PROMPT EVACUATION OF VERA CRUZ EXPECTED

Washington, Oct. 26.—Prompt withdrawal of the American forces from Vera Cruz is fore-shadowed by the approval given by the Mexican National Convention at Aguas Calientes to the requests of the American government for protection of Mexicans who served the United States and other desired guarantees.

The State Department received word that the convention had instructed General Carranza to comply with the American government's requests.

The American government asked not only that clericals and Mexicans who supported the American forces during their occupation be free from molestation or punishment, but that taxes and customs duties already collected by the American officers be not reimposed.

General Obregon headed a commission which called on General Carranza and invited him to attend the convention at Aguas Calientes and sign an agreement to abide by decisions of that body, according to advices from Mexico City. General Carranza declined the invitation to go personally or send a delegate. He reserved the right to approve or disapprove of the final acts of the convention.

FISH GOING TO WASTE AND PEOPLE HUNGRY

Some Assistance From Government Would Help Struggling Industry at Present.

New Westminster, Oct. 26.—With food supplies short in Belgium and in many sections the people on the verge of starvation, with a shortage of food in Europe and with thousands right here in British Columbia finding it hard to combat the high cost of living, fish by the millions, considered as nutritious as beef, if not more so, are going to waste on the Fraser River and all for the lack of a little government assistance. In New Westminster fishermen are selling "Aqualas" or dog fish salmon for five cents the fish and in many cases giving them away. The canneries are paying from two and one-half to three cents for them, while in Eastern Canada as high as twelve cents for the same fish is quoted.

These fish can be salted, packed shipped and delivered in Europe for three cents per pound, according to Mr. Martin Monk, one of the best authorities in the fishing business, and his plans were placed before Dominion Inspector of Fisheries Cunningham. Mr. Monk remarking on the deplorable waste of this excellent food, Mr. Cunningham has promised to take the matter up with the government, but so far nothing has been done.

Not only can the fish be delivered in Europe at three cents per pound, but the fishermen are unable to make a living at fishing owing to the low price paid locally would be receiving ten cents the fish for them. The plan proposed by Mr. Monk is for the government to supply the barrels, costing one dollar, and one dollar's worth of salt for each barrel. It takes thirty fish to fill a two hundred pound barrel; this would be three for the fish at ten cents the fish, making the entire cost five dollars for the two hundred pounds. To this is added one-half cent per pound freight, making a total cost of six dollars for two hundred pounds of fish.

It is estimated that at least 50,000 barrels could have been put up this year, although there is practically no limit to the fish that could have been caught. At five dollars the barrel this means a clear loss of a quarter of a million dollar's worth of food that is lost forever, aside from the money that the fishermen would have earned. Every fisherman would gladly have salted his own fish under this plan if he could have secured ten cents the fish; and the people of Europe would have secured a good cheap food and prices of beef could have soared sky high so far as local people were concerned. All this, however, has been lost this season owing to lack of government aid.

DUNKIRK.

Dunkirk, now being threatened by the Germans, is a city of 40,000 population, about midway between Ostend and Calais, a seaport of consequence, and has important harbor works which cost ten million dollars. Its manufactures include linen, leather, cotton, soap, sugar, and large shipbuilding yards.

Dunkirk has often been in history's limelight. It was burned by the English in 1381, taken by Cromwell in 1658, and sold by Charles II to Louis XIV for a million dollars.

During the French Revolution it was successfully defended by the French. An army of Austrians and English, under the Duke of York, who, according to one historian, "always failed" in his undertakings, made a disastrous campaign against it. The failure had an important bearing on the issue of the war.

Novelty selling events will be carried out during the Patriotic Sale at Wallace's.

MARITZ TOOK ARMS AWAY FROM LOYAL GARRISON

Cape Town, via London, Oct. 26.—The correspondent of The Cape Times at Carnarvon, Cape Colony, describing the recent revolt of Lieut.-Col. Solomon Gerhardus Maritz, says:

"When Maritz came to Kakamas, in the Cape province, as commandant of the defence force, he took away all the rifles of the local garrison on the plea that he needed them to form a force against the Germans. Maritz went away and was returning with 700 Germans and traitors when the garrison luckily heard of his approach.

"Thirty-eight daring men went to his camp in the night and took rifles and ammunition and horses. Maritz caught up with them thirty miles away. There was a three hours' fight, then the men from the garrison took to the bush, where they played hide and seek for several days before they escaped, with the loss of only one man."

SUGGESTS A ROMANCE.

Is Belgian General Leman Former Deserter From Germans?

The Hague, Oct. 27.—Newspaper advices from Halle, Germany, say the German authorities have opened an inquiry to discover whether General Leman, the defender of Liege, who is a prisoner at Magdeburg, can be identified as Heinrich Lehmann, a soldier of the German army, who deserted during the war of 1870. There appears to be an extraordinary likeness, the advices say, between the men.
