SEWARD CHOSEN RAILWAY TERMINAL

Seward, April 14.—Chosen by President Wilson as the seaboard terminal of the Alaska Railroad to Fairbanks from the Coast, Seward went crazy last night. The news of the President's decision was received while a baseball game was in progress. It adjourned immediately. The town became delirious with enthusiasm. Cash registers were thrown into the discard. Everything was free from that time on. Within ten minutes a dance had been arranged and a big celebration, at which public speaking and other exercises were engaged in, had been inaugurated.

Real estate doubled in value in fifteen minutes after the news was received, and city lots that had been offered for sale, immediately were withdrawn from the market. Everybody wanted to buy. Nobody wanted to sell, so Seward set out to enjoy itself, and at latest advices received last night, it was still enthusiastically bent on the pursuit of pleasure and was having one wild, hilarious time.

The news that Seward will be the terminal came in a dispatch from Washington late yesterday afternoon, when it was announced by President Wilson that the government had purchased the Alaska Northern Railroad for $1,150,000, of which $500,000 is to be paid on July 1 next and the remainder a year later.

The official announcement says construction work on forty miles of railroad will be commenced this summer from Ship Creek to the Matanuska coal fields, and that part of the work will be done directly by the government and part by under contracts let by the Alaska Engineering Commission, composed of W. C. Edes, Lieut. Frederick Mears, U. S. army, and Thomas Riggs, Jr. That the work will be started at Ship Creek was foretold in The Times many weeks ago, and it is probable that a floating dock might be constructed to overcome the heavy tides in that region.—Seattle Times.

EIGHT GRIMSBY TRAWLERS MAY BE DESTROYED

Grimsby, April 14.—Eight Grimsby trawlers, overdue in the North Sea, were yesterday given up as lost. It is believed all have been sunk by German submarines. Each carried a crew of from nine to thirteen men.

The missing trawlers are the Rio, Rapio, Reto, Sterling, Furet, Mercia, Horatio and Argentina, vessels of from 100 to 400 tons. All were operating through regions traversed by the submarines and reported thickly strewn with German mines. Fishermen's homes in Grimsby were draped in mourning last night when the owners of the trawlers announced that in all probability they had gone to the bottom.

Crowds of sobbing women moved away from the shipping offices after an all day vigil at the wharves.

Two British destroyers were reported off the coast yesterday afternoon. They signalled that they were searching for some traces of the missing vessels or their crews, but no report had come from the destroyers at midnight. The trawler flotilla left here early in the week. It was agreed that they should keep close together for protection against submarine raids.

WAR HAS MADE PEOPLE SAVE MONEY

New York, April 14.—The year 1914 was a year of economy on the part of a vast majority of the people. The hard times in the first half of the year following other years of depressed business caused considerable individual retrenchment, but it was not widespread and universal then. It required the outbreak of war to bring about the latter state of things. At once people began to save money—not only people of moderate means, but the rich and the very rich immediately started on a career of the rigorous scrutiny of every expenditure and heroic cutting off of spending in every direction. The moment it became the fashion to stint outlay, it was easy to fall in line. Everybody did it because everybody's neighbors and associates were setting the example.

The result of this country-wide movement has been the accumulation of vast sums in the aggregate, and this is shown by the swelling bank and savings deposits all over the United States.

People were surprised to learn how easy it was to save money when competition in spending it, which makes us the most extravagant nation in the world, stopped. On one item alone we are putting aside probably $250,000,000 a year and upwards, namely, on tourists' expenses abroad.

People have been saving in the last eight months who never saved before, and the results are a surprise to themselves.

Funds accumulate faster than had ever before been realized in dreams.

This process of money accumulation has bred a taste for money-making. It has set the saver to thinking about what to do with the money he has saved.

IS NAME LUCKY?

A St. Louis paper points out that the name George is a jinx so far as England is concerned, that the first four Georges all had considerable war during their reigns and that the greatest war ever known, after one hundred years of practically little trouble, now rages while George V. is on the throne. The name may be unlucky but certainly none can charge that the present bearer of the name is a trouble maker—Whitehorse Star.

Next to adopting a set of resolutions, a mass meeting appears to be the most futile thing.
