RESULTS OF TREMENDOUS BATTLE SHOW DEADLY CARNAGE OF ENEMY

Advance of Germans Repeatedly Wiped Out by Shrapnel Of Allies---French Marines Rout Germans With Bayonets After Stand of Forty Hours--- 16,000 Germans Were Killed

(Special to The Daily News--11 A. M.)
London, Oct. 28.—The Times correspondent in West Flanders says the Germans have paid a terrible price for the crossing of the Yser and for the strip they still hold at the bend of the river. Again and again, they have been practically wiped out by the Belgian shrapnel but have continued to pour their men into the death trap.

At Dixmude and Nieuport the struggle was equally severe. At Dixmude the French marines were compelled to stand for forty hours in a continuous attack but finally routed the Germans at the bayonet point.

The Germans made a crossing Saturday near St. George's Chappelle and a frightful struggle ensued. The fighting continued until Sunday morning, when the arrival of French reinforcements drove the Germans back across the river. The German attack on Dixmude was also repulsed with heavy loss. Heavy street fighting resulted in the capture of the greater part of a German battalion.

A Daily Mail dispatch says the Germans have abandoned the attempt to force a passage through the Dixmude-Nieuport line and are concentrating farther south on the Dixmude-Ypres line.

The German losses on the Dixmude-Nieuport line are estimated at 16,000 killed and 30,000 wounded.

CALAIS IS NOT THREATENED NOW

Germans Fighting to Maintain Line of Communications, Says French Paper.

Paris, Oct. 27.—Confidence grows that the German efforts against Calais are degenerating into an attempt to retain hold of Belgian communications. The French press unanimously quote from the German paper statements regarding the vital importance of the fighting in the northwest, deducing from the Allies' strong resistance that Germany's last strong stroke is likely to be followed by a hasty retreat.

The Temps refers to the fact that the same theatre of war was the scene of a great victory by Conde over the Germans in 1648, which reduced them to impotence for many years.

"We repeat," says the editorial, "it is in the north that the decisive battle is taking place. The Germans are no longer threatening Calais and Boulogne they are striving wildly to disengage themselves from the grasp which endangers their communications."

(Special to The Daily News--10:30 A. M.)

Neeley, who is Republican candidate to succeed himself, by a act of courtesy enabled his opponent, Miss Gertrude Cosgrove, Democratic candidate, to make the race. She had neglected to file her credentials with the county auditor.

On the afternoon of the last day for filing the papers Mr. Neeley appeared at the auditor's office, and after filing inquired if Miss Cosgrove had filed. The auditor said she had not. Mr. Neeley immediately called her by telephone and explained the law. He offered as superintendent to certify to the necessary facts, but she declined to take that chance and immediately secured an auto and started from her home at Sprague, arriving in Davenport a few minutes before midnight, just in time to comply with the law.
