U. S. AMBASSADOR COMES HOME BROKE AFTER LOYAL SERVICE

When the war broke out Mr. Myron T. Herrick, the United States Ambassador to France, found himself thrown into a place of great prominence and responsibility. Scores of thousands of Americans, stranded on the Continent, appealed to him, and all who could rushed to him, for help. Some of these people had the most absurd notions as to what the American Ambassador ought to do, many of them being clearly of the opinion that he ought in the name of the United States to forbid the war to proceed until the American tourists had been given due notice and reasonable time to sail for home. Mr. Herrick, in the opinion of American, French, and British onlookers, showed nothing short of genius in his handling of the crisis. He took hold of the situation with both hands and quickly brought it under control. He is a big business man, with a gift for organization and a self-composure to meet every emergency.

Mr. Herrick has just returned home, and on the way across the Atlantic he was invested with the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor by instructions from the French Government.

But why did Mr. Herrick leave France just now and vacate a position for which he is so wonderfully suited? The simple fact is that Mr. Herrick is broke, hasn't a dollar, and has come home to go to work. He was given a great reception on landing at New York, and was informed that he was being talked of as Republican candidate for the presidency in 1916, and this is what he said:

"I do not want to talk politics. I don't want to talk about such foolishness. If any credit is due me for the small part I have played I do not want to capitalize it. I did not come home to talk about myself. I am very tired and very 'broke.' I have just learned that the Ohio Society has engaged rooms for me at a hotel for which I will not have to pay. This is the best news I have heard in a long time."

He declared that he was all in. He had no money and was deeply grateful to learn that hotel accommodation had been provided for him and his wife by his old friends. He was doubly pleased to learn that no customs fees would be charged on the luggage he brought with him. He had come home to go to work because that was the only course open to him.

Some may be shocked that an ambassador to France should talk so, but most Americans, no doubt, will feel quite the other way about, and will admire the man who, in a great crisis, rendered so excellent a service, and when his own money was gone declined to keep afloat on other people's money.

CRUISER GLASGOW SAVED BY MIRACLE IN CHILI FIGHT

600 Shells Were Fired at British Boats, and Five Struck Her at the Water Line.

London, Dec. 17.—The Times prints a letter from an officer aboard the Glasgow, dated November 9, giving a vivid narrative of the naval fight off the Chilean Coast.

Describing the search of the British squadron up and down the coast for the enemy's warships, the writer says that although they could not locate them, "we heard their secret and friendly wireless stations talking in code."

Coming to the battle itself, the writer says everybody was remarkably cool, as if at practice. "I cannot understand the miracle of our deliverance. None will ever. We were struck at the water line by in all five shells 'out of about six hundred directed at us, but, strangely enough, not in vulnerable places, our coal saving us on three occasions, as we are not armored and should not be in the battle line against an armored cruiser."

Conservative Nominated.

Sydney, N.S., Dec. 15.—John C. Douglas, M.P.P., and Robt. H. Butts, M.P.P., were nominated the Conservative candidates for the federal constituencies of Cape Breton south and Richmond respectively.
