WHY M'BRIDE WENT TO OTTAWA AND DEFERRED HIS ELECTION
SUGGESTED THAT HE MUST REPLY TO CRITICISMS ABOUT JUNK SUBMARINES—WILL KEEP HIM BUSY

It is now believed that Sir Richard McBride is now at Ottawa not so much for the purpose of conference with Conservative leaders as to when he shall hold the provincial election, but in order to explain why he jumped in and entirely unauthorized, purchased two submarines, at a cost of $1,150,000, that were junk in Seattle. They were junk at the time, for they had been built for the Chilean government at a much less contract price than Sir Richard paid for them as junk, they having been refused by the Chilean government because they were defective and not up to contract specifications.

Of course this scandalous proceeding on the part of Sir Richard was much commented upon all over the country and was necessarily brought up in parliament; hence Sir Richard's flying trip to Ottawa and his hurried annulment of the date fixed for the provincial election.

According to Hansard the matter came up in the House of Commons on March 9th, when Mr. Roch Lanctot, (Laprarie-Napierville) in a speech in French on the Budget said:

"Someone has spoken of dreadnoughts. I also would speak of dreadnoughts, and would ask if the country would not have been richer if we had accepted the dreadnought proposition made two years ago, or if Britain is in a better condition to be victorious on the seas today with those three dreadnoughts yet to be built?"

"Mr. Bellemare: Will the honorable gentleman permit me a question? Does he pretend that Canada would be richer today if the Laurier marine existed?"

"Mr. Lanctot: I am pleased to answer that question. If the Liberal government had remained in power, and presuming that the Laurier law passed in 1910 had been carried out, and that we had today three or four cruisers to protect our coasts, we would not have been obliged to purchase two submarines, which had been refused by the government of Chile, and to pay $400,000 more for them than the contract price agreed upon between the builders of the boats and the government of Chile. These submarines are of no value whatever, because they were not made according to the plans and specifications."

The subject was brought up in the Senate on March 16th, by a question by Senator McSweeney, requesting the cost and other particulars of the two submarines purchased by the British Columbia government, or by Sir Richard McBride. The party leader in the Senate came to the aid of Sir Richard with a bucket of white-wash. Hansard says:

ASK BOWSER.
(B. C. Tories' version of "Excelsior.")
1. The shades of night were falling fast; And up the street a poor man passed; He muttered, "When's Election Day?" Then heard somebody nearby say—
ASK BOWSER.
2. His brow was sad, his eyes were red; "Dominion Trust broke me," he said; "Is there no way to get my dough?" A whisper came then, rather low—
ASK BOWSER.
3. In happy homes he saw the light; He had no place to sleep that night; "Why should this be?" he loudly cried. In answer then, a voice replied—
ASK BOWSER.
4. "Can't I get land to build a home, While poor men o'er the country roam— Why are things so, in this great land?" At once the answer came to hand—
ASK BOWSER.
5. "Why do railroads prosper so, While poor men must to prison go— Why don't Sir Richard say a word?" And in the distance, then he heard—
ASK BOWSER.
6. "Why can't I get a timber claim, Since I out to this country came?" The poor man muttered, with a sigh; But once again came this reply—
ASK BOWSER.
7. "And in the House, the members there, Why don't they try to do their share; Why do they sit, like wooden men?" Then came the answer once again—
ASK BOWSER.
8. The poor man now was growing weak; In fact, 'twas hard for him to speak; "Who runs B. C.?" he feebly cried. He started, as a voice replied—
ASK BOWSER.
9. And as he fell, with gasping breath, He faintly muttered, "Is this death?" And from the sky, serene and far, A voice fell like a falling star—
