AMERICA AND GERMANY.

Firmly but calmly the government at Washington protests against Germany's mode of warfare, and holds that beligerent nation to strict accountability for violation of American rights and the wanton sacrifice of American lives.

It is a temperate but meaningful note, clearly phrased and so expressive of the American sense of right that it must surely give pause to the war-mad imperial government which, through countenancing wicked, insensate acts on the high seas, has grossly affronted this neutral nation, heedlessly alienated its good will and violently shocked the sensibilities of a friendly, peace-loving, honor-cherishing people.

America has behaved admirably from the inception of this appalling European cataclysm. It has behaved as any neutral should behave. The President's early injunction and appeals for a strict neutrality have been dutifully observed and patriotically answered by press and public generally. Exceptions here and there have served to make more strikingly manifest the splendid restraint of the country as a whole. This great republic has not contributed by word or deed to the distress of the harassed, distraught, reason-lost nations engaged in devastating strife. It has not exulted in news of victory or defeat, but, awe-stricken, has looked on with sympathy and commiseration for the victims of it all, and given its prayers for a restoration of peace—an enduring peace that would make for a better and stronger civilization.

With pride in its German-American citizenship, this Republic has been, is today and would continue to be Germany's friend, as it is the friend of the nations with which Germany is at war. But, in the light of what has happened, Germany must disavow those high-handed acts in the war zone, show ready disposition to make adequate reparation, and give acceptable guarantees that there will be no repetition of international law-breaking practices. It cannot do otherwise without complete rupture of relations already strained to breaking point and putting itself in the role of an outlaw.

That is the meaning of the Washington note addressed to the German government and the German people. It is no jingo utterance, no "mere scrap of paper," but the cool, calm declaration—the ultimatum, if you please—of this American nation, and in support of it there will be no faltering or division.

The imperial government, if it be wise, will not widen the breach, but seek to regain and hold the friendship of the United States by prompt disavowal of hostile acts and an honorable acquiescence in and compliance with these just demands.—Seattle P.-I.

CONDUCTOR HUGHES BAILED.

On Tuesday, George Hughes, G. T. P. conductor who in defence of his life accidentally shot an Austrian at Shelly a short time ago when a number of foreigners sought to beat their way east on a freight train, was admitted to bail this week by Judge Calder in the County Court. The trial of the case will depend on the date of the recovery of the injured man, who is in the hospital at Hazelton.—Fort George Herald.

BELLA COOLA JOTTINGS

We are pleased to chronicle that Mr. John H. Lunos has again received the appointment of forest guard for this district.

The Grand View Hotel opened its doors yesterday for the accommodation of guests.

We regret to learn that one of our settlers, Mr. A. F. Gothard, who has been engaged at Namu, has met with a somewhat serious accident. He was at work with others placing a shaft in position overhead, and in holding it up to its proper place he strained himself so much that some rupture took place above the abdomen. He was sent to the hospital at Bella Bella and is in a fair way to recovery.

Mr. Joseph Grummett, our former blacksmith, who recently returned from Australia, New Zealand and other distant places, was on Sunday last stricken by paralysis and is now at the hospital.

Mr. Frank Johnson is improving nicely and hopes soon to be about with the aid of crutches. The bruise received on the other leg has really given him more pain than the broken bone. His neighbors, both of Firvale and The Crossings, have given very kindly assistance with his bedding.—Bella Coola Courier.
