

OWES HER LIFE TO "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Cured Both Stomach Trouble and Headaches

PALMERSTON, ONT., JUNE 20th, 1913.
"I really believe that I owe my life to 'Fruit-a-tives'." Ever since childhood, I have been under the care of physicians and have been paying doctor's bills. I was so sick and worried that people on the street often asked me if I thought I could get along without help. The same old stomach trouble and distressing headaches nearly drove me wild. Sometime ago, I got a box of 'Fruit-a-tives' and the first box did me good. My husband was delighted and advised a continuation of their use.

Today, I am feeling fine, and a physician meeting me on the street, noticed my improved appearance and asked the reason. I replied, "I am taking Fruit-a-tives." He said, "Well, if Fruit-a-tives are making you look so well, go ahead and take them. They are doing more for you than I can."

Mrs. H. S. WILLIAMS.
"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box. 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

HOW STATE SECRETS ARE PROTECTED

In war time there are numerous important state secrets which must be prevented from leaking out, and they are guarded by various ingenious devices. For instance, in government offices the writing on important documents is dried by means of roller blotters. These consist of revolving cylinders covered with blotting-paper, which are run over wet ink. The writing is impressed on the cylinder in a confused jumble, impossible to decipher, as would be the case if the ordinary flat blotter were used. In some cases black blotting-paper is used to dry official letters, as it is much safer than the pink or white variety. Important telegrams, if not in code, often have to be guarded from prying eyes by the government officials. For this purpose they use a simple little invention which consists of a telegraph form prepared with a perforated gummied edge. The message having been written, the form is folded over and the edges gummied down, as in the case of a letter-card, and its contents are hidden from the messenger who carries it to the telegraph office. Each battleship carries a book of code signals which holds the meaning of the little flags which flutter at the masthead when the ships communicate. The code-book is of immense importance, and strict precautions are taken against it falling into the hands of the enemy. Each volume is heavily weighted with lead in the cover, so that in emergency it can be thrown into the sea with the certainty that it will sink. The code-book is thrown overboard when a battleship is sinking, or has been crippled by an enemy ship which is likely to dispatch a boarding party.

In war time all governments utilize cipher codes for communicating with their commanders in the field or with their ambassadors in neutral countries. Such ciphers are cleverly worked out by an official especially employed for the purpose. The object of official codes is to make them absolutely unintelligible to the ordinary person, whilst they can be read by the initiated by means of a simple key that can be memorized. It occasionally happens that commanders in the field are obliged to communicate with one another by means of dispatches written in plain language. In such cases elaborate precautions are taken against the communications falling into the hands of the enemy. They are secreted in the sole of a dispatch-rider's boot, sewn into his clothing, or, as was described in a recent letter from the front, carried in the pneumatic tire of a motor-cyclist's machine.

Lord Kitchener has a policy of guarding important military secrets by seldom entrusting them to any but unmarried men. During the many years that he was busy perfecting his plans for his swoop upon the Mahdi he did not have a married man upon his staff. If one of his staff wished to get married he had to be transferred elsewhere, in case he should not prove capable of keeping military secrets from his wife.
