DARING DEED OF BRITISH AT ZEEBRUGGE

Lieut. Helmsing Holds Large Audience Spell-bound at the Empress Last Night.

There was a large gathering at the Empress Theatre last night to hear Lieut. Helmsing tell of the deeds of daring of the British navy in connection with the blocking of Zeebrugge canal. Everyone knows what was done but few people can realize how it was done, what difficulties had to be overcome in doing it and what success was achieved. The speaker made everything clear and illustrated it all with pictures and maps.

The canal leading to Bruges was a safe resort for German submarines. The Admiralty decided that it must be stopped. It was planned to sink three ships in its entrance in order to prevent its use for submarine activities. Preparations were made, a time was set and the ships passed through a mine field, sailed close to batteries of enemy guns, navigated the difficult channel of the harbor which was protected from the weather by a big mole, sank the ships in the canal, and most of the men engaged in the operation got safely away and returned to their base.

1,600 Volunteers.
It is impossible to tell the incidents of the involved action so that it will be understood. The Vindictive, supported by two Mersey River steamers, landed troops on the mole and they destroyed some big guns that were a special danger to the expedition. There were 1,600 volunteers who took part. A viaduct leading to the mole was blown up by a submarine that sailed right in and exploded tons of T.N.T. beneath it. All these things have been told before. It is not a new story, but it is one that will never die for it was one of the cleverest and most daring in the annals of the war. This was particularly brought home to the audience last night as for an hour and a half they sat spell bound. The action took place before their eyes. They shared the tenseness, the excitement, the dangers and the triumph. What the speaker did not mention was that one of Prince Rupert's citizens, Alex. Young, son of Judge Young who presided at the meeting, was one of the motor boats that laid the smoke screen for the operations and that helped to rescue the men from the ships after they had been sunk in the canal.

Meeting Friday.
In introducing the speaker, Judge Young explained that Lieut. Helmsing was trying to secure the co-operation of the people in re-organizing the Navy League here and in forming a naval brigade here. Already the League had placed a dozen of their cadets on ocean going vessels. He showed pictures of hundreds of the naval cadets training at Victoria and he thought there should be a corps here.

A meeting of those interested is to be held in the Court House on Friday evening for the purpose of reorganizing the local Navy League.

LEAVING SUNDAY

Dr. and Mrs. McNeill and Miss Ray Go South on Prince George.

A few days ago announcement was made that Dr. McNeill had left for Vancouver. This was an error, it having been some other N. McNeill that went south at that time. The doctor is still here and, with Mrs. McNeill and her sister, Miss Ray, will leave for Vancouver on Sunday night.

For any who wish to see the doctor before leaving, he will be in his old office in the Helgerson Block from 3 to 5 on Saturday afternoon.

Dr. McNeill says it is true that he is intending to do hospital work for some months, possibly a year. He and Mrs. McNeill and Miss Ray will all be missed here for they have a wide circle of good friends.

FARNUM IS HERE IN STIRRING SEA STORY

Famous Strong Man in New Role at Westholme Tonight.

William Farnum in the William Fox picturization of Louis Tracy's novel, "Wings of the Morning," will be seen at the Westholme Theatre tonight. This production shows the virile dramatic star in an unusually fine portrayal.

The story in itself keeps one interested from the very beginning to its unusual ending. Mr. Farnum never looked better than he did in the first part of the photodrama, in his part of an English army officer. His splendid and vivid acting during the great shipwreck scene (which by the way, is the finest piece of realism ever shown on the screen here), and his adventures on the island make a picture which is intensely dramatic throughout.

On account of the bad weather prevailing all yesterday afternoon the Knights of Pythias picnic was postponed indefinitely. Many were disappointed but greater preparations than ever will now be made to make the affair a real success when it is staged.
