Both are multi-millionaires and intimate friends of the King.

C. NORRIS ANNOUNCES NEW MANITOBA CABINET

The following are the details of the resignation of the Roblin government in Manitoba, of which the News had a flash notice on Wednesday:

Winnipeg, May 12.—At 11 o'clock this morning the members of Sir Edmund Roblin's government presented their resignations personally to Sir Douglas Cameron, Lieutenant Governor. After a purely formal meeting, in which the resignations were accepted, the Lieutenant Governor sent for C. Norris, leader of the Liberal opposition, and called upon him to form a government. Mr. Norris accepted the honor and returned at once to the Parliament buildings, where he was met by gentlemen he had previously selected for his cabinet. There are no other members at the buildings and the change occurred quietly. It is understood that seven ministers will resign their seats in the legislature and these seats will be filled by Liberals without a contest. This would give the Liberals a majority, but in the opinion of the supporters of the new administration not a working one, so it is possible that three private Conservative members will be asked to resign their seats.

Mr. Norris has announced his cabinet as follows:

Premier and President of the Council—T. C. Norris.
Minister of Public Works—Thomas H. Johnson.

Attorney General—A. B. Hudson.
Minister of Education—Dr. R. Thornton.

Russia's New Liberal Methods.

One of the first concessions made by Russia to Poland is the restoration of the use of the Polish language in the elementary and non-State secondary schools and colleges. In non-State secondary institutions Russian history, geography and literature must be taught in Russian. Public opinion in Petrograd regards this measure as the first step in the reconciliation of the Polish nationality to Russia.

ALLIES USE RUSE IN DARDANELLES

Conceal 2,500 Men on Derelict Collier Which Is Allowed to Go Ashore.

Dardanelles, April 25.—(Correspondence via Constantinople)—History has duplicated itself on the Plains of Troy, for by a ruse as ingenious as the wooden horse, which gave the crafty Greeks entrance into the city of Troy, the British succeeded in getting their first landing party ashore for the land operations against the Dardanelles.

On the day preceding the landing the Turkish patrols noticed a huge collier, her decks piled high with coal, drifting in apparent helplessness toward the shoals lining the shores near the Plains of Troy. Finally the big boat struck bottom, and in the twilight which was falling the crew was seen to take to their boats and row hastily toward the sea, where other ships were evidently cruising.

Feeling certain that the stranded vessel would be safe for the night, no attempt was made by the Turks to board her, but when the patrols approached again in the morning they were met by a sharp fire from 2,500 British troops, strongly entrenched and supported by a battery of field artillery. These troops had landed during the night from the apparent derelict, where they had been concealed below the decks.

Then the mist off shore rose and disclosed a long line of transports, from which troops were pouring into small boats, which, under cover from the landing force, reached the beach with comparatively few casualties.

The Turks summoned reinforcements with feverish haste and for a time the small landing detachment was in deadly peril of extinction, but their position was too strong to be taken by assault and when the Turkish batteries got into action enough troops had been safely landed to consolidate the positions won.
