MANNERS AND SWEET FOUND GUILTY OF SELLING LIQUOR

toxicating liquor illegally on August 16.

William J. Smith was the first witness. He told of having phoned Sweet on August 16 telling him that it was "Shorty" Smith speaking and that he would be over to see him in a little while. Accompanied by Money he went to Sweet's place on Fraser Street and was met at the door by Sweet. He said that he wanted a bottle of Scotch and Sweet went upstairs with another man who was there to get it. Money and witness remained in the sitting room. Sweet gave one bottle to the other man and then the sale to Smith was transacted, $10 being paid for the bottle of Johnny Walker's Red Label which was produced in court and identified. As they were preparing to leave a woman and two men called at the house, the woman saying "hello, George, I have brought my husband." They were told to go to the kitchen and the witness then departed.

Cross-Examined.

The evidence of Money, the assistant detective, was corroborative almost exactly of that of Smith. A stiff cross-examination of the witnesses was made by L. W. Patmore, this making the evidence given even more binding. The cross-examination was characterized by a good many objections by Mr. Hooper.

Warden Bailey told of raiding Sweet's place last night and taking seven cases of Bourbon whiskey, three cases of gin and separate bottles of Bourbon and gin.

There was no address by counsel and the request of Mr. Patmore that remand be made to allow for the status of the offence being determined was allowed.

Peter Bougles, a bystander when the seizures were being made, was seen to make away with a case and was intercepted by Constable Wisely. This morning he was charged with theft and was committed for trial.

SHOT BY PEDDLER.

SEATTLE, August 24.—C. G. Greison was injured by a revolver shot fired by a peddler whom he ejected from his bar.
