Paris, Sept. 11.—A Petrograd dispatch to the London Times says the great battle in the district has ended in a complete victory for the Russians. The Austrian armies are completely routed.
The summary shows that the official statements give a picture of the great battle in which it is apparent that the forces are still falling from the announcement that they had gained 37 miles of ground in their advance, which was increased by 12 miles in the past 24 hours. Both British and French have crossed the Marne. The British captured many men.

GERMANS IN FULL RETREAT TOWARDS THEIR OWN COUNTRY

CONCENTRATING ON THE EASTERN END TO PROTECT LINES
OF COMMUNICATION AND FORM JUNCTIONS WITH THEIR OWN ARMIES.

(Special to The Daily News—12 Noon)
London, Sept. 11.—A dispatch to Reuters from Antwerp gives the following Belgian government statement: "Military operations continuing in the district of Antwerp are of a very satisfactory nature. A great battle continues westward. Of the part of the field eastward our positions are firmly held. It is important at this moment not to foster exaggerated hopes, but the prospect is favorable to the Allies. The British, who have the honor of forming the extreme left wing, have advanced 26 miles in a single day. This shows how severe the pressure is on the German western army. This pressure is much more than the local pressure. Already it is necessary for the enemy to concentrate towards the east, both for the sake of resting on its lines of communication through Luxembourg, and in order to make a junction of the armies in Rhineland. A disorderly retreat from Oureq and Marne must necessarily hasten the march of the German east wing westerly. The offensive was probably designed for this purpose."

BRITAIN HOLDS SAMOA SEIZES GERMAN ISLAND

London, Sept. 11.—The occupation of German Samoa by a British expedition removes from the theatre of war a possibility that might later have become serious. When Japan declared war on Germany the German press in America insisted that this action was designed so that she might take not only additional territory in China but also German Samoa, which has strategic possibilities when the safety of the Panama Canal is considered. That the British government was determined there should be no ground for this position in America is shown by the announcement that an expedition, sent from New Zealand, took over Apia, the capital of German Samoa. Apia is 20 miles west of Tutuila and Pago Pago, the United States naval station.

According to the official War Office announcement the British force taking Apia was from New Zealand. German possessions in Samoa are 1,050 square miles, with a native population of 35,000.
