances, so wide of probability that it can only be supposed that in the desire to conceal the facts the first idea which occurred to him was seized upon as an excuse for an act without parallel in the history of civilized peoples. Louvain has been utterly destroyed by one of the Emperor's commanders in a moment of passion to cover the blunder of his own men. Humanity thereby suffered a loss which never can be repaired."

The bureau then discusses at length all the contentions raised by the Germans, and quotes the official statement issued by the Belgian legation as proving conclusively that Germany was not in any way justified in its reprisal.

The Times Aflame.
The Times, which has hitherto been most restrained in its references to German barbarities, is afame at the destruction of the beautiful city of Louvain, which is the Oxford of Belgium. The intellectual metropolis of the Low Countries since the fifteenth century is now a heap of ashes. The beautiful Hotel de Ville has been ruthlessly destroyed, also the stately church at Pierre; the famous university with a library of 70,000 volumes, and priceless manuscripts. Historic defences were disarmed. A town with 45,000 inhabitants, the size of Calgary or London, Ontario, has been completely wiped out on the most flimsy military pretext.

"This infamous crime," says The Times, "is without a parallel even in the dark ages. Even Attila spared Milan. Our modern Attila of Berlin respects neither laws nor nations, nor the laws of God. His evil deeds cry aloud to heaven and to horror-struck watching nations. The wickedness of this abominable act shall be expiated to the uttermost when the day of reckoning comes."

SCHOONER ALBERT MYERS BROUGHT IN 250 TON COD

The cod fishing schooner Albert Myers, which has been fishing during the summer in Behring Sea, arrived yesterday and docked at the cold storage plant. She brought in 250 tons of fish, dressed and salted. This is considered a fair catch. The fish taken are known as grey cod, being similar to the Newfoundland cod. The fishermen will be paid off here.
