Navy League. Being Supported.

Lieut. Helmsing, the organizer for the Navy League of Canada, is receiving a splendid reception at all points he is visiting in the north and aid in establishing the branches of the League at various places is being unselfishly given. The objects of this League are most worthy in the effort to educate the people and especially the young people to the importance and necessity of maintaining a navy and merchant marine equipped with both ships and men. The endeavor to further the movement now on foot in Canada should, indeed, command all the public support and sympathy it can be given.

Canadians Owe Debt to Navy.

Canadians owe more to the navy than they can ever pay, says Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, and this apart from the service rendered by it to civilization generally. A great commentator on English law wrote in 1758 (half a century before Trafalgar): "The Royal Navy of England has ever been its greatest ornament; it is its ancient and natural strength, the floating bulwark of our island."

But for that Navy the expansion and preservation of the British Empire had been impossible. But for the Navy Canadians would not be in possession of the better part of the North American continent and enjoying, as they do, the happiest possible system of government. And yet the gigantic burden, ever-increasing, for the maintenance of this indispensable force and influence for good has substantially fallen on the British Islands alone.

Most Are Convinced of Value.

Time was, and not so long ago, when some of our countrymen in the Dominion looked askance at any proposal to strengthen this great arm of our defence, but the four years of war left few men unconvinced as to the value of the navy to Canada.

To our people, indeed, the freedom of the seas is absolutely essential and the navy has so preserved our freedom of trade and export, as well as industrial and agricultural development, that Canada has been able to bear her share of the great war's burden and yet enjoy at the same time a fair amount of prosperity.

European Situation is Hard to Understand.

Warsaw, the Polish capital, has now been entered by troops of the Russian soviets and the persecution of the gallant little nation seems to be more and more intense. About a month ago it appeared that she might have been saved all the bloodshed and pillage that is now going on. If the Allied active intervention had been brought to bear on the situation it is likely that the present deplorable situation might have been avoided, but European diplomatic and political affairs at the present time are both intricate and dangerous to handle. For France or Britain to actively participate in the quelling of the Reds would have seemed like throwing down the gauntlet to certain factions in their own borders whose strength is not known but is, nevertheless, feared. The soviets are no doubt afraid of Allied intervention and these countries themselves are not desirous of kindling civil dissension. The situation in Europe today is indeed a precarious one and it is not for the common person dependent on the ordinary sources of information to condemn the actions of any of the great Allied powers in connection with the Polish situation. If the Allies ever do actively intervene many preparations will have to be made and many of these preparations will be right at home.

The table given is for Port Simpson but the time for Prince Rupert varies only a few minutes on some days and on others is the same. The range of the tide may be computed as 5 per cent greater at Prince Rupert than at Port Simpson both at springs and neaps. Therefore the rise in the Prince Rupert harbor is slightly greater than Port Simpson.

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

August 17, 1910

J. S. Gray & Sons have now moved into their new store in the Helgerson Block on Sixth Street.

Plans have been received by C. D. Newton for the erection of the new Salvation Army Barracks.

A petition was read to the City Council last night from property owners on Third Avenue, headed by M. P. McGaffery, asking that the grading of that avenue be started as soon as possible.

The itinerary of Sir George Doughty, M.P. for Grimsby, and Lady Doughty, who sailed for Canada on July 27, includes a short stay and a visit to Prince Rupert.

The Man in the Moon SAYS:-

THAT prominent business men are sometimes not such efficient gas boat engineers.

THAT that's why some of them get stranded on Sunday nights and after an all night session in the school of practical gas boat engineering they land home Monday morning and become typical tired business men all that day.

THAT because a man comes in the auspicious hours of the morning in Prince Rupert does not mean that he has been in mischief, for he may have, merely, been out in a gas boat.

THAT the more one sees of other times the more he realizes that Prince Rupert may suffer from lots of things, but it doesn't suffer from heat or drought.

THAT some places they dig ditches to bring water and other places they dig ditches to take it away.

THAT Prince Rupert would make the source of a splendid irrigation system.

THAT we shouldn't kick, anyway, it was too hot and dry in July.

THAT a passenger passing the mouth of the Skeena River one night recently mistook the lights on the thousands of fishing boats for the lights of Prince Rupert.

THAT another passenger reminded him that the Prince Rupert townsite was not yet graded so those lights being on the level couldn't possibly be it.

THAT the general impression is you can spell steel either "ee" or "ea" when it comes to talking of railways.

THAT a corset has ties of ribbon and a railroad has ties of wood.

THAT popular people and popular music have their days, but both soon get stale.

LOTS OF SPORT AT BUTEDALE NEAR HERE

Splendid Fresh and Salt Water
Fishing; Hunting and Hot
Springs; Few Mosquitoes

Holiday seekers from Prince Rupert seem to have missed one of the most ideal locations for summer camping in the North, this point being Butedale, the cannery town on the east coast of Princess Royal Island. According to the statements of those who live there the fishing is excellent both in the pretty little lake that lies only a few hundred yards from the wharf and in the sea water of Grenville Channel itself. Besides this fishing which, it is said, is second to none, there is excellent hunting of deer and other forms of game in season.

A few miles away are the natural hot springs which gush from the earth at all seasons. Very few people know the splendid opportunities around this part for the sportsman, but when this is known there is no doubt Butedale will become popular. Mosquitoes and flies, it is also said, do not prove much annoyance. The point is well served by steamers and is quite convenient to Prince Rupert.
